CHICAGO GREAT WORLD CENTER IN GRAPHIC ARTS

Color Printing Gives Industry Impetus.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Printing and allied graphic arts, including newspaper, periodical and book publishing, rank first among Chicago's industries in total number of persons employed and in aggregate pay roll.

Meat packing stands at the head in value of products, with steel and iron mills in the Chicago area second. But printing is away at the top in the value it adds to raw materials bought from other industries, such as paper and ink.

As one of the great centers of the graphic arts in America, Chicago is rated first in commercial printing, and New York first in book and periodical printing and value of product. The value of graphic arts output in the Chicago area in 1929, the peak year, was 445 million dollars. Of this, 324 million, or 72 per cent, was value added to raw materials by the printing industry.

Industry Growing Here.

The swing to Chicago is continually growing. Transportation, and Chicago's position as trafic center of railroads, airways, highways and inland water is a constant magnet. Some of the national magazines a few years ago, to reduce transportation costs, began moving their printing to Chicago, leaving their editorial offices marooned in the east.

This tendency is growing as population shifts into the basin of the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river valley. Some 620 periodicals were listed in the Chicago postoffice last year, all printed here, but many of them with headquarters elsewhere.

An edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is printed here. So is paper money for Canada.

In volume and variety of printing and in total pay rolls Chicago exceeds all other American cities, according to the statisticians of the Chicago Graphic Arts federation. One-tenth the printing done in the United States is produced in Chicago plants. One-fourth of all the printing inks used in the United States come from Chicago.

Leads World in Presses.

The city tops the world's cities in the manufacture of printing presses and kindred machinery. Three of the largest private printing plants in the country are here. So is the largest private map making plant in the world. Magazine covers in colors are made here for many magazines published elsewhere.

More presses for color printing are here than in any other city on the continent. And the word "color" is a key to the growth of the printing industry in Chicago, for here was developed color process printing. It followed the old World's Fair of 1893. Theodore Regensteiner is credited with organizing the use of color plate printing by the letter press process.

Photo-engraving and color printing, the experts say, made Chicago the greatest mail order center in the world. The two leading mail order houses together use about 120 million catalogs and pamphlets a year, for the most part abundantly illustrated.

More telephone directories, too, are printed here than anywhere else—about 10 million of them a year for 16 cities scattered from the Atlantic to the Rockies.

Great Advertising Center.

Before the depression the volume of business in the graphic arts was growing at a tremendous pace. Meanwhile Chicago had developed into one of the world's great advertising centers. The largest paper merchants in the United States are in Chicago. One concern has 28 branches.

Within the last five years color printing on high speed rotary presses was developed in Chicago, THE TRIBUNE pioneering in this during the depression.

A few statistics: The census for the Chicago industrial area for the peak year 1929 showed meat packing had 28,000 employés and wages and salaries of 42 million dollars. Iron and steel mills had 50,000 employés and wages and salaries of 97 million dollars. The seventeen branches in the graphic arts, including newspaper and periodical publications, gave employment to 75,000 and paid wages and salaries of 160 million dollars.

Value of products was: Meat, 671 million dollars; steel-iron mills, 506 million; graphic arts, 445 million. Value added by manufacture was: Meats, 81 million dollars; steel-iron, 213 million; graphic arts, 324 million dollars.

U. S. TO REPLACE 658 MILLIONS IN BANK CURRENCY

Gold 'Profit' Will Be Used.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The New Deal moved today to eliminate from the nation's pocketbooks all national bank currency and to replace it with money based indirectly on gold which the government seized a year ago.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. announced a program designed to force into extinction during the next year 658 million dollars in national bank notes which are now in the billfolds, purses, and banks of the country.

The thousands of persons who have this money in their possession will be given other lawful money in exchange for it, Secretary Morgenthau explained. It will be helpful, but not obligatory, the treasury added, for persons holding national bank money to exchange it at any commercial bank for other currency.

Majority $5 or More.

National bank notes may be identified by the fact that they bear the name of the issuing bank in the lower left hand corner of their face. The majority of them are in denominations of $5 or more.

The new money which will replace the old national currency will be based indirectly on the gold which the government seized as its "profit" from devaluation of the dollars, Secretary Morgenthau announced. Certificates for this gold will be given to the 12 federal reserve banks, which, in turn, will issue their own paper money, if necessary, to replace the retiring national bank currency.

Uses "Gold Profit."

Thus Secretary Morgenthau's move not only will eliminate national bank money but will also use up practically all of the unobligated "gold profit" which resulted from dollar devaluation. His move also tightens the government's hold on the country's money system by eliminating the last type of money over which the government had practically no control. Only three types of paper money will remain in the country's hands.

"The federal reserve bank notes authorized as emergency currency [during the 1933 bank holiday] are now in process of retirement," Secretary Morgenthau explained. "National bank notes will be retired as rapidly as they are presented to the treasury. It is expected that the great majority will be canceled within a year. This will leave in permanent circulation federal reserve notes, silver certificates, and United States notes.

"The total amount of outstanding currency should not be changed as a result of this program. National bank notes will be merely replaced by federal reserve notes."

Notes of Two Kinds.

A complicated rearrangement of treasury and banking finance lies behind the elimination of the national bank notes. National bank notes are of two kinds:

1. Approximately 521 million dollars' worth of them are based on 2 per cent government bonds which the national banks have posted with the treasurer of the United States as collateral. These were the "permanent" national bank notes.

2. An additional 137 million dollars' worth were issued from the three year period between July 22, 1932, and July 22, 1935. They were authorized by the Glass-Borah amendment to the Home Loan bank act, which provided that during those three years national banks might use any government bond with interest of 3% per cent or less as backing for money instead of merely 2 per cent bonds as under the "permanent" law.

The second class of national bank notes will automatically pass out of existence when the Glass-Borah amendment expires on July 22.

STREET CAR HITS ANOTHER AT END OF LINE; 3 HURT

Three persons were injured yesterday when a south bound Western avenue street car crashed into another street car which was standing at the end of the car line at 111th street and Western avenue.

The injured, all taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital, are: Martin Sexton, 2406 Bloomingdale road, the motorman of the moving car; John P. Nash, 44 years old, 4117 South Western avenue, and Miss Lottie Holman, 30 years old, 10961 Vernon avenue.

Sexton's condition was too serious to permit him to be questioned on the cause of the crash.

Here's a Crime Police Can't Clamp Lid On

This story might be titled "The Mystery of the Missing Manhole Covers," or "Who Stole the Twenty-six Sewer Lids?"

But to Capt. John Egan and Sergt. James Murray of the South Chicago police station it is just a pain in the neck.

For what sane person or persons, say the doughty policemen, could want 26 large castiron discs, each weighing 35 pounds and bearing the plain inscription, "City of Chicago"? But the fact remains that last night it was becoming increasingly annoying to the policemen that 26 manhole covers are missing from the district bounded by 87th and 90th streets and Stony Island and Merrill avenues.

Police Can't Clamp on the Lid!

The mystery first began to make itself apparent to Sergt. Murray at 8 o'clock yesterday morning as he sat at the desk of the police station. The telephone rang and a sleepy voice informed Sergt. Murray that a sewer lid was missing from the street in front of his home, and what did the police intend to do about it?

Sergt. Murray was about to respond that the matter would be referred "to the proper department" when another telephone rang. The complaint was similar, concerning an absent manhole cover.

The two callers probably are neighbors, thought the police officer, but he was soon to be dissillusioned, for in the space of the next hour the harassed sergeant had fifty such calls—all about missing sewer lids.

"Either I am going nuts," Sergt. Murray grumbled loud and despairingly, "or we have a manhole maniac on our hands."

Sleuths Verify the Mystery.

And with that he sent Detectives Thomas Powers, George O'Brien and Walter Fitzgerald to investigate. He also called Capt. Egan at his home. But the matter was only confused the more when the three detectives returned and reported a strange dearth of sewer covers—in fact, exactly 26 were missing.

So all the policemen put their heads together and pondered the mystery.

"Maybe it was a drunk," suggested O'Brien hopefully. "It might have seemed like a good idea at the time."

"One lid, yes," said Powers, "but no drunk would take 26. Maybe it was 26 drunks."

"Don't be silly," said his squad mate Fitzgerald "maybe it was some people on a scavenger hunt. You know it's a game. Every one has to get all the articles his host tells him to. There might have been 26 on the party somewhere in the neighborhood here."

"There might have been," mused Sergt. Murray, "but how about the thief being a junk man. That's half a ton of scrap he would have got, and it's worth $3 a ton."

"No one would buy sewer covers with the name of City of Chicago on top," retorted Capt. Egan. And there the mystery stood as diligent policemen last night continued the hunt for the 26 mysteriously missing manhole covers.

One as yet unexplored theory remained: That maybe a flock of giants are planning a game of tiddledywinks.

WEDS HIS DAUGHTER'S STEPDAUGHTER AND CONFUSION REIGNS

Gloucester, N. J., March 10.—(AP)—The stepdaughter of Mrs. Joseph Messner is her stepmother's stepmother and the stepdaughter's husband calls his daughter his mother-in-law.

This domestic tangle was revealed today in a letter Charles T. Delker received from his father, Thomas B. Delker, 60, former Hammonton, N. J., newspaper editor. The elder Delker said he had married Emma Messner, 20, Feb. 27 in New York City.

The 60 year old bridegroom is the father of the bride's stepmother, who married the bride's father several years ago after the death of the girl's mother.

MRS. LYMAN GAGE AND CAPT. EVANS IN AUTO CRASH

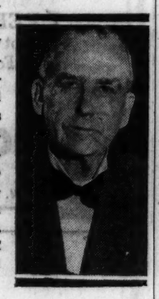
San Diego, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Lyman Gage, widow of the former secretary of the treasury, and Capt. Waldo Evans, U. S. A., retired, former governor of the Virgin Islands, were injured tonight when an automobile ran wild on the highway near here, striking three cars and injuring four other persons before it was halted.

Doctors said Mrs. Gage suffered only shock and bruises and Capt. Evans was not believed to have been injured seriously.

Ivan Friend, 52, of El Cajon, Cal., was held by police as a drunken driver, after the accident. Officers said his car careened into machines driven by Mrs. Gage, Lieutenant Commander Harold V. Packard, a Long Beach resident, and Lieutenant Commander David Mitchell.

Voliva, 65, on Nut Diet; 'to Live to Be 120'

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion and of the Christian Apostolic church, celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday yesterday and expressed the belief that he would live to 120 years old. He attributed his prospective longevity to virtually total abstinence from meat and to a diet consisting of Brazil nuts and buttermilk.



WILBUR GLENN VOLIVA.

At a family party Saturday night the overseer added two poached eggs to his usual Brazil nuts and buttermilk, and on the insistence of his grandchildren nibbled a small piece of birthday cake—the first cake he had eaten in several years. Yesterday he took part in three church services at the Shiloh tabernacle.

What Makes World Look Flat.

"I never felt better in my life," asserted Voliva, who has been overseer of Zion for thirty years. "If you don't believe the world is flat, just try a diet of buttermilk and Brazil nuts."

Voliva painted a gloomy picture for the future of the world, which he is still sure is flat, though he has circled it several times. He predicted a world war in 1936, followed by the ascendancy of Benito Mussolini to a position of world power. The Italian dictator, however, will not solve the problems of civilization and after seven years will engage with Adolf Hitler in a "Battle of Armageddon," in which all the earth will struggle and millions will be slain, bringing the end of civilization in its present form.

And as for the Present.

The overseer did not venture to forecast the outcome of events less consequential in the world scheme but vastly more pressing in Zion.

Voliva will appear in federal court in Chicago today to present his plan for the reorganization of Zion Industries and Institutions, Inc. His plans call for the payment of 75 per cent of the profits of the company annually to the creditors, whose claims now aggregate $1,135,000.

The Zion industries have been in equity receivership since May, 1933, and voluntary bankruptcy proceedings under section 77-B have been pending since last July.

John D. Sr. Better After 2 Day Illness

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 10.—John D. Rockefeller Sr., 95 year old master of oil millions, has been so ill with a cold for the last two days that his local doctor has visited him twice daily.

The nonagenarian's condition had improved to such an extent today, however, that he was considered out of all danger. He might possibly resume tomorrow his daily automobile rides, his sole break through the curtain of absolute isolation and secrecy that surrounds him.

The elder Rockefeller, who spends his winters at the Casements, a rambling, unpretentious home on the shore of the Halifax, developed hoarseness, a slight fever, and cold two days ago. Because of his extreme age any illness immediately was considered serious. But the fever had disappeared today. The hoarseness was gone and his condition was close to normal.

Second Illness Since July.

The Associated Press learned that this was Rockefeller's first indisposition of any kind since last July at Lakewood, N. J., when he was desperately ill, apparently with complications caused by a fall. His left wrist and arm were bandaged and had to be carried in a sling, but news of the injury was kept secret. Over a year ago his annual southern visit was delayed by a heavy cold at his estate at Pocantico Hills, N. Y.

Persons close to the Rockefellers here said that these illnesses over slightly more than a year, and nothing more, were responsible for the complete isolation in which the ancient oil tycoon is living out his life, seeking to reach at least 100 years. Doctors have told the family that absolute quiet with not even friends allowed to visit him was the only medicine science has for the man who in his lifetime has turned over 500 million dollars to charity.

General Condition Better.

Rockefeller, they insist, is brighter, more alert, in better health than he had been for years up to the time of the present indisposition.

Great precautions are taken to preserve his health. He gave up golf in 1932, takes all his meals alone now in his suite on the second floor of the Casements, has male nurses, Henry Syle and John Jordi, with him 24 hours of the day, has newspapers read to him for a short period each day, and comes out of his isolation only for his daily automobile ride and brief periods of sitting in the sun in the garden.

An elevator was installed this year to carry him up and down from the second floor instead of his having to walk the single flight of steps. His automobile rides, in a closed sedan instead of the open touring car he used here for years, usually are taken on a special driveway built for him on the grounds.

ROBBERS REVIVE WOMAN VICTIM, THEN LOOT SHOP

When four robbers entered a delicatessen at 801 South Kedzie avenue last night, Mrs. Elizabeth Averbach, wife of the owner, fainted. One of the robbers menaced her husband, Sam, while the others placed Mrs. Averbach in a chair and began applying cold towels to her face. When they had revived Mrs. Averbach the robbers went about their business, taking $25 from the till.

BULLETIN.

VIENNA, March 11 (Monday).—(AP)—Dispatches to Vienna newspapers today from Athens said 4,000 men were killed on both sides in the battle along the Struma river between the Greek government and rebels. Rebels retreated slightly, the dispatches added, but were showing a vigorous resistance.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, March 10.—Rebel forces late today rallied from a rout and halted the government loyal troops' advance seven miles from Seres, insurgent stronghold.

Up to that time the tide of battle in the ten day old civil war had been so definite that the war office optimistically declared the crossing of the Struma river marked a great military success for the government.

The Struma valley campaign was warfare on a major scale, both sides using artillery and machine guns, and the government generalissimo, George Kondylis, sending bombing airplanes over the rebels and cavalry ahead of his infantry.

Bombard Rebel Ship.

On another scene loyal naval vessels under command of Capt. Sakellarious fired more than 300 shells in an hour's bombardment of the battleship Helle, manned by rebels, in the harbor of Kavala. The firing was halted to avoid damaging the city.

Meanwhile seaplanes left the mainland to bomb Crete, which is reported to have declared its independence, and to search for rebel warships. The government claimed that intercepted wireless messages disclosed former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, chief of the rebels, is aware his cause is lost.

While proclaiming success in the Struma valley the government admitted the rebels still hold strong natural positions in the mountains and also are utilizing the old German and Bulgarian fortifications of the world war. The whole plateau around Seres is still muddy from recent rains and snow.

Launch General Attack.

Gen. Kondylis launched a general offensive at dawn against the rebels, who embrace the 4th army corps, numbering perhaps 30,000 men, entrenched east of the Struma.

The loyalist army passed over a wooden bridge at Orliako, which was found undamaged but barricaded by the rebels with barbed wire. Another army detachment under Gen. Jiannides advanced over the Koumariana bridge, and still a third detachment over the Nigrita bridge.

The roar of cannon and the steady clatter of machine guns echoed over the countryside, and vivid red flashes of artillery lighted up the entire area. The advance was along a line from Provata to Vanvake, with Demirhissar the final objective on the north and Tsaghezi on the south.

Government planes bombed rebel barracks in the war zone, dropping more than 12 tons of high explosives. Pilots claimed a number of direct hits. Apparently there was heavy damage and many deaths.

Take 200 Prisoners.

The government's artillery was answered by flashes from mountain artillery brought into play by the rebels. This cover was of great aid to the rebels in rallying their forces for the stand before Seres.

The government claimed 200 prisoners, including two officers, were taken along with five field guns and two machine guns. Prisoners were quoted as telling tales of extreme misery and some of them were said to be virtually without clothing.

The whole valley was dotted with fleeing figures—frightened peasants, many of whom experienced the horrors of a previous conflagration when the same valley formed a vast amphitheater for the bloody world war drama.

Many shells landed in flooded areas, causing great geysers of water to mix with flying fragments of shrapnel.

Rebels under Gen. Demetrius Kamanos evacuated their machine gun nests on the east bank of the Struma before the advance of the loyalists, but withdrew to new strongly entrenched positions on the next ridge, and with raking machine gun fire made Kondylis' movement a dear one. Gen. Kondylis tonight ordered reinforcements and more artillery from across the river. These will be thrown against the rebels tomorrow.

Harbor Battle at Dawn.

The territory beyond the Struma is partly swamp land, being drained and reclaimed by Ulen & Co. of New York and partly rich tobacco land in which there are heavy American interests. Back of Seres is the important town Drama, now in rebel hands. Kavala is the port from which Macedonian tobacco is shipped direct to the United States.

The loyal fleet of three destroyers and two submarines crept into Kavala harbor stealthily for their hour's bombardment of the rebel cruiser Helle which was in port for an hour at 4 a. m. From what port the fleet made the sudden dash is not known, but the government announced that its warships did not encounter any troop transports or convoys on its way. An air squadron reported sinking an oil tanker apparently headed for the rebel fleet with fuel.

A government spokesman claimed tonight that mopping up the Macedonian rebels would now be a matter of a few days. He admitted the problem of subduing Venizelos in Crete would be more difficult.

Praise Balkan Pact.

Great stress was laid in government circles on the effectiveness of the recently signed Balkan pact in preventing complications with neighboring states which might have arisen out of the Greek rebellion. It was pointed out that the neighboring states signatory to this pact have adhered to their promise to respect the legal government and territorial integrity.

Two of Samuel Insull's former counsel are included in the day's news. Christos Ladas, Insull's chief lawyer during the forensics here more than a year ago in the extradition hearings, was let out of jail for a second time. The onetime Venizelos supporter is being kept under strict police surveillance. Another Insull lawyer, Pericles Rhallis, is now governor general of Saloniki, and through him were given most of the reports of Gen. Kondylis' movements.

Gen. John Metaxas, who was made minister without portfolio when the rebellion began, has been now made minister of war pro tem, replacing Kondylis who becomes generalissimo of all armed forces.

Denoting the seriousness of the struggle, the government today banned all export of provisions abroad. Military classes from 1920 to 1932, inclusive, have been called out in Macedonia by the government to constitute a reserve body.

100 Communists Shot.

LONDON, March 11 [Monday].—(AP)—The Sofia correspondent of the Daily Express said today 100 communists had been courtmartialed and shot at Kavalla, Greece, for attempting a revolt within ranks of the rebels. The dispatch also said government garrisons on the Greco-Albanian border have gone over to the rebels and that the first Saloniki cavalry division joined the Venizelists.

Gen. Plastiras Disappears.

NICE, France, March 10.—(AP)—Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, exiled Greek leader who was expected to return to the Riviera from Italy today, failed to arrive at either Cannes or Nice, causing friends to believe he left his train at the Franco-Italian frontier.

At Geneva Plastiras had declared his belief that troops of the Athens government will defeat the rebels within fifteen days. Asked why he did not send a message to Greece urging peace, he replied he would like to do so, but was sure any message of his would be sequestrated. A spokesman indicated Plastiras would hasten to Athens should rebels led by former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos succeed in entering that city.

Italian secret service men who closely watched Plastiras during his stay in Italy accompanied him to the border. They reported he rigorously kept his promise to the Italian government not to engage in political activity while on Italian soil.

Missionaries Safe After 5 Months with Chinese Reds

FINDS REBELS IN MACEDONIA GAIN IN MEN AND ARMS

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

GHEVGHELLI, Greek-Jugo-Slav Frontier, March 10.—Despite the government's claims of victories over the rebels the main body of anti-government forces in Macedonia remains intact. They had increased their strength to 27,000 men when the Associated Press correspondent left that area yesterday.

They appeared to be in complete control of almost all Greek Macedonia. They had acquired a number of airplanes and huge quantities of ammunition stored by the government at strategic points in Macedonia.

Greece is rent not only by civil war but threatened with widespread revolution as well as communist uprising among thousands of tobacco workers in Macedonia, it was learned from unquestionable sources.

The rebel fleet, which is somewhere among the Aegean islands, apparently is awaiting a favorable moment to bombard the cities of Kavala and Saloniki.

Urges Yanks to Leave.

So serious was the situation in Macedonia that Harry L. Trautman of Macon, Ga., American consul at Saloniki, was trying to evacuate thirty-two Americans from Macedonia by way of Istanbul. All communications between Macedonia and Saloniki had been cut off.

In addition to thirty-two native born Americans there are 1,057 naturalized American citizens of Greek birth in Macedonia and Thrace.

Today was the tenth day of the revolution, which had lasted longer than any five revolutions during the last 10 years. All possibility of peace seemed to vanish when government forces began their offensive against the rebels along the Doiran-Seres front, which had already been drenched with blood in the grim four year struggle of the allies against the central powers 20 years ago.

Heavy casualties were reported on both sides. It was feared that the government's air attack in which 22 planes participated might cause the rebel flotilla to take reprisals by bombarding Kavala, Saloniki, and Athens. If this occurred it might imperil many Americans.

Foreigners Held.

Alarmed at the growth of the insurrectionary movements, the Athens government ordered all foreigners, including diplomats, to be kept virtual prisoners in Greece. The cabinet refused to allow any American or foreigner to leave the country without a special permit from the minister of the interior.

Foreign diplomats are turned back when they attempt to board trains. No explanation is offered by the government for this unprecedented action, which foreign diplomats declare is a breach of international law.

Correspondents are forbidden to send dispatches. One government telegraph clerk said coolly: "O, we are too busy with government telegrams to send such trite messages."

All the foreign governments have protested against forcible detention of their nationals. The Jugo-Slav consul at Saloniki was refused the right to send his wife and children to Belgrade for safety.

Fear for Yank Doctors.

In view of the reported bombardment of Kavala by government aviators yesterday considerable anxiety was felt for the safety of Dr. and Mrs. Barber of New York, and Mrs. Justus Rice of Alton, Ill., who are connected with the Rockefeller Foundation Malaria Research institution at Kavala.

Consul Trautman has been without any telegrams from the state department for four days, leading him to express the belief that Greek authorities were holding up even official telegrams from abroad. No telegram is allowed to be sent out of Greece by American or other diplomatic or consular authorities without being censored by the government.

The foreign diplomatic and consular corps protested bitterly against this measure, but the Greek military authorities replied in French—"C'est la guerre, messieurs." [It is the war.]

Government officials, army officers, and private persons seem too terrified to speak, apparently fearing they will be accused of disclosing unauthorized information.

The movement for the restoration of a monarchy in Greece seemed to be gaining. It was said the present government long ago intended to revive the dynasty as the only possible solution for the present seemingly hopeless disunity among the people.

This plan is declared to have been one of the main causes for the rising of the followers of former Premier Eleutherois Venizelos, leader of the revolt, who want to preserve the republic at all costs.

At present nobody can predict with certainty whether the government will survive the shock of the revolt. It is known to be not merely a revolution but a grave internecine strife which has shaken Greece to its foundation.

The man of the hour seems to be Venizelos, to whom many Greeks show as much veneration as they did to the fabulous King Minos who ruled classical Crete at the dawn of history.

GREEK REBELS CHECK LOYALIST DRIVE

The map shows the area of the great battle of the Struma river valley in which 4,000 are reported slain. Macedonian rebels checked the government advance seven miles from Seres. The loyal army's objectives are Seres and Demirhissar. At Kavala government vessels bombarded the rebel ship Helle in the harbor. The shaded portion shows Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Turkey, who, with Greece, are members of the Balkan pact.

7,000 Barbers Set Out to Beautify Russian Farmers

MOSCOW, March 10. —(AP)—Seven thousand traveling barbers with boxes of perfumes and lotions have been sent to Russia's collective farms to dress up ragged beards. The "Centre Soyuz," which serves rural populations, announced today it is planned to increase the number to 10,000 this year. Authorities are encouraging farmers to improve their personal appearance.

LAST QUEEN OF TAHITI, 80, DIES; FATHER A BRITON

Joanna's Romances Once Thorn to French.

PARIS, March 10.—(AP) — Tahiti's throneless "Queen Joanna," once famous for her life of stormy romance and political intrigues, died in Papeete March 1 at the age of 80, it was disclosed here today.

Nearly the entire population of Tahiti attended the funeral. She was Marau Toroa before she became queen. She was buried with royal honors although without a throne.

WIDOW OF LAST KING.

Queen Joanna was the wife of Pomare V., last king of the Tahitians, and settled down in her old age to intellectual pursuits on the coral girded Pacific island of 10,000 inhabitants, where she once ruled and lived as she liked.

Joanna's father was an English sailor who began life on the island by getting himself shipwrecked and then marrying a native princess. She herself was married to King Pomare in 1875 and from that time on became a vital factor in the political development of Tahiti.

At first she was favorable to the English, much to the despair of the French colonial party. Moreover, her private conduct, as judged by western standards, brought deep criticism from Christian missionaries on the island.

Missionaries Shocked.

The Tahitian marriage customs, shocking to western eyes, and the easy-going morality of the languorous tropical isle raised their strong protests, particularly as the queen gave them no support in eliminating the ancient traditions of the land.

Finally even the king was annoyed. When Joanna gave birth to a baby girl, Pomare was asked to draw up a civil affidavit of parentage. He refused point blank. Paul Deschanel, former president of France, cited the royal proclamation in his book on French policy in the Pacific. Pomare announced to his people:

"The child is not mine. I forbid it to succeed me in my goods, my estates and my titles. I have spoken."

Meanwhile the French were outdoing themselves in diplomatic gallantry and managed to draw the young queen from her English allegiance.

On French Pension List.

Their success was so great that in 1880, when they persuaded Pomare to abdicate in favor of France, Joanna, who might have turned the tables on them by her opposition, raised no protesting voice against the loss of her throne.

Her two children were placed on the French pension list for 9,000 francs [about $600] a year each. As late as 1927 the gratitude of France was still warm enough to gain her, at the age of 73, an appointment as chevalier of the legion of honor.

In her old age, tranquil and unworried by politics, Joanna engaged in a serious study of ancient Tahitian legends. She lived quietly in a "palace," an elaborate native hut but more solid than those of her erstwhile subjects, and tended coconut and orange groves on her private lands. She was attended by her faithful retainer, a venerable graybeard who once was chief eunuch at the court.

THREE KILLED IN CRASH.

Wentzville, Mo., March 10.—(AP)—Two women and a man were killed and another man was dangerously injured late today when their motor car was struck by a Wabash freight train.

CUBA DECLARES STATE OF WAR; VIOLENCE GROWS

Bomb Blasts and Rifle Fire Terrorize Havana.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, March 11 (Monday). —(AP)—A state of war was declared early today throughout the republic, on the heels of numerous acts of violence which have occurred during the anti-government strikes in the last few days.

A supplementary announcement said the government had decided to reinstate in full force at once the state of war decree passed by the cabinet of former President Grau San Martin on Nov. 8, 1933. The decree provides that all offenses against public order shall be tried before a council of war and that a list of these offenses be published immediately.

HAVANA, March 10.—(AP)—Hundreds of soldiers moved into Havana tonight but sporadic bombings and rifle fire increased the city's tension.

The explosions heightened fears of a repetition of last night's wild disorders which left four dead and eight wounded.

Three persons, including a two year old baby, were injured as disorders spread throughout the city and reached into the suburbs. The baby was struck by a bullet in Jesus del Monte when unidentified persons fired on a bus.

Soldiers, sailors and police staged a brief combat with a group of youths in front of the American- owned Hotel President. The officers used short lengths of rubber hose to flog the youths, after which several shots were fired.

Fire as Lights Go Out.

When power failed in the town of Guanabacoa, across the bay from Havana, shooting began and continued for five minutes. The lights soon came back, however.

Authorities arrested Rodolfo Mendez Penate, a prominent politician, in connection with the uprising against the régime of Provincial President Carlos Mendieta. Penate was secretary of labor early in Mendieta's régime. His brother committed suicide a year ago while serving in the cabinet.

The cabinet met shortly before midnight and accepted the resignation of Dr. Rafael Loriet, secretary of sanitation. Dr. Rafael Ituare was named to succeed him.

As a grim reminder of the struggle against the government of Mendieta the bodies of Armando Fieto, a radical student, and his father-in-law, Miguel Rogue Fraga, were thrown into a fashionable street near the residence of Jefferson Caffery, United States ambassador. Fieto was a member of the students' strike committee. The pair was believed to have been killed last night.

State of War in Camaguey.

A state of war, similar to the state of siege declared here, was proclaimed by the governor of Camaguey province. It prohibited citizens from appearing on the streets after midnight and closed theaters and other public places.

The troops moved into the capital by trucks from Camp Columbia, on the edge of Havana. Three bombs exploded just after dark in the Principe prison section and another in the Vedado section, in midtown. Two of the bombs exploded in a café without injuring anybody. After the third bombing shooting broke out.

The island appeared to be dangerously close to a general revolutionary strike as union after union answered the central committee's call for a general walkout before or at midnight tonight.

The last and most important union to join the strikers was that of railroad workers on the main lines between Havana and Santiago, who quit this afternoon.

Last night's outbreak was the wildest since the November, 1933, revolution and residents remained terror stricken all day. Gay Havana became gray Havana under the state of siege which prohibited the regular Sunday carnival parades and similar festivities.

Warning to Cubans.

The government was moving swiftly in its efforts to block the strike movement. Citizens were warned there would be no halfway measures. President Mendieta issued a statement:

"The government takes its place to defend lives and property and to give security. This government is strong and has the resistance to meet all problems, regardless of their size."

After declaring that the government had not indulged in acts of violence, Mendieta said:

"The republic must win, because there is nothing more unjust than what is happening in these moments. If the campaign now confronting us were directed only against the government we could meet it with that attitude, but it is being directed against wealth and property, peace and order, and even the Cuban family."

Theaters Are Closed.

There were no theaters or cinemas and few cafés open in the city. Late this afternoon Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, sent seven of his fighting planes over the center of Havana and staged a mimic warfare, presumably to work on the morale of militant-minded revolutionaries.

The government gained some strength in its fight against the strikers when the Marianista party, headed by former Mayor Miguel Mariano Gomez of Havana, issued a statement condemning government employés for joining the strike.

Government officials declared suspension of the constitution was total and that President Mendieta was given full power to dictate any measures he deemed necessary to protect public order.

Ready to Dissolve Unions.

Officials said the president wants to respect workers' and professionals' unions, but will dissolve and declare illicit those striking in violation of his decree or against the desire of a majority of the members.

A decree was issued prohibiting persons from going to the rooftops, presumably to check the epidemic of sniping.

Santiago was paralyzed by a strike of street car men, who left their vehicles on the track at midnight all over the city. Incendiaries burned a school of Pinar del Rio. At Camaguey the mayor was removed by President Mendieta and an army officer named to the post.

WARNS GOOD MANNERS ARE DISAPPEARING

Praises U. S. Grant

Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar college, told 500 undergraduates and 286 graduating seniors of the University of Chicago yesterday that the "ladies and gentlemen" of the old school are largely extinct.

Dr. MacCracken spoke on manners in the university chapel at a convocation preliminary to the midyear commencement tomorrow.

"There are very few gentlemen of the old school left in the world," he said, "and I know there are no ladies —in the old sense. The chivalrous ideal of a gentleman can be attained more easily than the old ideal of a lady."

The educator discoursed on manners from the chivalry of the middle ages to the outstanding example of dignity, respect, and good manners given by Generals Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee when the latter surrendered at Appomattox courthouse in 1865.

NOTES PENNED BY JAMES MONROE FOUND IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, March 10.—(AP)—Hitherto unpublished notes written by President James Monroe when he was United States ambassador to England [1803-'07] has been discovered in old Russian archives, it was announced today. They were addressed to Count Vorontsoff, ambassador for Catherine II. of Russia at London, and remained since in the Vorontsoff family library.

The notes will be published by the Academy of Sciences of the U. S. S. R. next year, together with new documents from the archives of the Russian-American company which colonized Alaska and the Aleutian islands and exploited them until their purchase by the United States in 1867.

The Russian-American records were lost after the company's liquidation but part have been recovered as a result of the discovery of private correspondence of the company's founders.

BOY, 9, 'BURNED AT STAKE' BY HIS PLAYMATES, DIES

Brockton, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—A 9 year old "cowboy" died in a hospital today, and the "Indians," ages ranging from 8 to 11, who burned him "at the stake" yesterday, were heartbroken.

Another "cowboy" pinioned to the same tree escaped unscathed because he was strong enough to wiggle away from the flaming paper and grass that surrounded the "captives." In wiggling, however, he unwittingly rendered his companion more helpless.

When "the gang" decided to play cowboys and Indians, Edward Smith, 9, and Robert Dobryzinski, 8, were chosen as the "cowboys" and were promptly lashed to a tree, one on each side. A half inch rope was used to bind them. Then the 'Indians," with the proper amount of ceremony, heaped papers and dry grass near the tree. Some one touched a match to it.

The flames leaped high, caught high grass near the tree and, as the "Indians" danced and shouted they suddenly discovered with horror that Eddie's clothing was in flames. Bobby, the other captive, managed to worm his way free. One of the "Indians" slashed the rope that held Eddie with a knife, but it was too late.

Burglars Ransack Home; Loot Valued at $3,000

Burglars, entering through a pantry window, ransacked the house of William H. Hewitt, 6740 Euclid avenue, retired business man, last night and made off with jewels, clothing, and several sporting rifles and revolvers, with a total value of $3,000, Woodlawn police were told. Mr. Hewitt said he and his wife were dining at the home of his son, Dr. W. F. Hewitt, 6623 Woodlawn avenue, when the burglary took place.

LOOT DOCTOR'S AUTOMOBILE.

Jewelry and clothing worth $350 were stolen yesterday from the automobile of Dr. John Taylor while it was parked at his home, 240 East Delaware place.

DRIVER KILLED, 5 OTHERS HURT AS AUTOS CRASH

Collision at Intersection Wrecks Gas Station.

One man was instantly killed and 5 other persons were seriously injured in a spectacular collision between two automobiles at West 159th and South Halsted streets, Harvey, early today. The dead man was Eldred Gates, 23 years old, 482 Glenwood avenue, Glen Ellyn, a watchman for the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad.

With his wife Gates was driving home from a visit in Hammond. He was going west in 159th street when the machine struck that of Fred Miller, 19 years old, of 3616 Halsted street, Steger, who was driving north in Halsted street.

Damages Filling Station.

The force of the impact knocked Miller's car into the driveway of a gasoline filling station. The front of the car knocked down a pillar supporting the roofing of the driveway, and a portion of the roofing fell on the machine.

Gates' chest was crushed by the steering wheel of his car. His wife suffered internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

The others injured, all passengers in Miller's car, were: Miller himself, Melvin Akemann, 18 years old, 3504 Peoria street, Steger; Miss Lulu Weieringo, 18 fears old, and Miss Alberta Elzholz, 17 years old, both of Chicago Heights.

Widow Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Mary Daly, 62 years old, widow of Peter P. Daly, south side wholesale grocer and real estate operator, died at her home at 7405 Paxton avenue yesterday of injuries incurred on Sept. 16 when she was struck by an automobile at Austin boulevard and Harrison street. Mrs. Daly's skull was fractured and she remained in the Oak Park hospital for two months. Emil Kronemann, 3123 Prairie avenue, Brookfield, driver of the car, has been notified to attend the inquest today.

These deaths and three others yesterday brought the 1935 Cook county trafic toll to 172. At 4 p. m. the number of automobile deaths within the Chicago city limits since Jan. 1 stood at 138 and the number of injured at 2,650. The deaths yesterday:

The car injured Robert as he tried to save her. Police released the driver, Gustav Melcher, 54 years old, 1644 North New England avenue.

Clarence Rogers, 59 years old, 5049 Adams street, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred earlier yesterday when he stepped before a taxicab at 2673 Madison street. George Bagnall, 3906 Warren avenue, Bellwood, the driver, was not held.

Unidentified man, 65 years old, fatally injured by an automobile at Roberts road and Archer avenue, in Argo. The driver of the car, Alex Grizzell, 116 Harrison avenue, Joliet, took him to the Holy Cross hospital, where he died. Grizzell was asked to appear at the inquest today.

FOOD POISONING CLAIMS SIXTH OREGON VICTIM

Klamath Falls, Ore., March 10.—(AP) —A malady marked by convulsions and sudden death took its sixth victim here today as physicians advanced the theory that food poisoning was responsible.

Five other deaths in Klamath county the past two weeks have occurred under similar circumstances.

Antitoxin to combat botulinus poisoning was ordered rusher here by airplane from Portland, Ore., in efforts to save the life of a 16 year old boy. Coroner George H. Adler said attempts will be made to determine if food of the victims came from the same source.

James Edwards Scott, 55, of Bonanza, Ore., died of the malady today.

Mother and 3 Children Burned to Death in Home

GALETTA, Ont., March 10.—(AP)—A mother and her three children were burned to death early today at Kingdom Mines, little settlement near here, when they were trapped by flames in their wooden house. The victims were Mrs. Gideon Mason, 28; Ernest, 12; Arnold, 10, and Joyce, 1. The father was at work at the time of the fire.

Two Peruvian Submarines Safe in Charleston Harbor

Charleston, S. C., March 10.—(AP)—Escorted here by two coast guard cutters, the Peruvian submarines R-1 and R-2 entered the harbor tonight under their own power after fighting high seas 330 miles east of here for the last 36 hours. Escaping gas from batteries in the ships caused them to wireless for aid.

SENATOR LONG TO RENEW WAR AGAINST FARLEY

Factions May Compel an Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Desire of administration leaders to "crack down" on Senator Huey Long of Louisiana, which erupted last Tuesday when Majority Leader Robinson appealed to the senate to put him in his place, may assert itself in a more violent form this week, as Long then will renew his fight on Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The report of the senate committee on postoffice and post roads, concluding that Long had produced no evidence to sustain his charges against Farley and recommending no investigation, will come up for action by the senate itself. A bitter political row undoubtedly will follow.

Will Fight on Floor.

The Kingfish, who has made the report his unfinished business, will demand the rejection of the committee's report and the appointment of a select committee to investigate Farley as provided in his original resolution. He will be supported in this demand not only by the regular Republicans and the radicals of the Norris-LaFollette group, who might be designated anti-Farley New Dealers, but also by a good many Democrats who feel that the senate's own dignity cannot tolerate any suspicion of a whitewash and that the charges, because of their gravity, should be proved or disproved in justice to Mr. Farley.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], a New Dealer, but personally friendly to Senator Long, already has objected to the sidetracking of the resolution to the postoffice committee. He recalled that his own resolution which drove Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty out of President Harding's cabinet, went without question to a select committee, and he asked the senators what they thought the result would have been had it got to the judiciary committee.

Recall Teapot Dome Fight.

It also is recalled that the resolution of the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], which led to the Teapot Dome exposure, drove Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby out of the cabinet and sent Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall to jail, went as a matter of course to a special committee. In neither case were the charges investigated before the investigation was ordered.

Long says the senators who have been objecting to his daily fulminations against the postmaster general and the Roosevelt administration "ain't heard nothin' yet."

Plans Further Attacks.

The Kingfish will attempt to resume his assaults on Farley while the administration forces are seeking to put over the famous 5 billion dollar work relief bill. With another fight on their hands to defeat the McCarren prevailing wage amendment they will not have much patience with Long's interruptions.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the appropriations committee and conductor of the bill, indicated on Friday that he would offer a cloture resolution for the purpose of keeping Long in order.

"I'm afraid the senator's own vote will be the only one he will get," Long said.

"Oh, no, the senator is mistaken about that." Senator Glass replied.

Circulation Committee Ends 3 Day Conference

Members of the investigating committee of the Audit Bureau of Circulation concluded a three day conference at the Stevens hotel yesterday and adjourned until March 30 when a report on proposed changes in the regulations affecting 999 newspaper members of the bureau will be submitted. Frank S. Newell, of the Toledo Blade, presided at the executive sessions of the committee which is studying proposals for a number of changes in the rules of the ABC.

2 Boys Slug Owner of New Bicycle and Make a Trade

James Bauman, 12 years old, 195 Stratford road, Des Plaines, was robbed of his new bicycle and slugged last night by two boys a few years older than himself on the Northwest highway near the village. They passed by on their own bicycles and stopped to help him fix a chain on his wheel. As they started to leave they struck James, snatched his new bicycle, which was a birthday present, and left one of theirs in its place.

ACCUSES FARLEY OF NEW POSTAL LAW VIOLATIONS

Cites Mail Order House Concessions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Fresh charges that Postmaster General James [Call Me Jim] Farley is misusing his powers and violating the postal laws have been brought forward by Representative Daniel A. Reed [Rep., N. Y.].

Reed declared that Farley has yielded to the demands of mail order houses and in official order 6338 allowed direct-by-mail advertising groups to send their advertising broadsides into the cities for delivery without requiring the matter to bear either the name or the address of the person to whom it is sent.

"All a mail order house has to do, under the order," Reed explained, "is to request from the postoffice department the number of city routes and the number of patrons on each route. Then it sends its addressed advertising circulars to the postmaster of that city who superintends the delivery of the matter."

Hits at Free Press, Is Charge.

Thus, the congressman said, the city mail carriers become glorified handbill distributors.

This unprecedented practice, Reed charged, not only strikes a severe blow at the small business man, but tends toward ultimate destruction of the free press.

The recent appointment of the head of Sears, Roebuck & Co. [Gen. Robert Wood], he went on, to dispense the 4 billion 880 million dollars under the work relief bill, is not without significance.

"I have on my desk protests from merchants and manufacturers in my district against the appointment," he said. "Those who are familiar with the practices of large monopolistic concerns are quite aware how anxious those concerns are to place their executives in key positions that will enable them to expand the business of the firms which they represent, and all at the expense of the taxpayers of the country.

"It is well known that more than 500,000 small business men have been destroyed during the past two years. Many of those that have so far survived are threatened with prosecution for alleged violations of the NRA.

Cites Taxes Under Codes.

"They are taxed under numerous codes and they are flooded with official documents demanding detailed reports as to the conduct of their business."

Reed also said that the Tennessee Valley "yardstick" is now sending its monthly bills to consumers under government frank, which is "a gross abuse" of postal privileges in competition with private business.

Although Farley could not be reached for comment today, his assistants said the matter had been called to his attention and the postmaster general was expected to review the situation shortly.

CHIEF OF AIR LINE URGES RAIL RATE FIXING BY I. C. C.

C. R. Smith, president of American Air Lines, Inc., and a member of the air transport companies' committee studying pending aviation legislation, said yesterday he favored the passage by congress of the Mead bill to authorize the interstate commerce commission to fix air mail rates and to give the postmaster general power to designate mail routes and schedules.

The bill, which has been reported favorably to the house, would put an end to the lines' losses that followed the revision of their contracts seven months ago, Mr. Smith asserted.

"Our operating capital will last only about three months more under the present contracts," he said, "and such a situation requires immediate action."

MELLON PREFERS PRISON TO TAX 'TYRANNY' OF U. S.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—While the financial world of America anxiously awaits the decision, Andrew W. Mellon, whose hearing of protest against a $3,089,000 assessment on his 1931 income tax return resumes tomorrow, tonight said, in discussing the case: "I would rather spend the rest of my days in jail than submit to such tyranny." Mellon will be 80 years old on March 24.

Attorneys believe that from three to five weeks may be needed to complete the hearing, which has been in progress a month.

The controversy between the three times Republican secretary of the treasury and the now Democratic supervised bureau of internal revenue appears to have simmered down to a question of an "avoidance or evasion" issue.

Several other prominent men were named at the time the revenue bureau announced its citation of Mellon, and, his friends aver, the others all have paid the monetary penalty rather than incur the expense and notoriety of a legal protest.

BOLIVIAN TROOPS REPULSED; FLEE CHACO POSITIONS

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 10.—(AP)—Bolivian troops were repulsed in a costly surprise attack in the Villa Montes sector today, the ministry of defense announced.

After intensive artillery preparations, it was said, Bolivia threw two columns of troops toward the Paraguayan lines. Paraguay counter-attacked immediately, compelling the enemy to flee. The Bolivians left a number of dead, the communique said.

INSULL'S TRIAL EXPECTED TO GO TO JURY TODAY

Samuel Insull, former utilities magnate, will be cross-examined this morning by Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora, who is seeking to send him to prison on a charge of embezzling $66,000 from the Middle West Utilities company.

Attorneys for the defense and state agreed yesterday that the case is likely to be submitted to the jury this afternoon.

Prosecutor O'Hora is expected to question Insull on his "good intention" defense by asking him to explain why he should flee to Turkey and stubbornly fight every effort of the United States to bring him back for trial.

Prior to the cross-examination, which may not last more than an hour, Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, counsel for Insull, will put three more character witnesses on the stand before closing his case.

Final arguments probably will be limited to one hour for each side, and after Judge Cornelius J. Harrington has given the jury its final instructions that body will retire to deliberate upon their verdict.

Friends Can Be Big Help to a Fellow Held in Jail

Walter Bade, 21 years old, 3119 North Paulina street, and Leon Pryor, 22 years old, 1826 Melrose street, were in the Sheffield avenue police station early yesterday visiting a prisoner. They overheard Edward Markiewicz, 33 years old, 2418 Lotus avenue, lament that his wife didn't know he was locked up for disorderly conduct so she could supply his bond. Obtaining his address they offered to drive his wife to the station. Instead, according to Mrs. Markiewicz, they drove her to a dark alley and robbed her of $34. Police promptly arrested them.

NATION EYING CHANGING TREND OF GOVERNMENT

Issue Brought to Front by NRA Debate.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Contemporary happenings are concentrating attention as never before upon the current trend of our scheme of government away from its traditional form. The subject bids fair to bulk large in the forthcoming debate in congress on the extension of the NRA.

The question of the extent to which we have embraced a dictatorship was revived the other day when President Roosevelt with a mere nod of the head upset the business equilibrium of two continents, dispensing profits and losses as easily as a Roman emperor by a flick of the thumb decreed life or death to the gladiators in the arena.

Johnson Speech Recalled.

The view held by many authorities that the twilight of the states is setting in was emphasized when Gen. Hugh Johnson said in his Providence speech that state lines will never be allowed to interfere with the regulation and control of business enterprise by the central government.

The New Dealers are looking to the Supreme court to erase state lines when it passes upon the numerous federal District court decisions which have held unconstitutional the attempt of the NRA to dominate intrastate enterprise. If the court should uphold the decision the New Dealers will propose an amendment to the constitution to circumvent the impediment to the extension of federal authority into state jurisdiction.

By many New Dealers the view is held that the states are relics of an outmoded political environment and that the inexorable necessity of effective public control of new and complex economic forces is evolving a new structure which will consist of a strong central government and forty-eight subordinate provinces.

Control by Purse Strings.

This trend was noted in the federal aid legislation before the New Deal. Under this legislation Washington directed state activities through control of the purse strings. The movement has proceeded apace under the New Deal. States must conform to policies made in Washington under pain of withdrawal of relief funds and public works grants for disobedience.

Washington drafted the state NRA legislation enacted by state legislatures. For the last two months Mr. Ickes' legal staf has been drafting state laws for passage by the legislatures now in session to enable states to take advantage of grants under the pending 5 billion dollar work relief bill. The states are awaiting receipt from Washington of similar ready-to-pass legislation to carry out state functions in the forthcoming old age pension and unemployment insurance systems which are being so devised as to bring the states under further control by the central government.

Power Is Being Tested.

At the moment the power of Washington to dictate to local government through decrees of federal officials controling grants of federal funds is being tested in the case of Mr. Ickes' ruling that Robert Moses must relinquish either his position in the New York City administration, his principal source of income, or his connection with the Tri-Borough Bridge authority, which is receiving public works funds. Mr. Moses, who is a Republican, incurred the ill will of the President by criticism of the New Deal.

Mr. Roosevelt has been at great pains from time to time to disabuse the public mind of any uneasy notion that he is by way of becoming a Mussolini or a Hitler or Stalin. He has emphasized that the autocratic powers with which he has been clothed were freely bestowed by congress within constitutional limitation [though the Supreme court decided otherwise in the NRA oil case] and he has pointed out that he is exercising no power that has not been delegated and that cannot be withdrawn by the chosen representatives of the people. No impairment of our Republican institutions in that, Mr. Roosevelt maintains.

Incident at White House.

The incident that set tongues wagging anew on the dictatorship theme took place at a White House press conference. A reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt whether in his opinion commodity prices had risen sufficiently to warant stabilization. The President countered with the query whether international or internal stabilization were meant. Internal stabilization, the reporter replied. Mr. Roosevelt then answered in the negative, explaining that in his opinion it is still true that the debtor must pay his debt in dearer dollars than when he contracted the debt.

By devaluing the dollar and raising prices the debtor has been relieved enormously but not sufficiently, Mr. Roosevelt thought. Then a reporter asked if the President's remarks pointed to a further devaluation of the dollar. At this Mr. Roosevelt laughed, threw up both hands, and shook his head without directly replying to the question.

Traders Are Puzzled.

A few minutes later the account of the incident was flying by telegraph and cable to the uttermost parts of the earth. It electrified the stock markets and the commodity markets and the money changers abroad. Puzzled traders leaped to the conclusion that in order to raise prices further the President must contemplate a further devaluation of the dollar or currency inflation.

He has already devalued the dollar 41 per cent and has the power under the Thomas amendment to depress it another nine points. And in the business community there is an ever growing fear that multiplying expenditures of the government and the constantly increasing deficit will bring currency inflation in their train at no distant date.

The result was that the prices of stocks and commodities shot upward and government bond prices slumped. Millions of dollars were being made and lost, not only at home but abroad, where the exchange value of the dollar suddenly fell. Confusion reigned at the treasury, not only because quick action was required to bolster up the government bond market by purchases of its own securities by the government, but because the slump was embarrassing to the forthcoming refunding of $2,300,000,000 of Liberty bonds.

Treasury officials almost literally tore their hair in dismay, one of them crying out: "Why does he (meaning the President) do these things?" For it was not the first time that Mr. Roosevelt by a chance remark had upset the markets.

The treasury was deluged with messages from the financial world imploring to be told what it all meant. Secretary Morgenthau telephoned the President and shortly thereafter there issued from the White House secretariat a statement that nothing the President had said implied any contemplated further devaluation of the dollar. Prices of stocks quickly fell to a point lower than before.

There was much wondering whether the President had intended by his remarks to reverse the trend of the dollar abroad, which has been going up in terms of the declining pound sterling. Whatever his motive the incident was an illustration of the vast power over the fortunes of men wielded by the emergency dictatorship set up by congress.

HUNTS PAINTING OF WOMAN THAT SHOCKED PARIS

Story of Nude Beauty with Mask Revived.

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—Sought somewhere in America is a painting of a woman, nude except for a mask, which once caused a scandalous furor in Paris, a duel, and much speculation as to the woman's identity. It is wanted now for an exhibition of the works of its painter, Henri Gervex.

Its disappearance since it was sold in the United States has revived the story of its mysterious model and the mask, which so tantalized suspicious husbands that Gervex almost lost an eye in combat with one of them.

The painting was labeled simply "La Femme au Masque" when it was shown shortly after its completion in 1886. It was a daring study for that day, even in Paris. Soon gossips thought they recognized the model but opinions differed as to who she was.

Beauty's Husband Shot.

The irate husband of a Parisian beauty, suspecting the portrait was that of his wife, received a bullet in the stomach in the duel to which he challenged Gervex.

Now it appears that all suspicions were groundless. Mme Gervex, the painter's widow, who is seeking the picture for the exposition of her husband's work, discloses that the model was merely a professional, "a very pretty red-head named Marie Renard."

Originally bought by an oriental, said Mme. Gervex, "The Masked Woman" was later reported in the collection of Stanford White.

"I wrote Mrs. White asking her to lend me the picture for the exhibition," said Mme. Gervex, "but she answered that it was not in her possession, although she has a copy."

Blonde Venus Chosen.

Nudes have become more commonplace than ever in Paris, and more popular. Nudism reached a climax today with the selection of Jacqueline Rhotelin, a slender blonde, as the "1935 Venus." She was chosen from twenty-three contestants wearing only cardboard fig leaves before a large audience in a Paris concert hall.

Joan Warner, American fan dancer from Chicago, gets $350 a week here.

RELIGIOUS LEADERS WANT U. S. TO HALT NAVAL MANEUVERS

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—An appeal to President Roosevelt signed by 198 religious leaders in all parts of the country, protesting against the prospective naval maneuvers in the Pacific, was made public here today by Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk, secretary of the department of international justice and good will of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Bishops, college presidents, pastors, missionary officials, editors and executive officers of many church councils were among the signers. The letter reads in part as follows:

"We have every confidence that the maintenance of peace is one of the important objectives of your administration. We rejoice in the leadership which you have exercised in the improvement of our relations with Latin America.

"We are convinced, however, that the projected naval maneuvers tentatively scheduled to be held in the Pacific during the period from May 3 to June 10 will, if held, seriously complicate the task.

"We beg of you, Mr. President, as the commander in chief of the armed forces of the United States, and in the name of peace, to alter the plans for these maneuvers so that they may be held, if at all, under such circumstances as will not occasion suspicion and ill will in the far east."

MENACE LAWYER FOR TRIO HELD IN KILLING OF KING

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—Threats of assassination have failed to frighten Georges Desbons, French lawyer hired by American Croats, from his task of defending the three alleged terrorists accused of complicity in the assassination of King Alexander I. of Jugo-Slavia.

Death for all three prisoners—Ivan Ratich, Vronomir Pospisil, and Mio Kraj—will be asked by the prosecution when their trial takes place, probably in June or July. Desbons, who will ask complete acquittal, disclosed that he has received several anonymous letters threatening death since he undertook the defense.

Known by European Croats as an expert on Balkan problems, Desbons was retained by Croat Nationalists in America, whose headquarters are at Pittsburgh, Pa. He is preparing, said informed sources, to protest against introduction of what the police call the prisoners' confessions. Their statements, Desbons will contend, were taken by interpreters who were functionaries of Juvo-Slav legations and "therefore tinctured with heavy bias."

Desbons says his clients are not "thugs or bandits," but "patriots living only for the liberty of their country, completely dedicated to Croat independence, even at the sacrifice of their lives." They are in jail at Marseilles.

FEW HARD ROADS IN 4 COUNTIES; TRAVEL IN MUD

Iuka Doctor-Senator Uses Horse and Buggy.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iuka, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—W. L. Finn, known in Springfield as the senator for the 42d district, was at home this week-end in this southern Illinois village of 400 population. Here he is known as Dr. Finn, the physician who has been delivering babies and attending the sick and dying among the farmers of four counties for 36 years. Iuka is in Marion county.

In Springfield, since his election in 1928, the senator has been an ardent advocate of low cost rural road construction. THE TRIBUNE automobile editor came here to get the viewpoint on highway development of this farmers' legislative representative and small town doctor.

"You can't see my viewpoint from an automobile," said Dr. Finn as we climbed into a buggy behind a lively team of horses. "A car can't get through the mud holes on many of our main thoroughfares."

Horses Trot Out of Village.

The horses trotted south out of the village into a territory pictured on the map as a roughly drawn rectangle of 625 square miles bordered by expensive concrete highways but penetrated by but fifteen miles of all weather road.

Turning at a crossroads where children of the Wild Cat school were playing around a well, the horses slid, slipped, splattered, and splashed another mile or two up and down hills of clay passing small farmhouses surrounded by worn out fields and by scrub oak woods. The doctor waved to men in patched overalls loitering about unpainted barns, calling them by their first names.

Not Many Cars Pass There.

We pulled into a farmyard to meet Mrs. Nettie Michael, 65 years old, with twenty-three grandchildren. The doctor telephones her when a baby is about to be born within a radius of five miles of her home when he's afraid he won't arrive on time. She tramps across fields to attend the mother as an old fashioned grandmother would.

"Many cars been through here this winter?" she was asked.

"Land sakes, no," she answered, peering over her gold rimmed glasses.

The horses jogged on. The doctor pointed to a house where a child had died this winter because it took the physician from 9:30 in the morning to 3:30 in the afternoon to cover the eleven miles from town. We entered a township with 1,500 population and with not a single road passable by automobile during most of the winter and early spring.

Battle Hard for Roads.

"If a legislator can get a road for a territory like this," said the senator, "he is certain to carry the votes."

This explains why the farmers' representatives in Springfield battle for a large share of the highway department's expenditures. Some of them sacrifice patronage jobs to Cook county's delegates who have been more aggressive in getting patronage than in obtaining a fair portion of highway expenditures for Chicago and the metropolitan area.

"The people of my four counties," the senator continued, "are not unreasonable. They are not asking for expensive pavements. All they ask is for all weather roads of low cost."

In the past, downstate legislators sought and obtained an excessive mileage of slab. A Chicago Motor club study found 1,609 miles of concrete where trafic did not justify this expensive pavement and where a type of surface treatment in keeping with the volume of usage could have been built for $32,000,000 less than was spent. If this $32,000,000 had been spent on low cost all weather roads, Illinois today would not have approximately 68,000 miles of dirt.

The team was halted before a one room school house of the type that is being eliminated in other states with more all weather roads permitting bus service for consolidated schools. Inside, in front of a class of 24 ranging in age from 6 to 15 years, stood the teacher, W. G. Hays, in a frayed shirt without a necktie.

Walk Through Mud.

"We have forty-two pupils enrolled but our average attendance last month was twenty-eight," said Mr. Hays, who has been a teacher in these parts for eighteen years. "The children just don't come to school when they don't feel like it. They walk here from their homes through the mud."

Illinois, with thirty per cent of its mileage paved, has 10,000 one teacher schools while Indiana, with seventy per cent of its mileage paved, has 2,148 one teacher schools and Ohio, with 60 per cent of its mileage paved, has 4,250 one teacher schools.

Sen. Finn was a member of a commission appointed by former Gov. Louis Emmerson that mapped a future program for highway construction in Illinois that called for the expenditure of a larger portion of the state's road revenue in cities, which produce the bulk of the revenue, and in extending the rural mileage in low cost surface treatment rather than continuing the practice of building a limited mileage of expensive pavement. Robert Kingery, Gov. Horner's director of public works, was also a member of that commission.

DOG AIDS IN RESCUE OF ALPINE CLIMBER WITH A BROKEN LEG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRENOBLE, France, March 10.—Abandoned three times by rescue parties in the snow on a mountain peak in temperature ranging between 20 and 30 degrees below zero, M. Rudelle, a 32 year old Parisian who on Friday morning fell and broke his leg, finally was brought safely to the town of Valloire this afternoon. He owes his life not only to men, but also to a police dog. The animal prevented Rudelle from freezing to death by lying upon him.

Rudelle was climbing with four companions in a Galibier mountain pass when the accident occurred. One man stood by while the others sought help. At midnight Friday Alpine soldiers reached Rudelle, but a blizzard prevented moving him. After feeding and covering him they departed, leaving the mountain climber in the care of his friend.

Yesterday morning a second group of Alpine soldiers with a sled tried moving him, but the sled broke. They returned to Valloire with Rudelle's companion, but left the police dog to guard him. A third party tried to reach him in the afternoon, but failed. Two Chamonix guides and two porters ascended the mountain last night and brought the man to safety.

DR. OTIS MALLOW KILLS HIMSELF AT HINES HOSPITAL

Dr. Otis B. Mallow, chief of the diagnostic center at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, shot and killed himself yesterday in the cottage on the hospital grounds where he lived with a nephew, Herbert Rothrock. Dr. Mallow was 59 years old.

In a note which he left, addressed to Dr. Hugh Scott, administrator at the hospital, he declared he "could no longer endure the suffering." Dr. Scott explained that Dr. Mallow had been in ill health for some time past, and only last week returned from Florida, where he had gone for rest and treatment.

Dr. Mallow was born in Washington Courthouse, O., and received his medical degree at the University of Cincinnati school of medicine. He practiced at Detroit for some time, and at the outbreak of the war entered the army medical corps.

He had been at the Hines hospital since 1925. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Alma Rothrock, and the two nephews, Herbert and Arthur Rothrock.

GERMAN POLICE RAID CHURCHES; ARREST PASTORS

Nazi Creed Is Denounced from Pulpits.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Arrests, interference with Protestant church services and steps to ban the synod opposing the pro-government church régime formed a sharp Nazi answer today to the confessional synod's scorching indictment of the Nazi religious attitude.

Secret police in Pomerania issued a proclamation forbidding the reading of the document from pulpits.

A few minutes before services scheduled this morning, groups of plain clothes men visited churches and confiscated copies of the declaration. They arrested the pastor of the large Stettin Church of the Cross. He was released after two hours in custody. Following police visits the congregations went home.

Great Tension Reported.

Similar police actions were taken in other Pomeranian communities, from which came reports of great tension and antagonism to the interference. The propaganda ministry admitted two more Pomeranian pastors were placed in temporary custody.

Throughout Silesia Nazi officials started proceedings against confessional synods. It was reliably reported that authorities planned to ban the opposition synod in all parts of German Silesia.

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, militant leader of the fight against the unification program of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, said "all must know there is a bitter propaganda campaign against the church underway. We much fight against this and for active, not passive christianity. Jews are not the only ones who crucified Christ."

Document Read from Pulpits.

With intense solemnity the document attacking the Nazi religious stand was read from the pulpits of Prussia to packed congregations. It was the most outspoken organized attack since Adolf Hitler's rise to power. It denounced National Socialism's philosophy as anti-Christian, idolatrous and subversive. In reverential silence congregations listened to the attack upon the government.

It was learned that police throughout Prussia had issued decrees against the reading of the manifestoes, hence a number of pastors braved possibly serious charges.

The Rev. Mr. Niemoeller's church in suburban Dahlem has been the focal point of the controversy among German worshipers. In this church the crowd was so great that a large overflow heard services and the reading of the document in a nearby parish house.

Reports were at hand of religious troubles in several provincial centers.

Priest Is Arrested.

A Catholic priest named Leffer was arrested in Rostock for "slandering" Hitler and other officials.

Bishop Eduard O'Rourke of Danzig, in a pastoral letter, warned against "false prophets dressed in Catholic and other clerical garb" and assailed the flood of pamphlets, books and reading matter of a liberalistic nature aimed, he said, at abandonment of the Bible and the Vatican.

The "Evangelical Church Congregation" at Hamburg was banned under the statute for the protection of the state and the people because "its pastor had changed from the Jewish to the Christian religion and exerted baneful influence among his flock."

RUMORS SAY GERMANS WILL MILITARIZE AIR SPORT ASSOCIATION

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Rumors became current in foreign circles today that Germany would in the near future, perhaps this week, notify the powers that she is placing her civilian "air sport" association on a military basis.

This would mean that she is creating out of the civilian luftsportsverband a military air defense corps, which is forbidden her under article 198 of the Versailles treaty.

Germany's purpose, it was said, is to make clear to the world that she is determined to carry out the present program regardless of the Versailles pact.

Officials sought to explain the rumor as merely a trial balloon launched in England in view of Monday's debate on British defenses in the house of commons. Members of the luftsportsverband recently adopted military or semi-military designations suggestive of officers' ranks.

The luftsportsverband was founded in July, 1933, to bring all German civilian flying organizations under single control. Its president, Bruno Loerzer, bears the title of "air commodore."

EXILED WOMAN SPEAKER WARNS OF NAZI MENACE

A united front against the propaganda of Fascism and Hitlerism was demanded yesterday by Miss Tony Sender, former Socialist member of the German Reichstag and now an exile from Nazi Germany. Miss Sender spoke before a meeting of the Chicago committee for the defense of human rights against Nazism at the La Salle hotel.

"A vast army of secret agents with unlimited resources is spreading the propaganda of Nazi Germany and of Fascism in the United States and South America," Miss Sender said. "This influence is being used to supplant the political organizations of your own country."

SEEK INDICTMENT OF 7 IN $100,000 WILL PLOT TODAY

State to Press Charges in Kelly Death Case.

Indictments charging forgery and conspiracy against the woman and six men involved in the fake will plot to gain the $100,000 estate of James Thomas Kelly, the 55 year old ex-convict mystery man of West Madison street lodging houses, will be asked before the grand jury today. Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin said yesterday he is ready for these prosecutions, regardless of the outcome of the investigation to determine whether or not Kelly was poisoned.

Kelly, who died Feb. 26, was buried last Tuesday in the Lithuanian National cemetery in Justice Park and Probate Judge John F. O'Connell subsequently signed an order for the exhumation of the body so that the exact cause of Kelly's death might be ascertained.

Names of 7 Charged by State.

Those against whom indictments will be sought are Mrs. Bella Butman, in whose home at 6743 Irving Park boulevard Kelly died; her son, Thomas, aged 21; Attorney Julius P. Waitches, John J. Bagdonas, undertaker, and Nicholas Radis, John Dailyde, and Paul P. Zalink, according to the prosecutor. All except the son have been sentenced to one year in jail by Judge O'Connell for contempt of court in faking the will.

"We will not be able to tell whether Kelly was poisoned until the chemical analysis of his organs is completed," Prosecutor Sherwin said. "There is no question, however, that the seven persons named did conspire to seize Kelly's estate through a fake will in which the bulk of his fortune was bequeathed to Mrs. Butman, who called herself Kelly's common law wife.

Mentions Other Death Rumors.

"There are rumors that other mysterious deaths are traceable to a tavern formerly operated by Mrs. Butman at 1707 South Halsted street. But nothing will be done about the rumors unless poison is found in Kelly's vital organs. As far as I know Mrs. Butman did not collect insurance on any of her deceased patrons.

"We are including Mrs. Butman's son in the list of those whose indictment will be asked because he admitted getting Kelly to sign a blank will form a few days prior to Kelly's death. The will presented in court bore a tracing of that signature and all the others admitted it was drawn up and witnessed after Kelly's death.

Seek Waitches' Testimony.

"Attorney Waitches will probably be asked to testify before the grand jury, provided he signs an immunity waiver. He has confessed and he will be able to explain the plot better than the others who do not speak English as well as he does."

Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator, said he had not unearthed any more of Kelly's hoardings in addition to the $46,000 found in eight bank accounts. He said he would drill open a safety box today that was rented by Kelly, and also will seek permission to open a box rented by Mrs. Butman who, after accepting Kelly as a lodger at 25 cents per day in the rooming house at 651 West Madison street, learned he had money and took him to her own home.

No relatives of Kelly, who served one jail term for larceny and a prison term for murder, have been located, Investigator Rubens declared.

'UPSIDE DOWN' GIRL SO IMPROVED MOTHER LEAVES HER BEDSIDE

Fall River, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Alyce Jane McHenry, 19 year old Omaha girl whose misplaced stomach attracted international attention has progressed so satisfactorily that her mother today for the first time left her daughter's bedside and got her first glimpse of the Atlantic ocean.

Since the operation Monday, through which Alyce Jane's stomach and other organs were brought down from the left chest to the abdominal cavity, Mrs. McHenry had been afraid to go beyond the girl's call.

Physicians reported the girl's temperature, respiration, and pulse as close to normal and her condition satisfactory. She slept well last night, except for occasional spells of pain.

The deluge of mail and presents continued unabated today, with the postoffice making special deliveries by truck. Today Alyce Jane received a string of pearls from Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mitchell of Philadelphia, who delivered it in person. Johnny Truesdale, young son of the surgeon who operated upon Alyce Jane, brought her a toy dog.

FEAR SIX DIE CROSSING ICE IN THEIR AUTO

Three Others Are Adrift on Floe in Lake Superior.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., March 10.—(AP)—Searching parties tonight traversed the ice covered Porte des Morts passage in a hunt for six men missing in an automobile since 11 a. m. when they set out on a road across the ice from the northern tip of Door county to Washington Island, their home.

The six, all of Washington Island, are: Ralph Wade, John Cornell, Raymond Richter, Roy Stover, Leroy Emerson and Norman Nelson.

They crossed from the island where they worked at commercial fishing yesterday and came here to spend the night. They last were seen driving their car across the beaten ice road to the island.

17 Miles Across Ice.

It is seventeen miles by ice between the mainland, separating Lake Michigan and Green Bay, and Washington Island. Between the two points is Plum Island, but the road forms an arc past Plum Island to avoid thin ice and open water.

The passage was named "Death's Door" by the early French settlers and explorers because of the treachery of its waters.

A plane was summoned to the search, but when it arrived from Escanaba, Mich., a heavy fog had risen and darkness made its use impractical.

Three Fishermen Adrift.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bayfield, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—Three young fishermen, adrift on an ice cake in Lake Superior, in the vicinity of the Apostle Islands, were the objects of a search tonight by the United States coast guard cutter Crawford and a number of volunteer searchers from this city.

Might Die from Exposure.

The three are without food, without means of making a fire, and with a biting northwest wind sweeping across the lake the fear was expressed that they might perish of exposure.

They are A. N. Anderson, A. R. Holman, and Louis Rowe, all of Washburn, Wis. With a fourth companion, Britton Day, also of Washburn, they had gone far out on the ice covered lake to "bob" for trout. Suddenly a floe, 150 feet in diameter, broke from the main body of ice and drifted rapidly away.

Speeds in Auto for Help.

Day was the only one not caught on this drifting piece, and he leaped into the automobile in which the four had come to drive back to Bayfield, some eighteen miles away, and bring help. By the time, however, the would-be rescuers could bring a boat the drifting ice floe had vanished from sight.

The United States coast guard station at Two Harbors, Minn., was called by telephone, and the Crawford was immediately launched to continue the search for the marooned young men.

FLYERS WILL TRY TO SAVE 60 MEN ON AN ICE FLOE

GURIEV, U. S. S. R., March 10.—(AP)—Airplanes prepared tonight to attempt to remove 60 fishermen from a floating ice field in the Caspian sea, where they have spent two days. No trace has been found of 31 others, who were believed to be on a part of the field which became detached from the main body at sea.

A rescue committee called for more planes after an army pilot discovered that earlier reports the principal group had reached shore were untrue. He located the ice field, about one mile square, 50 miles out at sea and dropped the men provisions and medicines.

Seventeen horses were marooned with the fishermen, whose number was 100 when the field broke from shore and was pushed to sea by a strong wind. Of these, nine are understood to have reached land.

Rescuers were hindered by a storm which swept this region, trapping some farmers transporting grain in carts across the steppes. Roads were blocked. Severe storms were reported on the Black sea, with some damage to shipping.

Ice Dealers Find Fodder Better Packing Than Straw

RUSSIAN PAPER CALLS HUEY LONG FASCIST PROPHET

MOSCOW, March 10.—(AP)—Huey Long, the United States senator, was held up to soviet readers today as a "Fascist prophet" in an editorial in "For Industralization," the organ of heavy industry.

"Without exaggeration the successes of Long, Coughlin & Co. [Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit] it is necessary to point out that the Fascist danger is assuming concrete form in the United States," the paper said.

Sees Movement Spreading.

"The organized charlatan society for sharing the wealth has spread its business to other states [than Louisiana]. There are already capitalists who do not fear this promised sharing and are financing different organizations of American Fascists."

Long's political importance itself is a symptom of Fascist tendencies, said the paper, and his recent polemic against Gen. Hugh S. Johnson casts a light upon events there.

Johnson also has capitalist support, the paper declared, saying he was backed by Bernard Baruch.

Calls Priest "Long's Twin."

After referring to Father Coughlin as "Long's twin," the paper charged that Long made use of his humble origin to deceive the people of the lower classes.

"His buffoonish thunderings against the Morgans show the extent of the charlatan demagogism of this Fascist prophet who has promised his followers a share of the Morgan millions," said the paper. "This chalatanism is creating its effect."

COUGHLIN URGES WAR ON FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM OF BANKING

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin urged members of his National Union for Social Justice today to join in a "declaration of independence" from what he termed the "financial torylism" of a stage coach economic system, "an economics of scarcity rather than the economics of plenty."

Father Coughlin listed twenty-seven charges against the federal reserve banking system, which, he said, held the power "with printing press and fountain pen . . . to expand or contract credit at will." He likened his charges to the historic "twenty-seven points" of Thomas Jefferson.

He blamed the federal reserve system for promoting the growth of large corporations, driving America into the war to "secure the credit of the British empire," extending "worthless" foreign loans, permitting circulation of "fictional" credit money, invasion of high government councils, the press, and the schools, opposing tax reforms, and arraying class against class.

OFFICIALS BLAST BOMB THROWERS' TRUST FROM CITY

"The bomb trust has been blasted out of Chicago, where the 'pineapple' once was the favorite gang method of terrorism," according to a story sent out yesterday by the Associated Press.

Recent figures show that Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney, in coöperation with the courts and other agencies, have held robberies and other crimes of violence to a minimum, says the news gathering association. It cites figures to show that bombings here have become almost negligible.

"The high mark of blastings in labor and underworld wars was reached in 1928 and 1929, when 116 pineapples were touched off each year in campaigns of terrorism directed mainly against legitimate businesses," reads the A. P. story. "The Employers' association in 1930 totaled the bombings of the preceding ten years at 851.

"But there's a different picture in Chicago today. From 103 bombings in 1931 the figure dropped last year to fifty-nine, and there have been about a dozen bombings so far this year, most of them ineffectual, with little property damage. The report of State's Attorney Courtney showed 87 bombs caused $35,476 damage in 1932, 79 wrought $8,648 damage in 1933, and 59 did $9,765 damage last year."

DEAN MATHEWS TO SPEAK.

Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean emeritus of the University of Chicago divinity school, will address the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion at luncheon today in the Hotel Sherman on the subject, "Asia Looks at America."

HUEY LONG FOE, HEAD OF SQUARE DEALERS, RESIGNS PRESIDENCY

Baton Rouge, La., March 10.—(AP)—Ernest J. Bourgeois was declared tonight to have resigned the presidency of the Anti-Huey Long Square Deal association of Louisiana by Chester P. St. Amant, association secretary-treasurer, because of disagreement over "secrecy" in the organization.

ERNEST J. BOURGEOIS.

St. Amant, who with others joined with the 28 year old Bourgeois two months ago to form the Square Deal association to fight Senator Huey P. Long's dictatorship, issued a written statement bearing the name of Fred C. O'Rourke Jr., another association leader, saying Bourgeois had resigned.

O'Rouke was designated in the statement as the new president of the Square Dealers, who have militantly demanded repeal of all of Long's "dictatorial measures."

RFC CONTINUES SILENCE POLICY ON LIQUOR LOAN

Vinegar Plant Merely an Alcohol Blind.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Clyde, N. Y., March 10.—[Special.]—This village of 2,000 is aflame with gossip concerning revelations that followed the recent raid upon the big vinegar factory of the Clyde Products company—a raid which disclosed that alcohol presumably withdrawn for the manufacture of white distilled vinegar was being diverted for beverage purposes.

Rumors of varying degrees of credibility were garnered easily by a reporter seeking to discover how and why the Reconstruction Finance company decided to advance a loan of $25,000 to a concern which, according to charges now on file in the United States District court, withdrew 74,730 gallons of alcohol ostensibly for a tax-free purpose but actually for conversion into beverages.

But facts were more difficult to gather. Just as in New York, where RFC officials refused to make public records concerning the loan, those here acquainted with the circumstances of the loan maintained a tight lipped silence.

Head of Firm Silent.

For two days Charles L. Noble, president of the one-man company which he built up from a small cider mill and which ranks in size with the biggest vinegar factories in the country, was sought for an interview. He was always "out of town" to the reporter.

Noble is named in the libel in the federal court against the personal property seized upon the premises as the man responsible for the diversion of the alcohol "in fraud of the internal revenue laws and with the design and intent to avoid payment of the tax imposed thereon."

Federal agents are said to be examining his books, but no other charges have been placed against him and no attempt made to arrest him.

Noble is pictured by his neighbors as a mild eccentric who had little education, but is a shrewd business man. He is not a Democratic politician as reported by a Syracuse correspondent to THE TRIBUNE who confused Noble with a politician named Charles A. Noble.

30 Thrown Out of Jobs.

He is the "big man" of Clyde and the closing up of his concern threw more than thirty men out of work and burdened the relief rolls in the village with a score of these workers. Naturally, the villagers are anxious to see the vinegar factory reopened. One widely circulated report is that arrangements have been made whereby the factory will reopen within a week.

There has been evident no haste in the legal proceedings started to libel the property. The United States marshal may not destroy the property libeled until a decree of condemnation and sale is made by the court. All those interested in the matter have until March 25 to answer the libel.

Frank E. Barry of Syracuse, who has been charged with having attempted to bribe two federal agents by offering them $250 a month to "close their eyes" to anything they may have noticed going on at the plant, was arraigned last Thursday but the case was continued until March 20.

Warehouse Firm Exonerated.

Publication of the name of the Douglas-Guardian Warehouse corporation in connection with the raid and subsequent disclosures caused officials of that company to point out that their corporation was in nowise concerned with the charges against Noble. An investigation substantiated that claim.

Noble pledged with the RFC a number of warehouse receipts for vinegar and vinegar stock. No apple brandy was stored in any of the corporation's tanks. The federal raiders who gave out a number of statements at the time of the raid were said to have confused "hard cider" with apple brandy.

Loan Details Hidden.

Much of the confusion attending public reports of the raid and the RFC loan has been caused, it was pointed out, by refusal of RFC officials to reveal circumstances of the loan.

Careful investigation scarcely could have failed to reveal diversion of alcohol for beverage purposes, it was apparent.

The Clyde Products company operated on a main highway just east of Clyde. In addition to huge storage tanks, there are two big warehouses nearby.

A youth in charge at the factory would not answer questions concerning whether RFC examiners had inspected the plant prior to approval of the $25,000 loan. It was recalled, in this connection, that the raiders had declared that only 20 per cent of the factory's business was devoted to the manufacture of vinegar.

Discharged workmen were approached but they either refused to talk or insisted they knew nothing of the diversion of alcohol. Their one concern, they said, was to get their jobs back.

RAIL UNION HURLS STRIKE THREAT AT MEDIATION BOARD

Protests Split in Ranks on Representation Vote.

A strongly worded protest denouncing the decisions of the national railway mediation board was telegraphed to that body in Washington yesterday following a meeting here of 70 national and local officers of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The protest included a threat that the union would call a strike of railroad employés if the board continued in its "inconsistent and unjustifiable decisions." This threat was made despite the fact that the railway labor act provides that railroad employés may not strike without first submitting their controversy to mediators and to arbitration.

Protest Separate Voting.

The brotherhood officials complain that the board in ordering a vote on the question of who will represent the employés in their dealings with the railroad companies, have directed that yard foremen and yard helpers vote as separate groups. The B. R. T. maintains that such a division upsets precedents of 20 years and imperils the unity of the employés in their dealings with the companies.

The Order of Railway Conductors' union, which formerly admitted only passenger and freight conductors, last year amended its by-laws to permit other railroad employés to become members. Since that time the O. R. C. has been active in soliciting B. R. T. members to join the former union. The O. R. C. has asked the mediation board to hold a vote of the yard crews of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad to determine which union will represent them.

Refuse and Threaten Strike.

The message sent to the board yesterday by A. F. Whitney of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the trainmen's brotherhood, declared in part:

"The Chicago yard men will positively refuse to participate in any vote on the representation question which comprehends splitting yard forces and this brotherhood proposes to place responsibility where it belongs.

"Your board is advised that any decision on its part to separate yard foremen, helpers, car retarder operators and switchtenders on any vote taken on the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad, or any other line, will be construed as an official signal for the men involved to leave the service."

In commenting on the action taken by the brotherhood, Mr. Whitney declared that the board, organized by the Roosevelt administration last year, is party to a general scheme to disrupt and disorganize all railroad unions.

"We are satisfied that this scheme exists but we are prepared to nip it in the bud," he declared.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY PLANS.

The Chicago division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the ladies' auxiliary will celebrate St. Patrick's day with a dance and card party in the Morrison hotel on Saturday, March 16. National President Michael W. Delaney is chairman.

2,014 ORPHANS PUT IN HOMES BY ASSOCIATION

The Catholic Home Finding Association of Illinois has placed a total of 2,014 homeless children in family homes during the past 20 years, it was announced yesterday at the organization's 20th annual meeting in the Palmer house.

Of this number 1,339 were legally adopted, Harry J. Lynch, superintendent, stated in his annual report. Other children, not adopted, have been cared for and educated until able to take care of themselves.

During the year ending Feb. 28, 61 children were placed in homes, he reported. Of these, 36 already have been legally adopted, five have been returned and two have been transferred.

The association, a Knights of Columbus activity, was founded 20 years ago with the slogan, "A home for every homeless child; a child for every childless home."

John T. Lillis was reelected president for the 20th consecutive time.

CUBA.

Washington can hardly avoid its substantial share of the blame for the growing disorders in Cuba.

In 1933 the state department succeeded in backing the wrong horse for the Cuban presidency. In 1934 we negotiated and ratified a treaty which, in effect, repealed the Platt amendment. Since then President Roosevelt has promulgated a trade treaty with Cuba which was intended to improve economic conditions and thereby promote the pacification of the island. In fact, the recent disorders appear to be on a scale unprecedented since the Spanish war.

A few weeks ago Col. Batista, who climbed to the military dictatorship of the island over the ruins of our diplomacy, said he had assurances that if the worst came to the worst American troops would be summoned to maintain order. Whether he had actually received such assurances we do not know, but we recall no indignant denials from Washington.

Certainly no one in this country should be astonished if our government finds itself obliged to intervene sooner or later. There are many American citizens in Cuba and a billion of American investments. Obviously the continuance of disorder imperils American lives and property. If our government declines to intervene on behalf of its own citizens, it can hardly fail to take steps on behalf of European nationals and their property, for not to do so would be an invitation to the European nations to intervene directly.

Such situations are familiar to all students of Latin-American relations. The Cuban problem is not a new one, but the solution of it has been made needlessly difficult by the reckless adventurings of our administration. The repeal of the Platt amendment, under which we had the right to intervene to maintain order in Cuba, has not made intervention less likely, but has only served to cast doubt upon the legality of such measures when taken.

By contributing to the creation of a military autocracy in Cuba we have provoked disorder. By raising false hopes of improved economic conditions we have invited discontent. By repudiating any right to intervene we have encouraged Cubans to shoot foreigners and burn foreign property, confident that foreign military force will not be landed in Cuba. And now we are confronted with the probability that we must take precisely the action which we have just pledged ourselves not to take.

Perhaps nothing which the United States could have done would have averted revolutionary uprisings in Cuba, but it is altogether certain that wherever of late our diplomacy has touched the situation matters have gone from bad to worse. Every responsible official in Washington has reason to blush with shame at this record of stupidity and ineptitude.

LET'S STAGGER THE SERVICE.

During the coming summer the rail lines operating between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis are going to transform their rights of way into an interesting laboratory to test the relative merits of Diesel streamlined, steam streamlined and standard passenger trains. The North Western is already in the field with its standard type 400 amply demonstrating that a schedule of "four hundred miles in four hundred minutes" can be maintained even during difficult winter operation. The Burlington's Zephyr type, articulated unit, and the Milwaukee's streamlined, light weight train are due to enter service within the next few months.

In the interest of the traveling public as well as the railways themselves we wish to caution against the usual railway practice of duplicating services. By "duplicating" we mean the customary procedure of adopting in the installation of a new train the precise time of departure of a successful train operated over the line of a competitor.

Economical operation of the Burlington's Diesel driven train would dictate a round trip within ordinary waking hours, as she will carry no sleepers. This would necessitate at least one morning service to the Twin Cities. Why would this not be successful? The private motorist, the principal competitor, usually makes his start immediately after breakfast in order to negotiate the distance in daylight. Morning departure from Minneapolis would permit connection at Chicago with the fast afternoon trains and planes to New York. Further studies of traffic flow and train connections will also disclose a schedule for the Milwaukee's trains that will not interfere with that of either the North Western or Burlington.

We are convinced that the rival services should be so staggered as to provide frequent departures of fast trains from each center of population. In this manner only can the gross total of railway travel be increased, which in the long run is the desired result that will prove most beneficial to all three roads. Frequency and convenience of service are as important as speed.

DEFICIENCY JUDGMENTS.

Throughout the depression, particularly in farming areas, deficiency judgments in foreclosure proceedings have been a fruitful source of unrest. Farmers have felt these judgments to be unfair, and not without reason. Before the mortgage was made the lender had made a careful inspection of the property to determine its value as security. The size of the loan was determined by the valuation which the lender placed upon the property. The general practice was to advance considerably less than the going value of the farm.

With the depression the price of farms, which had been declining for a number of years, slumped still further. Many farmers were unable to meet their obligations. Mortgages were foreclosed and only then many farmers discovered that they had offered something more than their farms as security for their loans. They had signed notes pledging themselves, as well as their farms, to repay what had been borrowed.

When, at foreclosure sale, the farm yielded less than the amount of the note, the courts were obliged to issue deficiency judgments for the balance. Those judgments were enforceable against any other property possessed by the farmer then or in future. That seemed unfair to the farmers, and their attitude is one which we can share. (It is interesting in this connection to observe that South Dakota did enact a law forbidding deficiency judgments. This law has just been amended to permit deficiency judgments on loans made by federal lending agencies. Uncle Sam refused to lend money unless he could have more security than a pawnbroker demands.)

The law in Illinois regarding deficiency judgments might well be altered. No one should be prevented from signing a note under which a deficiency judgment can be obtained, but it should be possible also to pledge only the property as security and to render such obligations readily acceptable as investments. No doubt the borrower who pledges his full credit would, in the long run, receive better terms, as of course he should, but the man who wishes to limit his liability should be permitted to do so without impairing the usefulness of that kind of mortgage note in the market.

OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.

President Roosevelt's message to congress advocating a ship subsidy is further evidence of his infinite capacity to spend other people's money to no good purpose. Together with other ship subsidy advocates, he proceeds on the theory that we must always be less efficient in shipbuilding and operation than foreign competitors. There is nothing new in the arguments advanced. Wage standards in the United States are presumed to be so high that we are unable to construct or man vessels that may be operated on the high seas in competition with subsidized foreign ships, but if we give the matter a little intelligent thought we must arrive at the inescapable conclusion that these conditions apply with equal force to the cargo as to the vessel—and the cargo consists of American exports of automobiles, aeroplanes, motorcycles, radios, and a long list of highly manufactured articles, to say nothing of agricultural commodities.

Shipbuilding is an old and extremely backward occupation, and the same is true of ship operation. If American shipbuilders will construct unsinkable ships—and they can—will make them fireproof—and they can—and will modernize the lines below and above water, produce ships largely comparable in efficiency to automobile and aeroplane machinery, will install motor lifeboats, for no modern sailors can nor will install operating mechanisms comparable to those used in every modern enterprise, American commerce will cover the seas and will drive out the antiquated hulks of other countries.

THE CHAMP IS DOWN—LONG LIVE THE CHAMP!

The Golden Gloves tournament is at once the impetus and the barometer for the improvement of boxing skill in America. The influence which it exerts on the development of the manly sport was demonstrated more forcibly than ever this year by a starting field which embraced more than 10,000 amateur fighters. The final two rounds Friday night demonstrated the constant improvement in the skill and power of the contestants when all four of last year's champions who had survived the preliminary rounds were eliminated in the semi-finals or finals. Chicagoland and the Mississippi valley have a formidable team of representatives for the bouts with the New York champions and the later international contests with the Italians.

Editorial of the Day

THE BEST CAMPAIGN.

[New York Times.]

Police returns from the Chicago primary last week show that nearly 47 per cent of the registered vote was cast. Yet the weather was nasty. There had been no real contest. The result was certain. There had been no massmeetings. Those old familiar faces, "lethargy" and "apathy," seemed to be everywhere. Mayor Kelly "made no campaign." He didn't have to. He had made it and was continuing to make it in his office. He got an "unequaled" plurality. How did he do it? Why did the people of Chicago give him an unparalleled vote of confidence?

Because he had turned one of the most ill governed of cities into one of the best governed. "Savings in pay rolls, supplies, interest, and other items," says THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, "have aggregated more than $80,000,000." He has made deep cuts in the cost of government. Instead of spending greatly he has saved greatly. He has put the finances of the city upon their feet again:

> The floating debt has been greatly reduced and in consequence the cost of borrowed money has declined to something like a normal interest rate. Even more dramatic has been the wiping out of the arrears in wage and salary payments of city and school employés.

These are memorable achievements, but he has done more. Under his administration the police have dealt effectively with the gangs of criminals that were long the cardinal shame of Chicago. "Greater protection to life and property is reflected in declining insurance rates." The record of his administration includes other notable improvements. It is enough to remember that he entitled himself to reelection by singularly deserving it and that the people of Chicago appreciate his services. He is a good model for mayors and even officials of loftier title to follow.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SOME OF THE SOOTHSAYERS now fix on 1936 as the date of inflation and announce that commodity prices will go up fifty per cent. I wish butter and eggs and lamb and pork chops and those things would only pay attention to the soothsayers and wait until 1936 before they go up. But they're not doing any waiting, they're climbing right along, doggone 'em.

—:—

WHAT A KALEIDOSCOPE this old world is; everything spinning around and what was top yesterday is now on the bottom. Here's New York standing where South Carolina stood in 1861 and threatening to go out of the Union if the government insists on giving Bob Moses the bum's rush from the Triborough Bridge Authority. New York solemnly avers (just as the south once did) that the federal government and the state governments and their instrumentalities are "separate entities, independent of each other in their respective spheres of activity." BOOM! that's firing on Fort Sumter, no less. New York is determined to stand by Bob Moses, whom they call down there "New York's most useful citizen." If New York secedes from the Union the government forces will be led by Gen. Ickes, the w. k. secretary of the interior, while Gen. Moses will command the troops from the newly formed Republic of New York. And I'll bet a dollar to a doughnut that Gen. Moses captures Gen. Ickes, puts him up on the one hundred and second floor of the Empire State building, and gives all the elevator operators in the building a two months' holiday. War is certainly what Gen. Sherman said it was.

OBIT.

It is an unimaginable thing
That he will not be here to greet the spring,
That flowers he planted tenderly will grow
When April comes and he will never know.

It is so inconceivable that he
Will sit no more beneath his favorite tree.
How can a tree so old and bent survive
Him who was so alert, so much alive?

So many little things that were a part
Of him remain, that cry out to the heart—
A book lies on the table partly read,
Within his study all untenanted.

The morning paper comes. Put it away:
He is not here to read the news today
So avidly. He cares not any more
For worldly topics, tales or poet's lore.

Today and Yesterday, and Life and Death . . .
Time's treachery, the frailty of breath . . .
And, rising to the enigmatic sky,
Mankind's unanswerable query, "Why?"

Yet whisper Voices faint: Perhaps the Power
That in the spring calls from the dust the flower,
Permits completion of the unread book,
The unaccomplished aim, the task forsook,

Somewhere, somehow; and, still remembering,
And still rejoicing in the smile of spring
And cherishing his friends, he carries on
Beyond the dusk, where lies eternal dawn.

P. is a mighty smart man when it comes to money matters. Since he thinks it's time to junk nonessentials I guess I'll sell that extra pair of pants I got with my spring suit. And the ormolu Swiss clock that Aunt Laura gave me twenty-five years ago. But the automobile and the radio and the dog and the Scotch likker and the gin—gosh! I can't sell any of those things. After all, we've got to hold on to the necessities of life. Huh?

GERTRUDE STEIN was a judge at an intercollegiate debate the other night and after the orators were all through Gertie got right up and said she couldn't be judge as it was impossible to say which debating team was best, as they were all equally rotten. Gertrude ought to tour the country as judge on college debates. Maybe after a while they would get away from "Our Todays and Yesterdays Are the Blocks with Which We Build" and "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy" stuff and think of some new ideas. And what a wow Gertrude would be to act as judge at college commencements and speak her mind on the graduation essays. The colleges need Gertie very badly. No matter how much she wants for salary she's worth it.

ACCIDENT PREPAREDNESS.

THIS is First Aid week and we are reminded that every one should know something about first aid, especially those who are in charge of a number of persons. In many industrial establishments first aid stations are manned by trained personnel.

When an accident occurs, time is usually an important factor, but even in injuries the old saying "Haste makes waste," holds good. A bleeding artery, however, will not wait, and pressure must be applied without delay and with the least possible damage to the soft structures of the body.

Accidents have a way of happening when least expected and when all parties concerned find the time and place most inconvenient. Now and then expert assistance is difficult to secure and great resourcefulness may be required on the part of those who are called upon to render assistance.

In industrial plants, schools, factories, and in all places where many persons are congregated, first aid equipment is essential. The few simple things needed may be purchased at little cost, and when ready at hand will repay the outlay many times over. The first aid box for the protection of a group of 50 persons should contain the following items:

6 2-inch and 3-inch sterile wrapped bandages.
1 5-yard roll of zinc oxide adhesive tape, 2 inches wide.
1 dozen packages sterile dressings, 2 by 2 inches.
½ dozen packages sterile dressings, 4 by 4 inches, or a roll of sterile dressing gauze.
2 ounces tincture of iodine.
2 dozen sterile applicator sticks (for the purpose of applying iodine) with cotton wrapped ends.
2 ounces tannic acid for making fresh 5 per cent solution (for burns).
1 package ground mustard (a glass of warm water with a teaspoonful of mustard will induce vomiting and may be needed in case of poisoning).
2 ounces aromatic spirits of ammonia.
1 pound sterile cotton for making additional swabs and for padding splints.
2 ounces tincture of green soap for cleansing wounds.

Lugol's solution, which contains no alcohol, may be used instead of tincture of iodine.

The first aid kit should be immediately available and should be kept in a proper container to exclude dust and dirt. The box should never be locked.

Fainting, collapse, or convulsions are alarming symptoms. Convulsions may come from so many causes that it is far wiser to place the patient so that he cannot injure himself than to proceed with active measures that may do harm. Then wait for the physician. Collapse or signs of heart or circulatory failure may be relieved by the administration of a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a little water. In severe abdominal pain, permit the patient to lie in the position that will give him the most comfort, keep him warm, and let him alone until medical aid can be secured.

Too much care cannot be exercised in the management of minor wounds, cuts, and abrasions of the skin. Bacteria are present everywhere and contaminate practically all wounds. If the nature of the injury permits, the wounded part should be gently scrubbed with soap and hot water. The prompt application of iodine or some equally efficient antiseptic will in many instances prevent prolonged illness and save life.

And, finally, for real preparedness, have a physician give a few talks and demonstrations to groups of employés on the principles of first aid. The topics covered should include hemorrhage, combating shock, temporary care of fractures and sprains, and the management of wounds, burns, drowning, and suffocation from gases such as ammonia, sulphur dioxide, carbon dioxide, or carbon monoxide (exhaust from automobiles).

Intelligent first aid is cheap and effective and is needed in the home fully as much as in the factory or shop.

DIET FOR NEPHRITIS.

A Reader writes: You recently stated that the diet for preventing uremia should be much the same as that used for chronic kidney inflammation. Will you please give this diet?

REPLY.

For chronic nephritis without complications Barborka lists the following important dietary factors: Salt somewhat restricted, protein and fluids essentially normal, high carbohydrate content; alcohol and excess fats forbidden.

A suggested diet of 1,800 calories for one day is given as follows:

Cooked cereal, ½ of a cup.
Bread, 3 slices.
Butter, 2½ squares.
Milk, 2 glasses.
Cream, ¼ cup.
Lean meat, 2½ ounces.
Egg, 1.
Vegetables, 6 per cent and 6 per cent, 3 servings, each.
Fruit, 10 per cent and 15 per cent, 3 servings, each.
Potato, 2 small servings.
Sugar, 2 teaspoons.
Dessert, 1 serving.

This diet may be used in chronic nephritis, but not in acute cases where convulsions are present. In the latter situation no food is given until the kidneys begin to function.

FLYING STORIES

By Test Pilot Jim Collins

WILL ROGERS IN AIR.

I was flying as a passenger on one of the airlines once, going out to Wichita to take delivery of a ship I had sold. Will Rogers was a passenger on the same ship.

When we stopped at Columbus I managed to engage Rogers in conversation. I had always been curious about whether he talked in private life as he does on the stage and radio, and if the poor grammar in his writing was deliberate or natural. He talked to me exactly like he does on the stage and radio, and his grammar was just as bad as it is in his writing. So I decided that if it was an act he was carrying it pretty far.

I noticed that he made certain movements with difficulty. He seemed to be crippled up a little. I asked him what was the matter. He said he had fallen off his horse before he left California and had broken a couple of ribs. I thought that was kind of funny, because I had always supposed he was a good horseman. I told him that, and he said it was a new horse and he wasn't used to it. I still thought it was kind of funny, but I let it pass.

I managed to bring out a little later in the conversation that I was a professional pilot myself, and that being a passenger was a rare experience for me. He said he could tell me the truth then. He said he really had had an airplane accident the day before. An air liner he had been riding on had had a forced landing, had nosed over pretty hard, and had banged him up a little. That's how he had broken his ribs.

He said it hadn't been the pilot's fault that they had cracked up, that the motor had quit and that the pilot had done a good job considering the country he had to sit down in. He said that only a good pilot could have kept from killing everybody in the ship, and that he was the only one who had been hurt.

He said he had told me that story about the horse in the first place because he thought I was a regular passenger. He said not to tell any of the rest of the passengers, because it might scare them and spoil their trip.

ABOUT A YACHT HARBOR.

Chicago, March 6.—Chicago newspapers recently carried items to the effect that the Chicago park district will take over from A Century of Progress certain structures built in the north and south lagoons on the lake front between 12th and 23d streets, popularly referred to as World's Fair lagoons. These structures are the Lagoon theater, temporary bridge at 12th street and temporary bridge at 23d street.

The two bridges connect the mainland with Northerly Island. Government permission for these structures was given A Century of Progress as temporary structures to be removed within one year after the close of the exposition.

These lagoons are navigable waters of the United States by reason of the fact that originally they were a part of Lake Michigan. The Supreme court of the United States has repeatedly ruled that any artificial waterway connecting with a naturally navigable waterway is by reason of that connection a navigable water of the United States and subject to all the law of congress enacted for the protection of such waters.

The lagoons and Northerly Island were created as a result of park extension work carried on under the so-called lake front ordinance of 1919 and a government permit in 1920 which contemplated an inland protected waterway parallel to the south shore from the downtown harbor to Jackson park. Lack of funds has stopped the work and our waterway has become a pipe dream. The entrance to the waterway at 12th street has been closed by an unauthorized causeway and an obstructive bridge crosses the southerly end at 23d street.

As the proposed waterway lies in the indefinite future, the park district now has an opportunity to provide yachtsmen with much needed additional mooring space and harbor facilities by making good one of the conditions imposed when the government authorized the filling of the yacht harbor on what is now the site of the Field museum. In 1912 they were granted permission to make this fill upon the understanding they would provide elsewhere the equivalent of this area for the use of yachts.

This condition has never been met. The retention of the obstructive World's Fair bridge at 23d street and other structures will prevent the use of the lagoons by yachts and other water craft for which they were created.

Have Chicago yachtsmen waited 23 years in vain for the small boat facilities to which they are entitled?

A YACHTSMAN.

UNEMPLOYMENT RESERVES.

Chicago, March 3.—In SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE I noticed that the National Metal Trades association has issued a report recommending the establishment of unemployment reserves by individual corporations and opposing any scheme for government controled unemployment insurance, "claiming that such social legislation has proved unsuccessful in other nations."

Since the British unemployment insurance scheme is cited as a failure in this report, may I quote Winston Churchill [England's conservative of conservatives], who said in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 26, in speaking of unemployment insurance, "without which we should never have come through the troubles which followed the great war."

As for private unemployment compensation schemes, if the authors of this report had been as factual and objective in presenting material on this subject as are the college professors [in general], whom it is so fashionable for business men to disparage, perhaps they would have reported the casualties which occurred in this field of private endeavor. For example, if authoritative information from persons who have experimented with private schemes and have found them poor substitutes for governmental schemes is really wanted, page Mr. Henry Dennison of the Dennison Manufacturing company, Framingham, Mass.; Mr. Hatch of the Dutchess Bleachery, Inc., Wappingers Falls, N. Y.; Mr. Morris Leeds of Leeds & Northrup, Philadelphia, Pa. The whole story of these private schemes makes sad reading. It may be found in Bryce Stewart's "Unemployment Benefits in the United States."

When one studies the history of the times preceding the French revolution and the Russian revolution, and indeed our own little revolution of 1776, it is obvious that the real propellers of violence were either myopic or stupid. They devoted their energies to futile attempts to repress discontent instead of attacking causes of it. Such persons, either incapable of bringing their thinking apparatus to function in a world of whose changes they are unaware, or so criminally selfish as to care nothing for anything but their immediate interests, are by all odds more dangerous to the capitalistic system than are any of the persons listed in The Red Network. MARY B. GILSON.

MAC CARTIE INTERPRETED.

Chicago, March 9.—I am afraid your correspondent MacCartie is too subtle. Probably not one of your readers in twenty knows that our noble President, Franklin Deficit Roosevelt, attended Massachusetts' oldest college.

THROGMORTON.

RADIO ENGLISH.

Chicago, March 4.—I heartily agree with C. J. Gerling with regard to radio English. Some of our announcers don't pronounce their words as well as third grade grammar school pupils.

They say "packeen" and "selleen," for "packing" and "selling"; they tell us that they want to make a suj-jestion, instead of suggestion; they describe an object as ex-quis'-ite, instead of ex'-quisite. One woman described a brilliant social affair held at the Saddle and Cycle club, and repeatedly referred to it as the Sa'le an' Cycle club.

It might be a good idea to require radio announcers to pass an examination in pronunciation. I'm not a crabby old maid school teacher. I'm just a plain American who loves to hear our beautiful language correctly spoken. B. H.

BUT WORSE THAN A YEAR AGO.

Chicago, March 5.—Financial reports and descriptions of business conditions appearing daily in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indicate that our country is in much better condition today than it was two years ago.

In the face of these facts it is amusing and rather disgusting to turn to the Voice of the People and read scarcely anything but destructive criticism of our President's program.

The writer, none too proudly, admits being a lifelong Republican, but politics to me is secondary to the welfare of our country, and in view of this it would seem wise for us to refuse to offer destructive criticism unless we are able to follow it up with constructive ideas.

F. P. H.

THE SITE FOR AN AIRPORT.

Chicago, March 5.—Your editorial urging a water front airport is interesting in view of the fact that there are thousands of abandoned acres within the city limits, and an organization has been formed to try to reclaim the shambles. At the rate the buildings are being torn down to make parking lots in and about the loop there should soon be ample space in the loop for an airport. Filling in a lake which is such a valuable asset to the city while land near by reverts to the Indians doesn't make sense. After all what will people do with the possible half hour saved? Most of the people I know are trying to learn how to spend, not how to save their time. J. H. M.

HANDBILLS HELD CAUSE OF 40% OF CITY'S FIRES

"Circular" Menace Costs $11,000,000 in Year.

The accumulation of discarded waste paper, handbills and circulars was responsible for nearly 48 per cent of the 10,039 fires that cost Chicago $11,065,437 in 1934, Chief Frank C. McAuliffe of the fire insurance patrol said yesterday. Chief McAuliffe urged a city-wide drive to rid building and streets and alleys of the fire menace of rubbish.

Rubbish a Constant Menace.

Reports of the insurance patrols for 1934 show that of 10,039 fires in the city 1,439 were due to rubbish accumulations and caused damage to buildings. In addition to these fires, companies responded to 3,366 alarms and extinguished minor rubbish fires outside of occupied premises. These fires, said Chief McAuliffe, are a constant menace.

"In addition to the actual damages resulting from rubbish fires," Chief McAuliffe said, "there is heavy loss to taxpayers in these small blazes. These fires, average ten a day, each causes several pieces of fire apparatus to be sent through the streets at an average cost of $100 a fire. Ten times a day trafic is tied up and lives endangered by speeding equipment. Ten times a day equipment is used to fight these unnecessary fires, leaving areas of the city temporarily exposed to the hazards of other unavoidable blazes."

Blames Circular Distribution.

These fires, Chief McAuliffe declared, are largely the result of the widespread distribution of advertising circulars which accumulate in buildings and in streets and alleys. The accumulation of such refuse, he said, constitute an ever present fire hazard in and near buildings and costs the taxpayer $500,000 annually in addition to losses from fire.

Statistics on the number of children and adults burned in such fires are not available, according to the fire insurance official.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

(Picture on back page.)

Hams in the Making.

March 10, 1935.

LAST Thursday was hog killing day at the Tribune auxiliary experimental farm near Wheaton. Carl Henderson, manager, and his co-workers butchered 11 hogs—6 Hampshires and 5 Chester Whites—brought from the experimental farm near Yorkville three weeks ago.

"Old Virginia" hams are in the making. Spare ribs and backbones, country style, and other fresh cuts are now prominent on the daily menus at the various homes on the 1,000 acre Wheaton farm. Pork sausage, hams, bacon and lard are all being prepared and stored for future use.

The 11 hogs weighed an average of 204 pounds when brought from the Yorkville farm. They had not been heavily fed and were in medium flesh. During the three weeks at the Wheaton farm the Hampshires and Chester Whites were kept on a full feed of good corn, and gained rapidly, dressing out an average of approximately 160 pounds net when butchered.

In preparing the hogs for butchering, feed was withheld from them for 24 hours, during which time they were allowed plenty of water. They were scalded in a barrel and scraped in the old fashioned way. After the animals were dressed the carcasses were left hanging over night in the slaughter house, giving the meat plenty of time to cool thoroughly before being cut and trimmed.

The carcasses were cut up "farmer's style" by removing the heads and back bones instead of splitting the back bone through the middle as is done in packing houses. Each hair carcass was then cut into three pieces —ham, middle and shoulder—with a small portion of the spare ribs remaining on the shoulder cut, the rest on the middle.

The hams were closely trimmed, the fat portions rendered in the kettle and the leaner trimmings made into sausage meat. The shanks were removed for pickling. After the ribs were cut from the shoulder all the meat was removed and made into sausage and lard. The middles, with the spare ribs taken out, were trimmed down until only the best lean streaked bacon portion remained for curing. Tenderloins were stripped out before the fat, along the back and loins, was removed for lard. The heads were made into sausage meat and lard.

Only the middles and hams will be cured. A famous old Virginia formula is being used for curing the hams and bacon.

On the Tribune auxiliary experimental farm the men have learned that time is saved and much more satisfactory job can be done by having their butcher knives, cleavers and saws sharpened in advance of butchering day. By having their tools ready and the wooden scalding barrel and kettles in place they wound up the job of butchering the 11 hogs in comparatively few hours. They used "bell shaped" hand scrapers in removing the hair. The carcasses were hung on poles with homemade gambrel sticks.

SMOKE DEPOSITS REDUCED 75% BY CITY'S CAMPAIGN

Dust Fall in 1934 Cut to 95 Tons a Square Mile.

Smoke abatement campaigns conducted by the city of Chicago during the last four years have reduced the city's dust fall from 390 tons per square mile per month in 1930, to an average of 95 tons a month in 1934, Frank A. Chambers, deputy smoke inspector in charge of the department of smoke abatement, reported yesterday.

The report is based on a city-wide smoke survey completed on Jan. 1. It shows that Chicago air is only one-fourth as dust laden as the atmosphere breathed in 1930, and it demonstrates, Mr. Chambers pointed out, that the city's fuel bill is being reduced through better firing methods.

He admitted that the inactivity of many factories during the depression would have some effect, but declared that apartment buildings and residences provide the greatest smoke nuisance and credited the reduction largely to his abatement campaign.

Chambers' department, reinforced by 125 relief workers assigned by the Illinois Emergency Relief administration, conducted an intensive smoke abatement campaign during the first three months of 1934. On April 1 the department began its latest "dust count," the first since 1930.

It placed quart containers in twenty-seven representative areas of the city and at the end of thirty days analyzed the dust collected. From these data the dust fall per square mile was computed.

Grime Deposits by Months.

The average dust count in tons per square mile for the nine months of 1934 follow:

April, 113 tons; May, 143; June, 148; July, 94; August, 66; September, 79; October, 66; November, 68; December, 78.

The loop area led in grime. At Dearborn and Adams streets the average monthly dust fall was 223.2 tons a square mile. The cleanest spot was 62d street and Linder avenue with 57.8 tons.

The direction of winds makes a great difference in the loop dust fall, Mr. Chambers said, being heavy when the breeze is from the southwest.

STATE TO SEEK 'DEATH' JURY IN ERICKSEN CASE

Jurors without conscientious scruples against voting the death penalty for a woman "in a proper case" will be sought today by Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle in the trial of Mrs. Anna Ericksen, 38 years old, mother of six children, who is charged with the murder of her husband, James Senese, 19 years old, and Elmer Kreuger, 22 years old, confessed the murder and said Mrs. Ericksen hired them to do it for $500.

Prosecutor Boyle said the confessed hired killers will testify against Mrs. Ericksen. He will demand the death penalty for Mrs. Ericksen and the question of punishment of the two men will be taken up later, he said.

The trial is to be held before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. Attorneys Emmet F. Byrne and Harold Levy will defend Mrs. Ericksen.

UNION, COMPANY SPURN PACT IN PACKING STRIKE

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 10.—(AP)—City, county, and state officials failed today to settle a labor dispute at the John Morrell Packing plant. The strike earlier brought a brief reign of martial law.

Both union and company officials rejected a compromise and county authorities warned that military rule would be reinstated if violence occurred.

Union leaders, however, agreed to permit movement of a meat train which had been held up.

At a mass meeting of union members and sympathizers picket squads were organized to prevent workmen from entering the grounds.

W. H. T. Foster, general manager of the packing company, announced "we plan to open the plant tomorrow morning and to operate as usual."

Meanwhile guardsmen, summoned last night by Gov. Tom Berry's orders, were disbanded.

DOCTORS LABOR TO END PAIN OF SHRINKING MAN

New Devices of Science to Be Tried Today.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Science will mobilize guinea pigs, rabbits, and modern mechanical devices tomorrow in an attempt to halt George Bocklet's self-styled reversion "to the ape type."

Bocklet, 49 year old commercial artist, suffers a rare disease that has lessened his height by four inches, expanded his skull and drawn his chin down toward his chest.

Dr. Frank G. Nolan, physician, said today that arrangements have been completed to bring Bocklet from his Azusa, Cal., home, near Pasadena, to a Los Angeles sanitarium, where an exhaustive examination will be made of his disease, which, said Dr. Nolan, shows "all the symptoms of osteomalacia deformis."

"Bocklet has shrunk so much," said Dr. Nolan, "that his ribs are virtually resting on his hip bones. His head has become painfully enlarged."

Hopes to Find Toxin.

Dr. Nolan proposed to inoculate guinea pigs and rabbits with some of Bocklet's blood to see if he can produce in them the same glandular upheaval that has beset the affable artist. If so, he believes he may be able to find a toxin or anti-toxin that would relieve Bocklet.

"The trouble seems to be a marked deficiency of lime," said the physician.

Dr. Nolan explained that while the shrinking of Bocklet may make him feel as if he were becoming more simian, there is nothing in his disease that could be said to be reversing the evolutionary process.

"He is now in great pain," said Dr. Nolan. "He told me that he hates to go to sleep because he feels so much worse when he wakes up."

Trouble May Be in Glands.

Dr. Nolan believes that the clew to the trouble may lie in a disturbance of the thyroid and pituitary gland functions. To solve the problem of what it is that afflicts Bocklet, Dr. Nolan will use X-rays, basal metabolism tests, examination of the blood, and spinal fluid and all other medical devices that could be of aid.

"I have hope that I may be able to avert the slow process of the disorder," said Dr. Nolan. "If unchecked, his would be a slow and painful death."

Bocklet's case, said Dr. Nolan, has already attracted wide medical attention. Bocklet, the physician asserted, is now about five feet tall, a loss of four inches in a year. His skull has expanded very considerably.

DISCOVERS PINES FLOURISHED HERE 20,000 YEARS AGO

Central and northern Illinois, which the white man first knew as a hardwood forest country, once was covered with forests of spruce, fir, and pine, according to Prof. George D. Fuller, University of Chicago botanist, who is directing a research on forest migrations of this region. Prof. Fuller and his students are using the "pollen analysis" technique, first developed in Sweden, but relatively new in this country.

These coniferous forests prevailed around Chicago about 20,000 or 25,000 years ago, Prof. Fuller's studies have shown, and the weather was about the same as that now existing north of Lake Superior. The deciduous trees, such as the oak, maple, walnut, and birch, invaded the territory from the south 15,000 to 20,000 years ago, and since then the tree population has remained fairly stable, except for what the white man has done to it.

These conclusions have been reached through the study of fossilized pollen deposited in bogs left by retreating glaciers between twenty and thirty thousand years ago. Samples are taken from these former bogs at various depths and the pollen found is classified and studied.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Back into the government went Churchill as minister of munitions, a responsible position in those black war days when the British troops needed all the war machinery they could possibly get. Drastic steps were necessary, and Churchill did not hesitate. Then came the end of the war, joyful hysteria, and other duties, described in this instalment.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

At last the awful struggle reached its end. A few minutes before the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month I stood at the window of my room looking up Northumberland avenue toward Trafalgar square waiting for the chime to tell that the war was over.

The broad street beneath me was still deserted. With the first stroke, from the portals of one of the large hotels absorbed by government departments darted the slight figure of a girl clerk, distractedly gesticulating while another stroke resounded.

Then from all sides men and women came scurrying into the street. Streams of people poured out of all the buildings. The bells of London began to clash. Northumberland avenue was now crowded with people in hundreds, nay, thousands, rushing hither and thither in a frantic manner, shouting and screaming with joy. I could see that Trafalgar square was already swarming. Around me in our very headquarters disorder had broken out. Doors banged. Feet clattered down corridors. Every one rose from the desk and cast aside pen and paper. All bounds were broken. The tumult grew. It grew like a gale, but from all sides simultaneously.

A Seething Mass.

The street was now a seething mass of humanity. Flags appeared as if by magic. Streams of men and women flowed from the embankment. They mingled with torrents pouring down the Strand on their way to acclaim the king. The chains which had held the world were broken. Links of imperative need, links of discipline, links of brute force, links of self-sacrifice, links of terror, links of honor which had held our nation, nay, the greater part of mankind, to grinding toil, to a compulsive cause—every one had snapped upon a few strokes of the clock.

Safety, freedom, peace, home, the dear one back at the fireside—all after fifty-two months of gaunt distortion.

It was with feelings which do not lend themselves to words that I heard the cheers of the brave people who had borne so much and given all, who had never wavered, who had never lost faith in their country or its destiny, and who could be indulgent to the faults of their servants when the hour of deliverance had come.

England's High Place.

The conclusion of the great war raised England to the highest position she has yet attained. For the fourth time in four successive centuries she had headed and sustained the resistance of Europe to a military tyranny; and for the fourth time the war had ended leaving in full independence the group of small states of the low countries for whose protection England had declared war.

Spain, the French monarchy, the French empire and the German empire had all overrun and sought to possess or dominate these regions. During four hundred years England had withstood them all by war and policy and all had been defeated and driven out. To that list of mighty sovereigns and supreme military lords which already included Philip II., Louis XIV. and Napoleon, there could now be added the name of William II. of Germany. These four great series of events, directed unswervingly to the same end through so many generations and all crowned with success, constitute a record of persistency and achievement without parallel in the history of ancient or modern times.

Victory Brings Disorder.

But when we leave the high domain of history we fall immediately to a very much lower level. Nothing was more remarkable than the speed with which the country, so grand and splendid in trouble, fell to pieces in victory. Mr. Lloyd George plunged immediately into a general election. In this turmoil it became immediately clear that the masses of the people wished to hang the kaiser, to bring the armies home regardless, to abolish conscription and to make the Germans pay to the uttermost farthing. Under the pressure of electioneering and the popular press the government appeared willing to oblige them in all these directions. Mr. Lloyd George received an overwhelming majority. The Liberal party was fatally injured, and a new parliament assembled to face the extraordinary difficulties and perils of the aftermath.

Goes Into War Office.

When the government was reformed after the elections the prime minister invited me to take the war office or the admiralty, mentioning that the air ministry would be associated with me wherever I went. I took a day to think about it and chose the admiralty "for old sake's sake." But meanwhile the prime minister had become so gravely concerned at the spread of disorder and mutiny into which our armies had fallen when the pressure of war was removed, that he pressed me to go to the war office. I felt bound to comply. I therefore became responsible for the war office and air ministry on Jan. 15, 1919.

A most objectionable scheme of demobilization had been prepared before the war ended. According to the logic of this scheme the first men to be released were what was called "key-men," i. e., men who were asked for by employers at home to restart their industries. These key men were therefore being picked out by scores of thousands from all the units of the army and hurried back across the channel.

The Trouble Begins.

But these key men who were to be the first to come home had been in many cases the last to go out. Those who were so fortunate as to be able to present letters and telegrams from employers at home offering them employment and claiming their services were immediately released. Influence was not slow to procure such credentials and the ordinary soldier without these advantages saw his lately joined comrade hurrying home to take his job or somebody's job in England, while he after years of endless privations on a soldier's pay, wounded and sent back to the carnage three or sometimes four times, was to be left until all the plums at home had been picked up and every vacancy filled.

The fighting man has a grim sense of justice which it is dangerous to affront. As a result of the distinctions every single separate unit throughout the whole of our army and in all the theaters of war was swiftly and simultaneously irritated and undermined. Immediately scores of mutinies occurred both at home and at the front in the first few days after I entered the war office.

A New Policy.

I propounded the following policy: First, soldiers should as a general rule only be released from the front in accordance with their length of service and age. Secondly, the pay of the army must be immediately doubled in order to lessen the gap between the rewards of military and civilian employment. Thirdly, in order to release in as large numbers and as quickly as possible the men who had fought, the 80,000 young lads who had been trained but had not quitted our shores, must be retained compulsorily for two years and sent abroad. These measures were assented to by the war cabinet. They relieved the situation in the army; but only just in time.

KNOLLWOOD CLUB, $250,000 IN DEBT, TO REORGANIZE

Hearing on the petition for financial reorganization of the Knollwood club, northwest of Lake Forest, filed under section 77B of the federal bankruptcy act for relief of debtors, will be held next Friday before Federal Judge William H. Holly.

The petition was filed Feb. 28, according to Samuel T. Brown, 1139 Ridge avenue, Evanston, chairman of the club's committee which is handling the matter, when it was realized that the club could not carry its $250,000 bonded indebtedness.

On March 1 Judge Holly ruled that the petition was in order, and set next Friday for the hearing. Mr. Brown declared that more than two-thirds of the holders of the club's bonds have already agreed—unofficially—to a plan of reorganization.

This contemplates exchanging each old bond for two new $500 bonds. One of the new bonds will be a 5 per cent mortgage bond, and the other a non-interest bearing debenture, secured by a lien secondary to the lien securing the mortgage bond.

Reveals Troth of Mary Reed and J. P. Bent

Mother Breaks the News at Supper Party.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE guests at a buffet supper party Miss Mary Reed gave last night for three brides-to-be, Miss Jean Wilhelm, Miss Laura Thorne, and Miss Dorothy Ranney, found when they arrived that good wishes were also in order for their young hostess. Her mother, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, announced her engagement to John Peale Bent.

Miss Reed, granddaughter of the late John G. Shedd and Mrs. Shedd, is one of society's loveliest young women. She and her cousin, Miss Jean Schweppe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, are enormously popular with young people their own age and are frequently spoken of by the older generations as "the type of young women that breeding and wealth should produce."

Debut Reception Given by Grandmother.

Miss Reed went to school at Westover and then to Le Boucher in Paris for a year. Neither Miss Reed nor Miss Schweppe wanted a traditional debut tea the first winter they were at home, the season of 1932-'33, but they were given a reception and musical by their grandmother, Mrs. Shedd, at the Drake, early in December, and during the Christmas holidays Mrs. Reed gave a dinner-dance for them at the Casino.

Miss Reed, who is a member of the Chicago Junior league, is an excellent tennis player and is the women's champion at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest, where the Reed summer home is located. Her fiancé, always called "Pleasure" by his friends, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Bent of Harrisburg, Pa. He was graduated from Yale in 1930 and after working for a year in New York came to Chicago to engage in business. He lives at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest. In 1932 he was a member of the Olympic ice hocky team. The wedding will take place early in the summer, undoubtedly in Lake Forest. The Reed town residence is at 1550 State parkway. Miss Reed has one brother, John Shedd Reed, who is younger than she.

Miss Wilhelm is engaged to Daggett Harvey; Miss Thorne's engagement to Alexander Barthell Spence was announced last Saturday and they will be married on Friday of this week, and Miss Ranney is the fiancée of Gaylord Donnelley.

Nathan B. Higbies to Mark Anniversary.

Out in Pasadena, Cal., this coming Saturday two former Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan B. Higbie, will celebrate their golden wedding at a reception their daughter, Mrs. Percival B. Palmer of Chicago, will give for them at their residence, 265 North San Rafael avenue, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mr. Higbie, who was with Swift & Co. for 43 years, and his wife gave up their Chicago home at 4933 Kimbark avenue, nine years ago and moved to Pasadena. Mr. Higbie was head of the Swift purchasing department when he retired.

The Higbies' granddaughter, the former Corda Palmer, now Mrs. Harold Ferris White Jr. of Highland Park, had hoped to go west for the anniversary, but has had to cancel her plans. Carleton and Harley Higbie, both of Detroit, and their wives are going west to celebrate their parents' golden wedding with them.

Friends of China to Be Guests of Mrs. Crane.

The American Friends of China are to have what is sure to be one of the very nicest meetings they ever have had next Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. is hostess to them at tea in her lovely home at 1550 Lake Shore drive. At 4 o'clock Herbert Clarence White will show lantern slides in color of his remarkable photographs of China, including the Garden of the Gods in South Chekiang.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy of the class of '97, the new commanding general of the Sixth Corps area, will be the principal speaker and especial guest at the forty-seventh annual dinner of the alumni of the United States Military academy next Saturday. Due to the absence of the president of the Chicago Association of West Pointers Col. George T. Langhorne, Maj. Rufus W. Putnam and James C. Short are in charge of arrangements for the dinner, which will be held in the bungalow on the roof of the Hotel Sherman. Gen. Robert E. Wood, Col. John A. Holabird and Williston Fish of the class of '81, the oldest graduate in this district, will be among the West Pointers present at the dinner, which will commemorate the 133d anniversary of the founding of the academy.

Nearly All Society Takes Winter Vacations.

"Here they come, there they go" might be a society editor's theme song these days, for news of returned vacationers or those leaving for late winter holidays is about all that hours on a telephone produces. The Atkin sisters, Miss Margot and Miss Adelaide, are planning to drive east late this month, visiting in Detroit, Dobbs Ferry, Boston, New York and Morristown for a month. . . . Atlantic City will be the destination of Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter and her daughter, Josephine, when they leave next month to spend Easter at the seaside resort.

Jamaica is where Phelps and Gordon Kelley and their wives are spending their winter vacation. They flew down about a week ago and they will be back in their Lake Forest homes in about a fortnight. . . . The George A. Richardsons are making

MRS. GEORGE HENRY SCHULZ.
[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

MRS. GEORGE HENRY SCHULZ, Mrs. Paul Morrison, Mrs. John R. Merriman, Mrs. Randall E. Poindexter, Mrs. William H. Hammond, and Mrs. Norman Gerlach have planned dinner parties for tonight so that later they can take their guests to the exhibition tennis matches at the Patten gymnasium in Evanston that will benefit the North Shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center. William T. Tilden II., Ellsworth Vines, Lester Stoefen, and George Lott will participate in the matches, which will start at 8 o'clock. Adding to the benefit atmosphere—and to the proceeds—will be a group of pretty young women selling candy and cigarets, including Mrs. Gordon Canning, Mrs. John Griffin, Mrs. Purcell Smith, Mrs. Oliver Blackburn, Mrs. Leonard Paidar, Mrs. Ralph M. McDermid, and Mrs. Drennan Slater.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

WITH St. Patrick's day in the offing this seems as good a time as any to repeat the story related in Chicago recently by Paddy Carolan of the Abbey theater to John M. Flynn.

Proposal—Knitter—Message.

Some time ago a young Irish farmer in the County Kilkenny was very much in love. He wanted to marry the girl, but being a shy lad he couldn't for the life of him ask her outright to marry him. He felt he would choke if he tried to mention the words marry or marriage to her. So, after taking much earnest, shrewd thought on the problem, he asked her in a whisper one evening:

"Julia, how would you like to be buried with my people?"

* *

IN the morning mail, again re the Knitting Professor:

"As a recent graduate of Indiana university I would like to put you straight on this professor, about whom you have been writing a great deal lately.

"In your own mind you probably picture him as a wizened, scrawny little man who could qualify as the perfect henpecked husband. On the contrary, he is an exceedingly well built gentleman, who appears to have been very athletically inclined in his younger days.

"You understand, don't you, June, that practically all college professors have their idiosyncrasies? Give this guy a break. . . . After all, there are many of us who would give a lot for the courage to do what we please.

"Yours, I. U. GRAD."

"P. S.: Please don't construe this to mean that I am a knitter myself."

THE head of the advertising department in a loop store suddenly decided to go to Bermuda. Late in the afternoon he telephoned his secretary and told her to get some sport shirts and white gabardine trousers and put them in some bags he was sending down to the office. That night he took a sleeper plane to New York, where he was detained a day on business. There he discovered the trousers were missing. He telephoned his secretary of his predicament. The young woman promised to send the trousers on immediately. She found the missing package and started it on its way to New York. Then she wired: "Keep your shirt on; your pants are flying the air mail."

'The Pirates' Wins Storms of Applause

Revival of Stage Indicated by Enthusiasm.

"THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE."

Comic opera by W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan; given by the D'Oyly Carte Opera company of London in the Erlanger theater March 9, 1935. Preceded by "Trial by Jury."

THE CAST.

Major-General Stanley	Martyn Green
Pirate King	Darrell Fancourt
Samuel	Richard Walker
Frederic	John Dean
Sergeant at Arms	Sydney Granville
Mabel	Kathleen Frances
Edith	Marjorie Eyre
Kate	Maisie Baxter
Isabel	Elizabeth Nickell-Lean
Ruth	Dorothy Gill

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"The Pirates of Penzance," which might be called a member of the Big Three of the Gilbert and Sullivan repertory, was given its only performances of the current D'Oyly Carte engagement in the Erlanger theater last Saturday afternoon and evening. The results were, as usual, exceedingly happy. The ancient and honorable Savoyards were in perfect form, suave and adroit in comedy and bountifully gifted in song, and the audiences responded to their interpretation with storms of applause for every familiar number. There is an atmosphere of keen enthusiasm in and around the Erlanger during this D'Oyly Carte visitation which suggests that the stage has come to life again in the old way.

The casting for "The Pirates" indicates the flexibility of this admirable organization. Kathleen Frances, who has not been prominently employed in the earlier items in the repertory, stepped into the foreground as Mabel, lyric sweetheart of the reformed pirate apprentice, acting winsomely and singing with consummate skill. The rôle requires some coloratura display to flute obbligato, in the song bird style of Italian opera, and Miss Frances proved that she has a neat gift for these fireworks of vocalization.

John Dean, who is the Luiz of "The Gondoliers" and the Lord Tolloler of "Iolanthe," found first tenor duties in "The Pirates," and carried them off with fine effect. The other major rôles were assigned to the regulation top notchers: the major general of the famous patter song to Martyn Green, a young man with a genius for Gilbert's comic old gentlemen; the ta-ra-ta-ra police sergeant to Sydney Granville, lyric basso with perfect diction; and the melodious and vehement pirate king to that rousing baritone, Darrell Fancourt. I am inclined to call this a perfect cast for "The Pirates of Penzance"; at any rate, it gives a performance that is unmatched in my extended acquaintance with Gilbert and Sullivan revivals.

"Trial by Jury," famous one actor in the Gilbert and Sullivan catalog, was given as a curtain raiser to "The Pirates," with Sydney Granville as the Judge, Robert Wilson as the defendant, and Doreen Denny, usually found in the ensemble, as the sentimental plaintif. This piece is the lawyers' delight, being a pioneer in courtroom burlesque. I have no special affection for it, except as another sample of the D'Oyly Carte method of perfect comic opera interpretation.

Tonight will bring the first performance of "The Yeomen of the Guard," which will be repeated on Tuesday evening. Wednesday afternoon and evening will be devoted to repetitions of "The Gondoliers." On Thursday night "The Mikado" will have its fiftieth anniversary performance, to carry through the rest of the week. Then the company will leave Chicago to begin a swing through Canada on the last lap of an American tour that has been a genuine triumph.

Film of Tunnel Workers Has Skeery Shots

"UNDER PRESSURE."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by Raoul Walsh.
Story by Borden Chase and Edward Doherty.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Shocker	Edmund Lowe
Jumbo	Victor McLaglen
Pat	Florence Rice
Amy	Marjorie Rambeau
Nipper Moran	Charles Bickford
Doctor	Siegfried Rumann
George Breck	Roger Imhof
Tug	George Walsh
Weasel	Warner Richmond
The Kid	Jack Wallace
Corky	James Donlon

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Under rivers! Through mountains! This is the story of "sand hogs," those big, brawny, hard living, short lived men who dig the world's tunnels—that other men may proceed more swiftly from one point to another. The story stresses the dangers that beset each hour of the day for this group of toilers.

This new McLaglen-Lowe opus is unusual in that it's informative and that its two lusty, battling co-stars go through the entire film without snarling "SEZ YOU!" once.

As Jumbo and Shocker, they head a crew of men tunneling under the East river. Jumbo, "head man," is short on brains, but intensely jealous of his authority. Shocker, smarter by a long shot, is his lieutenant.

In an emergency, it is the latter who saves the day. Credit goes to Jumbo. Then one fine evening Moran, boss of the gang working across from the other shore and sworn foe of Jumbo, spills beans.

Trouble starts which brews furiously till the H. E.

Lowe and McLaglen do some pretty forthright acting and Charles Bickford as Moran is a convincingly tough customer. Florence Rice as one of those movie newspaper women and Marjorie Rambeau as the hard boiled Hannah who keeps a waterside saloon and loves Jumbo true, furnish the heart interest. Both do nobly in rôles that are none too believable.

Underground shots are unpleasant and skeery.

"Under Pressure" may go well with men, but I'm afraid the ladies aren't going to care for it.

See you tomorrow.

Startling Contrast in Ensemble

Numerous New Ideas in Furs Bring Out Best in Spring Suits

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Spring shopping is just about the best excitement the shops in Chicago can promise.

With all the new loot coming in daily and going into circulation almost as fast as enthusiastic shoppers can choose what they want, the town is in the first real spring flurry. You've heard about suits so much that unless you do not succumb to such suitable temptation you'll probably be the only female inhabitant without such a uniform.

The numerous fur ideas that bring out the best in your spring suit are causing excitement. With a scarf, a tippet, or a cape of fur you can slide into the slim confines of a suit without courting pneumonia and still look like the very breath of spring.

So the enterprising shopper goes suit collecting for something snappy in wool suits and something flattering in furs for the neckline and the result is the spring classic, a smart woman in a perfect spring costume.

If you must be contrary, but just as smart and a bit more feminine, you undoubtedly will get into one of the newest of superslim one piece dresses topped with a swinging cape of fur. There are some breathlessly perfect ensembles of this description to be found. There are the dramatic black affairs with capes of shiny sleek black kidskin. There are gray numbers with flat fur capes of gray caracul, there are some almond green ensembles with summer ermine capes and of course, plenty of navy blue wools with capes of black fur and bright linings.

Fashion photograph . . one of the popular two piece light colored wool dresses to wear under dark colored coats. This particular model is of sea green blue, with a carmine red silk collar. A large prystal belt buckle matches the thick round prystal buttons down the front closing of the blouse top. From a Chicago shop.

Cannon Fire and Ripples All in His Day's Work.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Vladimir Horowitz appeared in a recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, presenting an afternoon of such piano playing as you are likely to hear only when he comes to town.

It was an amazing exhibition of technical ability even in these days when proficient technicians are by no means uncommon. From the thunderous cannon fire of the Bach-Busoni Prelude and Fugue in D major to the incredible speed and clarity of two Chopin Etudes, or again from twelve of the heart breaking variations that Brahms wrote on a Paganini theme to some little known, rippling Debussy Etudes and the Liszt "Mazeppa" was all in the day's work to him. He just took them in his stride. He can when necessary play faster than any one within memory, but whether necessary or not, his numbers are always crisp and clear, with every detail in its place.

More than that, he makes his incredible technic merely a vehicle by which to present something beautiful in piano music. With all his dexterity, he does little showing off for its own sake. The warmth and beauty of the Schumann "Humoresque," the fanciful dance feeling of the Chopin Mazurka in C-sharp minor are enough to prove that.

The lovely Russians from Monte Carlo have appeared for the last time in Chicago and gone on their way. With afternoon and evening performances at the Auditorium yesterday, they accomplished a record of five performances before five large audiences, which is something of an indication of what the highly expert art of the ballet means to Chicago.

Practically all their presentations this time belonged to the modern school, and were as vociferously applauded as ever was a classical ballet. At one time Massine stopped the show with the dance of the bartender in "Union Pacific," at another it would be Riabouchinska and Guerard in "The Marriage of Aurora," or Toumanova here or Baronova there. Even the newest of the pieces, "Le Bal" and "Public Garden," improved greatly in repetition, became smoothed out, more intelligible, and more enjoyable.

A return visit next season is greatly desired.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra at the Studebaker coöperated with the Society of American Musicians yesterday afternoon by presenting as soloists two of the society's prize winners in this season's competition, Leonid Hambro, pianist, in the first movement of the Beethoven Concerto in C minor, and Marshall Sosson, violinist, in two movements from the Bruch Concerto in G minor. In both cases there was playing of the most expert training, well developed tone, fine attention to contrast and climax.

In commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the birth of Bach, Conductor Ebba Sundstrom presented an arrangement of the Toccata and Fugue in D minor transcribed for orchestra by Adolph Hoffmann of the W-G-N concert orchestra. It was an excellent bit of scoring, with an entirely sane and commendable instrumentation, and it was played in high mood by the orchestra.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baronne Henri de Bellesnaves, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness. Harry arrives. The evil looking gardener of the De Bellesnaves arouses Sarah's suspicions. Sarah calls to get a prescription of Miss Venables' from Marjory Barrows, Dr. Gilcrest's dispenser, and finds Beryl Tomlins there. Sarah goes home with Miss Tomlins after they both get the capsules they came after. Miss Tomlins gets a stomach attack. Dr. Gilcrest is called, but she is dead before he arrives.

INSTALMENT XXV.

A LOST BRACELET.

Sarah went back to finish her dressing. Through the crack of the door she heard Miss Venables' delighted "Maddalena! Is it you?" followed by the baroness' apologies for the early call.

"I felt I simply must express my sympathy over the death of your poor friend, Miss Tomlins. She was a good creature, was she not? Brian told us. He spoke of your Sarah's truly marvelous presence of mind. How I admire her cool head, I, who invariably go to pieces at the sight of pain!"

In the adjoining room Sarah caught her breath. The doctor had praised her? Incredible—and coals of fire heaped on her head. Her color rose, and when Miss Venables called her in no one could have guessed her nerve-racked night. Mme. de Bellesnaves, on the contrary, looked haggard and wan, her encircled eyes filled with anxiety. She cast a swift glance at Sarah's trim figure, inquired solicitously about the burns, and sank back with a weary sigh into the corner of the sofa.

"You were having tea with her, n'est ce pas? When, how, did the illness begin?"

Whether out of compliment to Miss Venables and herself or from morbid curiosity, the baroness showed a surprising concern over the gruesome details. She drew Sarah out, her dark eyes vivid with interest.

How inquisitive the baroness was! Momentarily the monkey peeped forth as with narrowed gaze she searched the speaker's calm face. At once,

The baroness' body stiffened. She echoed, "Girl, what girl?"

however, she lapsed into abstraction, and began picking up one by one the various objects on the little bed-table at her side. It was a familiar trick of hers, and usually, so Sarah had noticed, meant she was thinking of widely different things. She appeared not to see what she fingered, but all at once, with a return of attention, she held up the last article seized upon. It chanced to be the new bottle of capsules fetched the day before.

"I see you still take the same prescription," she remarked carelessly. "You find it helps you?"

"O, immensely! I'm giving it up, though, when this lot is finished. The doctor thinks I can do without it."

"Ah, I am glad! That shows you are really better." Laying down the bottle, the baroness passed to Harry's photograph. "Here is your medicine," she said with a teasing laugh. "The moment this big boy arrives you need no other—is it not so? I agree. He is a nerve tonic, this youth. It would pain you to lose him, would it not? And yet, one day, I suppose you will have to give him up."

"To a wife, you mean? I should be only too pleased, provided it was the right one. Funnily enough, we were discussing that only a moment ago, apropos of some new girl he is interested in.

An odd thing happened. The baroness' smile froze, her whole slim body stiffened as on steel wires as with brusque swiftness she echoed "Girl? What girl? When? Where?"

Was it possible she was jealous, of Harry, to whom at times she was hardly civil? Sarah felt she could not be wrong in believing that Harry bored her—and yet . . .

"Dear Maddalena!" exclaimed Miss Venables, mildly diverted. "You think I am in danger of being deserted? We know nothing, except that he went last evening to call on some friend in Hyeres."

The baroness stared and burst into slivery laughter. For some reason the explanation seemed to amuse her highly.

"Hyeres!" she repeated, with a side glance to include Sarah in a joke impossible to elucidate. "So he has found romance in that dull spot! Who would have thought it? It is as bad as here."

"It is good to hear you laugh," rejoined the spinster, smiling if vaguely mystified. "Before that you were looking so mournful."

"Was I?" Hilarity vanished, and a cloud descended over the mobile features. "It is true," the baroness said in a lower tone, "I am much, much concerned over Henri."

"There, there, it can't be so serious! Your husband is too sensible a man to remain overpowered for long. Perhaps another pet. . . . He won't hear of it? Well, later on he'll feel differently. You'll see."

Mme. de Bellesnaves rose, clung to her comforter for a moment and, her great eyes swimming in tears, went quickly from the room. Miss Venables gazed after her with a troubled sigh.

They had come up from lunch. Miss Venables, according to her neat habit, was tucking in the sofa-cover left baggy by the last occupant when she gave a little cry and dangled aloft an object which sparkled. It was the baroness' wrist watch.

"Deep down in the crack," she declared. "How lucky I found it instead of the maid! I saw her fiddling with the catch. What a pretty thing it is! Amazingly good for imitation. She'll be disturbed over losing it, only how shall we get it to her? Harry's gone again to Hyeres. Couldn't you run up and return this?"

"Of course. I'll go now."

If Miss Venables had used her lorgnette she might have been even more impressed by the excellence of the imitation. These brilliants not real? Sarah knew diamonds when she saw them—and some of the stones, set in a new design round the tiny, lozenge-shaped face, were quite large.

Setting out on her errand, Sarah concluded that the baroness' pretense about the diamonds could have but one explanation. The watch was a gift, its owner dared not say from whom.

"Pretty expensive gift! Come to think of it, what about some of the clothes she wears? They cost money, too, whatever Miss Venables may choose to believe."

It puzzled her slightly that Mme. de Bellesnaves on discovering her loss had not rung up to make inquiries. But at this point, reluctant to become like her pretty-minded companions of the hotel, she desisted from further speculation. Really it did not matter to her.

Abreast of the doctor's gate her heart gave a fluttering bound to see Gilcrest himself just getting into his car. Their eyes met. Hesitating, he approached, not immediately speaking, merely looking down at her with an expression which, though preoccupied, was softer than any she had seen him wear.

"That was a bad time for you yesterday," his voice was low, dry, uncertain. "Wish it could have been avoided. If I was a bit rough——"

"You weren't," she said, eager to put him at his ease. "You had to ask me things, naturally. I quite understand—and you were upset."

"I'm glad you saw that. I was." His eyes fell from hers to rest on the thin sleeves of her frock. "Your arms—are they comfortable?"

"Not hurting at all. See, I've taken off the bandages."

"Stay in the shade. That skin's tender and will blister again."

"Yes, I'm keeping it covered."

She hoped he was going to continue the talk. She even believed he was tempted to do so, but with a touch of the old chariness he gave a quick nod and without looking at her again slid into his seat and drove away. Through a warm mist she watched the disappearing car, infinitely thankful she no longer suspected him of wrongdoing, and deeply stirred by his changed attitude towards her. For it was changed. For the first and only time since they had met he had shown sympathy in a nonprofessional way. His eyes, slate-blue, still guarded, had not been cold. . . .

Facial Contour Is Important in Applying Rouge

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I have a protest from a young woman who claims to have made up many thousands of women in her salon work. She says the advice to apply rouge so that it does not come below the curve of the cheekbone and beginning below the pupil of the eye simply cannot apply to all women. This advice cannot be followed by the woman with thin face, long neck, and deepset eyes, or by the sister with a square, fat face.

Good suggestions, too, these. Thanks, Miss Margaret A. S.

In makeup rules, as in rules pertaining to almost everything else, a certain elasticity must be allowed to meet special cases.

However, I do think that, as a guiding suggestion for the average woman, the rouge applied in three dots, blending it, up and along the cheekbone and temple, is good. I note, on the streets and everywhere, that the flagrantly made up faces, the glaring mistakes in rouge application, are due to carrying the coloring down too far on the cheeks and close in to the nose.

After all, rouge is an artificial coloring. It has to be recognized as such. It has to be used sparingly, which fact women with the rouged cheek complex seem to forget. So the suggestion to apply rouge in three dots and blend it in and up as advised saves any number of faces from the peril of being overdone.

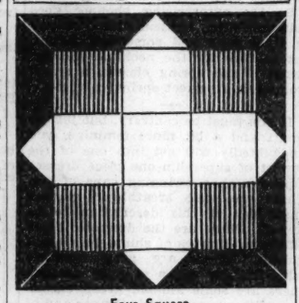
Quilters of Long Standing Recall Beauty of Block



Four Square.

Patterns in this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Several elderly women of my acquaintance have spoken in glowing reminiscence of the beauty of this old and not so well known quilt block. The simplicity of the pattern and design should make it one of the most popular of quilt patterns. Its history is vague. Two of my friends attribute the quilt to Ohio, another names Maine, and the fourth woman has just received it from a niece in Indiana.

With her second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Active acne conditions demand one thing—the attention of a dermatologist. No intelligent beauty adviser will attempt to take the place of the physician. To the real acne sufferer we say: "Take thy troubles to a physician."

But there are the in-betweens—those women who perhaps outgrew a mild acne condition, who never saw a physician about it, and who now have the sort of skin that needs constant attention. They have skin that is coarse in texture and that needs special treatment.

To them we recommend a wash we've worked with most successfully. For the skin that always looks grimy it works wonders. A heavy paste, it is used with hot water, and serves either as a supplement or a substitute for soap and water. It's a cleanser—and it clears up the skin that is always handicapped either with general muddiness or little black spots here and there. Plenty of mature women have this condition—which is not acne—and they might well look into the matter of this pore and blackhead wash. To supplement this there is a lotion called a "pore reducer."

The two together are boons to the woman with coarse skin that seems always to be a bit unclean looking and that, under close inspection, seems to be yawning and grimy of pore.

The wash is grand for backs, elbows, and those areas of the face that seem to have a weakness for the muddy look. And for healthy youngsters whose skins seem to be going the wrong way it's a find indeed.

George H. Malcolms and Daughter to Useppa.

The George H. Malcolms and Miss Durie left Friday for Useppa Island, where they will spend a few weeks. . . . The Kenneth S. Templetons and Miss Josephine will head for the same place when they leave around the 20th for a trip. The younger Templeton son, Kenneth Jr., will accompany them south, and James will join them there for his spring vacation from St. Mark's. . . . Miss Emeline Bush is enjoying a late winter vacation in Jamaica with her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Gentry. . . . The Stuart Logans left last Friday for Palm Beach.

Arthur M. Barnhart has returned from the east, but his mother, Mrs. Arthur M. Barnhart, is remaining in New York for the rest of the winter. . . . Mrs. Stresenreuter Strotz, who is living in New York this winter with her mother, Mrs. Carlo Filipponi, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Stresenreuter Butler, who has an apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue this winter. . . . Mrs. J. Hill Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Curtis, Dr. Carl Davis, Selden F. White and the John T. Fitzgeralds are among the Chicagoans at Sea Island, Ga., this season. . . . Mrs. Charles E. Dox and her daughter, Miss Dorothy, who have been at the Drake this winter, will go to New York in about three weeks for a short vacation.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne Going to England.

Getting ready to move after living in one apartment for many years and at the same time preparing for a trip to England shortly after moving interfered with Mrs. James Ward Thorne's plans for accompanying Mr. Thorne upon a vacation to Yucatan upon which he embarked Friday. The Thornes will move from 1200 Lake Shore drive a few blocks north to 1500 May 1 and as soon as they are settled Mrs. Thorne will be off for England to do some interesting things in the line in which she excels, making period rooms in miniature.

A month in paradise, as adventurers term it, is in store for Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, who is sailing from San Francisco Wednesday to join her son, Ralph Jr., in Tahiti. Young Mr. Poole started off around the world last fall and when he arrived in Tahiti recently he enjoyed the Society Islands so much that he wrote his mother urging her to join him there. Mrs. Poole will not return until May, for there is a boat only once a month to Tahiti.

Mr. Poole will go to Bermuda for his spring trip. He plans to take the younger son, Richard, to the island for his Easter vacation from school. Miss Nancy Poole, who is a student at Sarah Lawrence, will be in Bermuda, too, for she is going down with a group of girls from college.

Lake View Society Hears Russian Music Today.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel the Lake View Musical society will give the third of a series of yearly international exchange concerts, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. A group of women interested in the work of Antimo Beneduce, Italian water color artist, will serve tea this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock to open an exhibition of his water colors in the Breckenridge gallery on North Michigan avenue. The women are Mrs. Otho F. Ball, Mrs. Frederick A. Poole Jr., Mrs. Jacob Bischof, Mrs. Sydney Heap, Miss Clara Lake, Mrs. Andrew Sherriff and Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

Slim Lines for Mature Figure

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This pretty dress is cut on flattering and slenderizing lines, and will be becoming to the majority of women. The deep, open front, filled in with a lace vestee and finished at the waistline with a small bow, helps in making a figure appear slim. The back and front both are cut in one piece from neck to hem. Any of the printed or plain silk crêpes, and printed cottons, too, will make up well.

The pattern, No. 3059, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

Don't Be Too Free with Kisses, Girls, but Use Some Tact

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Dee was escorted home one evening. The young man went through the usual ceremonies of collecting his tax for the date; may we call it. Or, as some of the boys insist, just to show he knows what's expected, he delivered a kiss. Dee sets herself up indignantly as "not that kind of girl." The young man exited as gracefully as possible with the rebuff rankling.

Dee didn't hear from him again until she called him up and invited him over, when she proceeded to show that she IS "that kind of girl."

The young man is confused. Naturally, with this advance of hers, the boy subjected her to a little more mauling than she was looking for. Now she's mad clear through. So's the boy.

So make up your mind, young women. You can't do the two-faced act and get away with it. If you want to set yourself up as the girl who isn't every escort's easy pickings, then hold to your intentions. Good intentions, too, we insert right here.

When you're letting a boy down on that first man-handling experience, you can do it without hitting him over the head with either hand or tongue.

Peanut Butter and Ingenuity Work Miracles

BY MARY MEADE.

"Mother-r-r-r, can I have a peanut butter sandridge, huh, please?"

"Run along outside, Junior. Mother needs all the peanut butter herself for cooking."

Life may look pretty dark for Junior at times like this, but mother is having a swell time. The jar of peanut butter vanishes during the excitement, but when the smoke clears away there's a beautiful array of cookies, breads, sauces, or other knickknacks all modestly attributing their success in life to the contents of that self-same jar.

The recipes we're listing here don't cover the whole field of what may be accomplished with a bit of peanut butter, accompanied by a dash of ingenuity, but they're offered as a sample of what can be done. The first aptly illustrates the versatility of the stuff by turning it into a luncheon loaf.

Peanut Butter Rice Loaf.

3 cups cooked rice
1 cup medium white sauce
1 cup peanut butter
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg, slightly beaten
¾ cup fresh bread crumbs

Mix all of the ingredients and pack into a greased loaf pan. Bake for 35 minutes at 350 degrees F. and serve hot with a hot, well seasoned tomato sauce. You may want to serve the loaf with a hot peanut butter sauce, like this:

Brown Nut Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons peanut butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups chicken stock
Salt, pepper

Brown the butter carefully, add the peanut butter, and finally blend with the flour. Continue browning and pour in the stock gradually, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point, season, and serve hot.

Bread takes on a little peanut butter next, with delightful results.

Peanut Butter Bread.

2 cups flour
1-3 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup peanut butter
1 well beaten egg
⅞ cup milk

Sift together the dry ingredients. Work into this, with a fork, the peanut butter, which has been mixed with the beaten egg. Add the milk, pour into a greased pan, and bake 50 to 60 minutes in a moderate oven.

Now for the cookies. These are the refrigerator kind, made doubly delicious by the addition of whole bran cereal and peanut butter.

Peanut Butter Refrigerator Cookies.

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups whole bran cereal
½ cup shortening
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons milk

Sift the flour with the salt, baking powder, and mix with the bran cereal. Cream the shortening, add the peanut butter and, when fluffy and well blended, add the brown and white sugars alternately. Beat in the eggs, and then add the flour mixture alternately with tablespoons of the milk. Shape in a long roll, chill, and slice thin. Bake on a greased sheet at 400 degrees for 8 minutes. If the roll is made an inch and a half in diameter and the cookies cut in ¼ inch slices, this recipe will yield about 4 dozen cookies, enough to stock up the cookie jar for several days.

His Allowance May Help Child to Self-Denial

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Self-denial.

Self-discipline.

Do they sound old fashioned to you? Or do you think that we consider them so? Or do you yourself think they look out-dated in a modern column on child training?

They're not old fashioned virtues, and they'll never be out-dated, and they are taken into consideration by the sound modern child psychologist, because they are tools to help the child carve out a fulfilled life. Or call it the "good" life if you want to, as long as you keep a broad conception of "good."

What may be old fashioned about self-denial is the way the term used to be used. Self-denial for the sake of self-denial used to be considered a virtuous practice. Nowadays we do not believe in asking a child to practice it as an abstract virtue. We believe in self-denial not as an end in itself but as a means to an end.

To me one of the great lessons for a boy or girl to learn is to go without a less desirable thing in order to have a more desirable one—to refrain from doing something now in order to be able to do something of more value later—to practice immediate self-denial for ultimate satisfaction. Not that we call all this by name to the child, because we don't.

There are many opportunities in adolescence and pre-adolescence for these lessons to be learned. But they occur also in earlier childhood in smaller ways. One of the smaller opportunities for this kind of character training lies in the giving of an allowance to a child. This not only teaches him the value and the use of money—it not only gives him a feeling of independence—but in giving him a chance to save for some definite purchase, it helps him to practice self-control in the present for a gain in the future.

And I definitly don't mean by that saving out of a little allowance to put money in the large or small bank for some vague and faraway purpose. Those distant and impersonal ends have no reality for a child.

When I say saving I mean saving for a definite end well in sight—such as going without buying candy so that eventually he can buy a bag of marbles, or a pair of skates.

This subject will be continued tomorrow.

Goodman Tries New Juvenile Drama Theory

BY MARCIA WINN.

It is Saturday afternoon in the Goodman theater—children's matinée hour! Five hundred children sit in breathless anticipation as a gay Red Riding Hood skips through a summer forest to the cottage of her aged grandmother.

Approaching the cottage by another route comes a bold young wolf, a wolf that has all the attributes of man. He walks, he talks, he laughs in glee. At only one time does he revert to type—when he gets excited, he barks like a dog.

Peering cautiously around, he knocks at the cottage door. No answer. The childish audience squirms in terror. He knocks again. Still no answer. He starts to recite the password by which he may win admission:

"One-two,
I come to you;
Three-four,
I'm at the door;
Five-six,
The wolf plays tricks."

And just then, overcome by excitement, he barks! Through all the house goes a gasp of relief, a gurgle of delight, for the children know that the wolf has given himself away and the grandmother is safe. Instantly, all tension relaxes, and the play goes on.

Thus is a new theory of children's drama being promulgated at the Goodman theater—a theory based on a psychological study of childish playgoers during the past three years.

This theory, Mrs. Charlotte Barrow Chorpenning, director of the children's theater, explains, consists simply of following scenes of terror or tension by scenes of great beauty or sudden humor, thereby permitting the unpleasant reaction to occupy the juvenile mind for only a few seconds.

"You see," she explained, "parents and teachers in the past looked askance at children's plays, for either the plays were too realistic or not realistic enough. They were either blood and thunder or saccharine.

"The blood and thunder diet resulted in an intensity of emotion which had serious effects on the children's minds, but the saccharine diet left them unsatisfied, for they want and demand experience."

In the present plan, however, she thinks the happy medium has been reached. Moreover, a close check is made on each audience by having observers scattered throughout the theater to note the children's reactions. If, for instance, a child is afraid of Red Riding Hood's wolf—even her half-human comedy wolf—that child is brought back-stage to meet the fearsome creature.

Beauty also is being used as an antidote for unpleasantness. In "Cinderella," the children cried at the ugly stepmother's cruel abuse of Little Cinderella. To relieve that emotion, Cinderella's vision of her Prince Charming was introduced just as the stepmother swished off the stage—and the audience "oh'd" and "ah'd" in wonder.

"We find that beauty will do the same work as laughter," Mrs. Chorpenning said. "A little sorrow, too, is good for them—but not too much. We take the greatest pains not to rob them of excitement, but also not to let the strain get too intense."

Results already are gratifying. "Sleeping Beauty" was "sold out" eight times. "Red Riding Hood" now is being played to packed houses. The children leave without tear-stained faces, the parents bring them again and the theater feels it is successfully working out a new theory of juvenile drama.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE OTHER DEDUCTIVE DOUBLE

Last week we dealt with the deductive double of an opening bid of one after two passes. The second position in which such double can be made is on the second round, when the opening bidder passes his partner's response of one no trump. For instance, if the bidding has been:

North—One heart.
East—Pass.
South—One no trump.
West—Pass.
North—Pass.
East—[?].

East is now in a position to make a deductive double, in view of the weakness displayed by both opponents.

Let Us Get This Straight.

According to the old auction definition, a double in this position would be positively a business double because it was not made at the first opportunity. The doubler passed on the first round when he could have doubled. However, even in the later days of auction many of us made this double very optional when, after first passing an opening bid, we doubled a different bid. Here, for instance, East has passed a heart bid which he had the opportunity to double and has only taken action when that bid was changed to a no trump. This, however, is an academic point only. In contract you must treat the double on the second round as above described as a negative double but which nevertheless is very much directed at a "business pass" by West if his hand can justify it. We have scored many penalties of from 450 to 2,000 points under these circumstances—either against one no trump doubled or against doubled rescue bids into which our opponents floundered in their efforts to find a better contract than a no trump in which to take their punishment.

AGAINST SIMS PLAYERS you will not derive much profit from a deductive double or an overcall in this position when the opening bid was made by dealer or second hand. As you know, the fact that he passes the no trump response shows that his hand is defensive in type; that what it lacks in suit length it amply makes up in primary values. Consequently, if you step in lightly you are apt to be met with a redouble which one of you must take out; and now you may be the one to be doubled at two and thoroughly chastised. However, when the opening bid was made third hand and there is a no trump response followed by two passes, you should be willing to take action on the same grounds as I employ in all positions against systems which make the requirements for opening bids lighter in the first two positions than for third hand. My shaded third hand bids being mainly defensive in purposes, they must take some punishment on a proportion of hands where the cards are against them. When doubling these bids, if your partner can leave the double in, your side has twenty-six cards which are entitled to a plus score. The question now is whether or not you have a game, and in either case whether the penalty you collect is worth more than the plus score you could have registered by securing the declaration.

Never Overlook This Factor.

Remember that in all uses of the double you must bear in mind what you know of the bidding system employed by your opponents. You are always entitled to ask them what system they use and to receive an explanation of any bids forming part of it which may mean something different to the partner than they do to you. In tournaments players almost automatically announce their system as they take their seats, unless their opponents obviously know it. For those prominently identified with any well known system, this leads to plenty of kidding. My partners have been known to ask me very courteously why I do not try the Sims system, when we have got to a bad contract and they think that I am to blame for it.

$35,000 Week Rental Paid for a Barrymore

Studio Gets the Money, Though, Not He.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., March 10.—[Special.]—When Fox borrowed Lionel Barrymore from M. G. M. to play the testy father in "The Little Colonel," with Shirley Temple, Evelyn Venable, and John Lodge the price on Barrymore's services was $35,000 a week. Of course the studio got it, not Lionel.

Seeking audience reaction Jack Conway, the director of "Mystery in Room 309," sneaked into the preview crowd and kept asking a man sitting next to him what he thought about it. The man returned highly intelligent and complimentary answers. Toward the end Conway asked the man if he thought he could tell who committed the murder. "I hope to tell you," that individual replied. "My wife rehearsed the dialog with me night after night." It turned out to be Ronald Burla, husband of Una Merkel, who is co-featured in the story with Franchot Tone.

Charlie Chan, with Warner Oland up, still is catching murderers for Fox films, the current mystery being "Charlie Chan in Egypt," with Pat Paterson as feminine lead.

Fox studio has been looking for three brother triplets between 28 and 34 years old for scenes in "Secret Lives," currently featuring Mona Barrie, Adrienne Ames, and Gilbert Roland. James Ryan, casting director at Sunset and Western avenues, is the perplexed functionary whose problem it is to find them.

Mary Ellis yesterday turned down $2,500 a week for thirteen weeks to sing for a radio sponsor, the offer coming after she made a guest appearance on a Hollywood broadcast. Mary wasn't interested, because of her current film work, her intended return to opera, and her not needing $2,500 so badly as you and I.

Helen Mack will return from her honeymoon to go into "She" with Helen Gahagan and Randolph Scott at Radio-R. K. O.

"Quints" gaining weight on new Homogenized Foods

World Copyright, 1935, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Callander, Ont. (Special). Medical authorities attending the Dionne Quintuplets at Dafoe Hospital are well pleased with the impressive weight gains being recorded for the babies. Gains of 2 and 3 ounces a day are not unusual.

Libby's Homogenized vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup were selected for little Annette, Cecile, Yvonne, Marie and Emelie after careful study. It was agreed that these Homogenized foods were the ideal supplement for the babies' milk diet because they are more easily and completely digestible and provide greater nourishment than strained foods. They are the most modern safeguard against digestive upsets.

It's easy for every mother to give her baby this same head start in health the Dionne Quintuplets are receiving. Get Libby's Homogenized Foods for Babies today at your grocer's.

Chabot	11	2	9	2—24
Kerr	20	16	13	7—36

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The New York Rangers and the world champion Blackhawks upheld the best traditions of one of modern hocky's oldest feuds at the Chicago Stadium last night, but despite 70 minutes of work they could come to no more conclusive a decision than a 1 to 1 tie.

A gathering of 15,000 saw the two make a futile effort to overhaul the Boston Bruins for first place in the American section of the National Hocky league. The Bruins, by the grace of Eddie Shore's overtime goal at Detroit last night, now lead the second place Hawks by a game and a half, while the champions are only a half game ahead of the Rangers.

Kerr Is Star.

If any heroes are to be selected from last evening's game, even the stoutest Hawk fan would not deny Davie Kerr, the Ranger goalie, top ranking. Davie made 56 stops of assorted varieties, 20 of them in the first period, and not a few of them miraculous.

This is not to discount the work of Lorne Chabot, the Hawk doorman, who was called upon to make a handsome third period stop of a penalty shot by Bert Connolly of the Rangers, with the score tied at 1 and 1.

Each team opened the contest with its No. 1 forward line, the Rangers sending out Boucher and the Cooks, while Gottselig, Morenz, and March appeared for the Hawks. It was this latter trio which provided all of the offensive. Kerr made a couple of miraculous saves to stop Gottselig and March and bring the period to a scoreless conclusion.

Gottselig, Morenz, and March had Kerr in a whirl at the outset of the second period, and a penalty to the Rangers finally enabled the Hawks to score the first goal of the evening. Bun Cook was sent away for tripping March.

Morenz Bests Kerr.

Seconds later, Gottselig stole a face off from Baucher near the Ranger blue line, pursued it alone until he drew Kerr out of the cage, then passed it back to Thompson, Morenz, and March, each of whom fired a shot at the courageous Kerr. He turned them all back except Morenz's bullet shot on March's rebound, and he was a dozen feet out of his station when that went by him. The time was 2:45.

Although they trailed by only the one goal, the Rangers emerged for the third period in a somewhat frantic state, and for a time they peppered the Chicago defense with shots. It was the Ranger secondary trio which finally tied the score. Patrick burst through along the left boards, and shoveled a pass to Dillon near Chabot, who fell trying to make the stop, and it eluded him in 5:50.

Davie Has Luck.

About two minutes later Couture was given a penalty for holding Murdoch, and the Ranger fury increased, their forwards dashing in on Chabot time and again. Finally Connolly had the Chicago goalie at his mercy, but Levinsky intervened so strenuously that he was sentenced to join Couture in the box, and the Rangers were given a penalty shot, with Connolly on the firing line. Bert dashed up to the penalty circle at full speed and lined a hot one at the unprotected Chabot. Lorne made a great stop, but injured his leg and required a short time out.

The boys tapered off slightly at the opening of the overtime. The best shot of the period was delivered by Levinsky after a solo rush and scramble wherein he had the entire Ranger rear guard, including Kerr, flatfooted. Gottselig and Morenz both had Kerr at their mercy in the last minute of play, but luck was with Davie, and he finished with a 1 to 1 tie.

NEW YORK PICKS INTERCITY SQUAD OF 16 TONIGHT

20,000 to See Golden Gloves Finals in Garden.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., March 10.—New York tomorrow night will pick the 16 fighters it will send against Chicago in the eighth annual Intercity Golden Gloves bouts at the Chicago Stadium on March 29. The coronation ceremonies will be held in Madison Square Garden before 20,000.

Never before has there been such a heavy turnover in talent as New York promises to develop tomorrow night. Only three of the 16 boys who whipped Chicago, 9 bouts to 7, in Madison Square Garden last year, have survived the preliminary rounds. They are Lawrence Green, heavyweight, who was defeated by Max Marek; Phil Sommese, who was knocked out by Ario Soldati of Chicago in the first round, and Sedgewick Harvey, who as a featherweight last March won a decision from Andy Scrivani. Harvey is fighting as a lightweight this year.

Pastor Is Gone.

All seats in the Garden, save for a few hundred the management held back to accommodate last minute customers, have been sold. The demand here almost equals the number that sought admission to the Chicago finals Friday night. The New York bouts will be broadcast by a Columbia Broadcasting company chain starting at 10:15 Chicago time.

The most notable absentee in the New York cast is Bob Pastor, who clinched victory for his team last spring by thrashing Otis Thomas in the final bout of the evening. Pastor has turned professional. There are two colored heavyweights, however, both of whom are said to be almost as good as Pastor. One is Green, who last year won the subnovice championship and improved so fast he was used in the intercity bout in the runner-up position. James Howell, who is making his debut in Golden Gloves, is the other. He is not a beginner, however, for he has participated in A. A. U. and other tournaments.

Teams Appear Even.

Fans who attended the early rounds of the meet predict Green and Howell will provide a brilliant finish to tomorrow night's show if they survive their semi-final round battles. The obstacles in their paths are William Gould and Ted Walter.

As far as intercity experience goes, it is likely that the show at Chicago Stadium will find New York and Chicago evenly matched. Only three of the Chicago boys who fought in Madison Square Garden a year ago won championships in this season's tournament. They are Johnny Brown, 118 pound champion; Patsy Urso, 112 pound champion, and Andy Scrivani, 126 pound champion.

Urso was the only one of the three to turn in a victory in the 1934 intercity bouts. He started the show with a three round decision over Al Reid. Brown lost to Richard Librandi, and Scrivani was outpunched by Harvey.

New York vs. Chicago

Tickets for the eighth annual inter-city Golden Gloves bouts between Chicago and New York, at Chicago Stadium March 29, are on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower.

Thousands of late applicants were disappointed because they could not buy seats for the finals of the Chicago tournament. Thousands more will find themselves in a similar predicament for the intercity show unless they act promptly.

The prices remain the same—$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents. If you can't get to a ticket office, you may order by mail. Address applications to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE third annual interleague All-Star baseball game is four months away, but reservations already are pouring in. . . . Billy Evans predicts a capacity crowd for Cleveland's municipal stadium, where the contest will be played. . . . Paul Morrison, who played with Nebraska in 1926 and again in 1929, was among the candidates for spring football practice at Lincoln. . . . Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane's end in 1930 and 1931, may be added to the Iowa coaching staf. . . . He now is serving at Arkansas State Teachers' college. . . . Robert Wadlow, 17 year old student at Alton, Ill., High school, was ruled off the basketball squad because he was too big for the other boys. . . . Wadlow is 8 feet 1½ inches tall and weighs 370 pounds. . . . Physicians say he may continue to grow until he is 25 because of his extraordinary pituitary gland. . . . His shoes are ordered specially from a St. Louis factory. . . . The finals of tonight's Golden Gloves in New York will be broadcast over the Columbia network.

Illinois baseball players who were members of teams coached by the late Carl Lundgren are raising a fund for a portrait of the old Cub pitching star, which will be hung in Illinois gymnasium. . . . Bill Doak, former major league pitcher, is a golf pro at Bradenton, Fla. . . . Hans Wagner is 61. . . . Don Heaps, leading freshman half back on the Northwestern football squad, has eight hours of solo flying to his credit. . . . Charlie Peterson claims Smoky Joe Wood, famous old time pitcher and now coach at Yale, has the greatest billiard stroke of any amateur. . . . Frank Boucher has several offers from London and Paris to coach hocky. . . . Casey Stengel says the reason for the prolonged fielding drill for his pitchers each day is the sickening memory of the Dodgers losing a game last year because a pitcher reached down for a bunt and picked up his foot.

Alex Hooks, who probably will play first base for the Athletics, was a star end on the Southern Methodist football team eight years ago. . . . Lefty Gomez, who took several reels of movies on his world trip, prizes most of all a shot of Babe Ruth running around Bali in a pair of shorts. . . . The New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens may tour Europe after the Stanley cup playoffs. . . . Palmer House Jack Ryan has retired to a simple life on a Texas ranch where he hopes to live down the title "betting commissioner" and become known as a horseman. . . . John Law, former Notre Dame football captain who has been coaching the Sing Sing eleven for the last two years, has become so interested in penology he will make a carcer of it and has accepted a position as assistant to Warden Lawes. . . . Mel Ott, who went hitless the last twenty-five times at bat in 1934, smashed the first ball pitched to him in spring training for a home run. . . . "I have been waiting five months to see if I could still do that," he beamed.

Al Simmons has the travel bug. . . . He already is trying to figure out a warm spot where he can enjoy life next winter. . . . He will go to Australia if plans materialize for taking a big league squad to the antipodes. . . . Last summer when race tracks were losing heavily Santa Anita officials were weeping over their recklessness in announcing a $100,000 purse for their big race in February. . . . Yet the mutuel rake-off and admissions on the day of the race paid the purse and left a handsome profit. . . . Tex Carleton of the Cubs, generally supposed to have disliked Dizzy Dean when they were teammates at St. Louis, says he considers Dizzy the best pitcher he has seen.

Ten Years Ago Today—Northwestern's basketball team defeated Chicago, 17 to 16. . . . Chicago bookmakers were hit for $200,000 when a group of New York gamblers put over a race coup at Miami. . . . Quatrain, colt owned by Frederick Johnson, was favorite to win the Louisiana Derby. . . . Paavo Nurmi broke the world's 3,000 meter record. . . . The Chicago Bruins basketball team defeated the Beloit Fairies, 29 to 26.

Babe Meets Dizzy; Says: 'It's O. K., Kid'

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Baseball's two outstanding personalities, Babe Ruth and Dizzy Dean, shook hands today, assured each other there were no hard feelings and agreed it was great to be fellow National leaguers.

The occasion was the second game of the exhibition series between the Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds. It came unexpectedly, but the meeting overshadowed the fact that the Reds' rookie team pounded three of the Braves' first string pitchers unmercifully and won, 12 to 1, to square accounts.

Dean, who with other Cardinal stars traveled 50 miles to see a ball game, fulfilled his promise to seek out Ruth at the earliest opportunity and remove any suspicion from the Babe's mind about what Dizzy thought of the great slugger's shift to the National league.

The conversation ran something like this:

"H'ya, Babe?"

"H'ya, Kid?"

"Say, I'm glad to see you in a National League uniform, big fellow."

"Yeah, it's O. K."

"I hope you didn't think I said all those things they quoted me in the papers on."

"Naw, I didn't. There's no hard feelings."

"Well, they got me wrong in the papers."

"O.K., Kid."

"Say, you know I only beat the Braves once the last two years. With you in there I probably won't beat this club at all this year."

"Well, I'll be in there swinging."

"Well, good luck, Babe."

"Good luck, kid."

Ruth, for the second straight day, played only five and a half innings. He failed to get a hit in three times at bat against two recruits from Toronto, Gene Schott and Al Hollingsworth, a southpaw.

This Pup's Family Seems to Get 'Round Quite a Bit

Cleveland, O., March 10.—(AP)—For a prize winning dog, Intruder makes a sorry looking champion, as pure bred champions go. Yet he was awarded a first place at the nineteenth annual show of the Western Reserve Kennel club.

One of the contests in the show was to discover the dog with the greatest mixture of breeds in his makeup. There was a dog named Rags, something like a poodle, and a Scottie, which took third place, and one, named Duffer, which was given second place for resembling a terrier of some kind.

But the judges gave first position to Intruder when they found signs that he was related to the wire haired terrier, Boston bull, Scottish terrier, West Highland white, Cairn terrier, Sealyham, poodle, Spitz, Chihuahua, and pug.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 10.—The Chicago Cub reserves, otherwise the Yannigans, this afternoon absorbed their second shutout in two days, when the regulars took them in, 7 to 0. To add to the discomfiture of the reserves the goose egging was accomplished by three pitchers of dubious rating, Roy Henshaw being the only one of the trio who is under any sort of Cub contract.

The Yannigans were held to three hits, an infield scratch by Augie Galan, a double by Woody English and a line single by Frankie Demaree.

Five balls were hit to the outfield, including two of the three hits. Today's game was scheduled as the last of the 1935 intraclub games, but it is possible that another will be played Tuesday to give the Yannigans a chance to score at least one run before they are disbanded as a team.

Hit Lee and Carleton.

While the reserve strength was showing no strength the regulars did right well as they went about the business of making four runs off Bill Lee and Tex Carleton, two of the contemplated Big Four pitchers. The regulars made one run off Lee on two hits and a fly before the bases were loaded with the help of two Yannigan errors in the first inning.

A homer by Ken O'Dea led off the second inning to complete the scoring against Lee.

A single by O'Dea, another by Cuyler, which was one of three hits made by Ki, and a double by Herman gave the regulars two runs off Carleton in his first inning of work, the fourth. After this Tex tightened up. Three batsmen faced him in the fifth, and after Stephenson had opened the sixth with a scratch single the former Cardinal fanned Grant, Cuyler, and Herman in succession.

The last three regular runs were made off a fellow named Kumulae, a guitarist.

Storm Sweeps Island.

The weather was perfect for the game, though a few hours before the contest hope of playing it was very low. A storm swept the island during the night, and Owner Phil Wrigley and a party of guests were marooned overnight at his ranch up in the mountains, and couriers had taken word that the game could not be played.

Cub executives gathered at the slope leading to the ball diamond and were singing "He'll Be Coming 'round the Mountain When He Comes." And sure enough Mr. Wrigley and his guests came roarin' 'round the mountain and the game was reinstated; only the starting time was switched from 12:30 to 1 o'clock. Mr. Wrigley came 'round the mountain at 12:17.

Dykes to Call on White Sox Pitchers For Foolers Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 10.—So far as the coming week is concerned the various members of the White Sox pitching staf may have a pleasant time. But it also will be a busy and important one. Starting tomorrow Manager Jim Dykes is going to ask them to unfold the best they possess in the way of foolers. In other words, the program will call for the throwing of curve balls and other tricky items for all except the old fellows, who require a little more time before going to extremes.

To date the pitchers have done nothing worse than throw, but when yesterday's practice session closed all young bloods actually were doing their throwing with such industry that they produced real speed. They managed that without giving any indication that their arms weren't well toughened and loose, hence the order for the curve ball exhibition tomorrow. The exhibition will continue right up to the end of the season, and Dykes hopes that long before it will be worth watching.

Relies on Freshman Pitchers.

The training camp now has been in operation for a period of ten days, and Dykes declares he has seen nothing startling, but this isn't to be taken as an indication that he is discouraged. He's far from that. He hasn't seen anything because he hasn't been particularly attentive to any one or two men and because he has permitted them to follow a leisurely course of training. But Dykes still believes he is going to see something of consequence before long and that it will come from his freshman crop of pitchers.

If he is able to pour added strength into the pitching staf, it isn't difficult to concede that the Sox really have a chance to vacate their humble eighth place dwelling. The catching, with Luke Sewell in operation, will be vastly improved. If Vernon George Washington, the American association acquisition, hits up to his reputation, the attack will be fairly formidable with Simmons, Bonura, Washington, and Appling lined up in a row. It's an attack that has far better possibilities than any Sox team of recent years.

Sewell Will Help.

So long as Dykes is going to try to move out of last place by using young pitchers, he couldn't have had a better break than the one that fetched Sewell's services to the Sox.

Sewell has been in the league so long he knows all there is to know about different hitters. Besides this, he has handled dozens of pitchers during his terms at Cleveland and Washington. Between the two, he should get results, unless all young pitchers are hopeless and that's hardly likely.

The Sox now have four more days for routine training before opening their exhibition schedule. This was to be next Saturday against the Cubs, but the addition of an affair with the Los Angeles club at Santa Monica next Friday shortens the practice program.

Sore Arms Are Missing.

However, four days more will be sufficient to get all hands into presentable condition. They have worked easily each day and the weather has been chilly most of the time, but, nevertheless, they are as far advanced as Dykes wants them at this time. The main thing is that there have been no serious accidents and no sore arms among pitchers.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 10.—When The Wake arrived in California it was time for the Rose Bowl contest. Alabama took Stanford to a beautiful trimming largely through the Howell to Hutson passing combination. Coast newspaper writers were lavish in their praise of the southerners. They refrained from calling the Palo Alto eleven stupid and flat footed, which some easterners did not refrain from doing.

Southern California, formerly a football ruler in these parts, was pretty generally kicked around last fall. It lost to Notre Dame and Pittsburgh of the east. Due credit was given the victors in each instance.

The Chicago Bears and Chicago Cardinals, pro football elevens, thumped soundly—all too soundly for succeeding attendance purposes—squads of Pacific coast all-stars. The Bears and Cardinals were called the greatest gridiron aggregations ever gathered together.

All this acclaim came from the California climate boosters, who, we had supposed, were so immersed in their own sunshine that anything from east of the Rocky mountains cast a shadow of itself. Comment was impartial and fair, almost leaning backward in some instances. Where was that clannishness of which we had heard, that boastfulness we often had read? We put the question to a former middle westerner here, now as loyal to California as any native son. His reply was:

"Californians are good losers, sportsmanlike in acceptance of defeat. They are poor winners. That's when they become offensive to those from other sections. Let me explain:

"California, in common with the entire Pacific coast, is devoted to sports which an all year round climate makes possible. It recognizes and almost worships accomplishment whether that accomplishment be by home teams or by visitors. It has great faith in its own performers. So if visitors beat the home boys, they must be good. You seldom hear excuses for defeat. Alibis are less common than in the east.

"On the other hand, when the home teams win, nothing is too lavish to say in their favor. This appraisal becomes so extravagant that it arouses resentment elsewhere. When Southern California was tops in football, we heard so much about Trojan prowess that those of us who were merely followers, and not partisans, actually welcomed Trojan discomfiture. Right now, try to tell us you have any comparable track athletes in the east after long continued success of California track squads, also under the disadvantage of traveling, in eastern collegiate track meets.

"Yes, come out and beat us and we'll give you a break. Lose and be prepared to be annoyed about what we say about ourselves. It's the climate, I guess."

These Famous First Robins.

How marvelous now, since no swallows appear
Is the multiple robin, first of the year,
For those who go scouting in regions remote
To hear Number One his authority quote.

Let's keep to our counting, be sure of our plot,
In putting one Robin [or ten] on the spot;
For soon may it happen—where one Robin flew,
We'll fill the front page with a dozen or two.

These famous "First Robins" the multiple kind—
Need no credentials, spoken or signed;
One on a woodpile or ten in a tree . . .
O, many First Robins may all of us see!

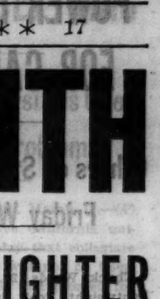
U. S. FIGHTER FLOORED THREE TIMES IN SIXTH

'Now for Baer,' Says Ex-Champion.

HAMBURG, March 10.—(AP)—Fighting one of the greatest battles of his career, Max Schmeling put himself squarely in line for a championship match with Max Baer in June by beating Steve Hamas into a state of complete helplessness in nine rounds tonight.



MAX SCHMELING.

Seldom has any fighter absorbed more punishment than Hamas did before the little Belgian schoolmaster - referee, Valoni, halted the twelve round bout after one minute and 20 seconds of fighting in the ninth and awarded the victory to Schmeling on a technical knockout. The New Jersey heavyweight, a football player and former all-around athlete at Penn State college, was draped on the ropes, taking a vicious bombardment without semblance of a defense.

Down Three Times in Sixth.

Down three times for counts of nine in the sixth round, Hamas gamely stuck it out for three more chapters. Hamas scarcely could raise a glove in his own defense in the last two rounds, rocking around the ring like a rudderless ship in a high sea as Schmeling stalked him.

His face scarcely recognizable as he sat in his dressing room, Hamas refused to offer any sort of alibi.

"I simply ran into a better man," he muttered between battered lips.

Manager Charley Harvey insisted that Hamas strained a ligament in his left arm a week ago. Steve, according to his veteran manager, had been receiving steady treatment for the injury but had failed to get much relief. It still hurts him even to flex his biceps, Harvey said.

A German physician admitted he had treated Hamas for five days.

Report $300,000 Offer.

It was learned reliably that Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, has been cabled a new offer of $300,000 for a Schmeling-Baer title match this summer. The fight, if held, would be subsidized by the government and held in the new Olympic stadium in Berlin.

For the capacity crowd of 25,000 there never was any doubt as to the result. Hamas appeared slow and completely in a fog even before the terrific sixth round assault when only the bell saved him from a knockout.

Hamas landed possibly no more than a dozen solid blows during the bout. Schmeling waded in at the outset, punching sharply and cleanly, never deigning to throw up a defense against his opponent's feeble blows. After watching their idol smother Hamas so convincingly, the spectators were wondering how Steve ever had beaten Schmeling in their first meeting in Philadelphia a year ago.

The weights were: Schmeling, 189 pounds; Hamas, 190.

Hamas in Trouble Early.

After a cautious start, Hamas thudded home a pair of good lefts, but from there on he was in constant trouble. Schmeling rushed the American to the ropes, drummed him steadily about the body and took the first round by a wide margin. In the second Hamas was forced to remain strictly on the defensive in the face of the German's rushing attack. Three short, hard rights to the head had Hamas staggering at the bell.

Even at this early stage it was apparent that Hamas was outclassed. He was swinging wildly, futilely, while Schmeling's short, jolting rights and lefts found their target with unerring accuracy. Through the third, fourth, and fifth rounds Hamas retreated steadily, taking severe punishment about the body and buckling at the knees every time Schmeling shifted to the head and connected solidly with a right.

Max Floors Foe.

The battle really ended in the sixth round. After a good start Hamas ran into a right hand punch that dumped him on the canvas in his own corner for a count of nine. Another right, and then another, sent the American down twice more for nine counts. He staggered to his feet, absolutely defenseless as Max poured rights and lefts into his body in a steady fusillade, but the bell came to his rescue.

His lips swollen to twice their normal size, bleeding freely, Hamas came out courageously for the seventh round. He was out on his feet, just a standing target for the sharp-shooting Teuton.

The referee tried to persuade Hamas to quit during the rest period between the seventh and eighth rounds but Steve refused. He took one of the worst beatings in heavyweight history in this round, and could barely walk to his corner at the finish. The punishment continued in the ninth round, but Schmeling, arm-weary, could not put the American down again. Max had Steve on the ropes, pouring in punches with both hands, when the referee finally stepped between them.

WOODS FLASHES POWER IN DRILL FOR CANZONERI

Others on Stadium's Card Friday Workout.

Chuck Woods, 22 year old Detroit lightweight, took his first workout yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium for his ten round windup bout against Tony Canzoneri of New York at Chicago Stadium Friday. Woods arrived Saturday, accompanied by Dave Knight, co-manager, and Trainer Jack Fielding. He will open boxing drills at the same gymnasium this afternoon.

Woods' display of pep and vigor and his demonstration as he punched the stuffing out of the light and heavy bags made a hit with observers. His ability is little known to some fans, but those who saw him beat Canzoneri in their first meeting at Detroit Feb. 26 are confident he will chalk up a second triumph.

Veteran of 140 Fights.

Woods has been boxing professionally six year and has engaged in 140 contests. These bouts, only 14 of which he lost, primed Chuck for his big test, and when it arrived he made use of it. His previous encounter with Canzoneri was his first against nationally known opposition.

Woods, a Serbian lad, is 5 feet 7 inches tall. He is heavily built, but this fact does not seem to lessen his speed. He says he never has been knocked out. He has been knocked down only once. Prior to his Detroit engagement with Canzoneri Woods knocked out Amsey Rimsey, who fought here under under the name of Baby Joe Gans and beat Billy Miller.

Canzoneri Spars Today.

Canzoneri rested yesterday. He will spar two rounds each with Nick Scalba and Ben Irving today, Manager Sam Goldman said. Tony looked fit and ready to fight at a moment's notice.

Mike Belloise, New York featherweight star, arrived yesterday. He loosened up for his ten round match with Varias Milling of the Philippine Islands. Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior lightweight, went four rounds against two sparmates, but his opponent in the third ten rounder, Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids, Mich., confined himself to shadow boxing, rope skipping and bag punching.

Max Elling, Pittsburgh middleweight, yesterday was substituted for George Black against Tony Zale, Gary, Ind., in the eight round main event at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. Black was taken off the card because of a tooth infection. Elling's most notable accomplishments are two triumphs he registered over Joe Bazzone. Supporting matches:

Syl Sylesky vs. Sam Adams [6], 153; Gene Connelly vs. Scotty McLean [4], 193; Harry Garbell vs. Walter Matthys [4], 126; George Engel vs. Al Pahl [4], 142; Frank Malcewicz vs. Ernie Peterson [wrestling].

Holman Williams, Milwaukee, Wis., and Eddie Ward, Chicago, will clash in the eight round feature encounter tonight at Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. It has been set at 137 pounds. Johnny Fitzpatrick and Eddie Jackson are paired in a five round preliminary match. Another at this distance matches Johnny Liston with Earl Mason. Four round events will bring together Fred Cleveland and John Penn, and Ed Schiller and Vincent Satkoff.

ATHLETICS GET TO HUBBELL; WIN FROM GIANTS, 5-3

Bartell Hits Home Run with Two on Base.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics rallied after two straight defeats and whipped the New York Giants, 5 to 3, in an exhibition game today. Ed Coleman's triple off Allyn Stout, followed by singles by Charley English and Alex Hooks, produced the deciding runs.

The A's touched Carl Hubbell for three runs in the first on singles by Cramer, Moses, Higgins, and English, a pass, and an error by Jackson, but the star southpaw settled down in the next two innings and struck out five. Dick Bartell's home run with two aboard brought in the Giant tallies in the third.

Score:

Athletics	300	002	000	5	8	2
Giants	003	000	000	3	5	2

Batteries—Cascarella, C. Lieber, Marcum, and Foxx; Hubbell, Stout, Luque, and Mancuso, Richards.

DODGER VARSITY WINS.

Orlando, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers staged their first intra-camp game of the training season today. The regulars, presenting the same lineup that finished the 1934 season, with a few exceptions, defeated the Yannigans, 5 to 3.

Seven errors by the Yannigans made the victory easy. Bob Logan and Les Munns pitched for the varsity, while Rookie Frank Lamanske hurled impressively for the losers.

DIZZY DEAN TO PITCH.

Bradenton, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean will be one of the pitchers in the St. Louis Cardinals' first exhibition game of the season Tuesday, Manager Frank Frisch announced.

Dizzy is expected to work about three innings against the Phillies. Terry Moore, who batted .328 last year at Columbus, where he was considered the best outfielder in the minor leagues, will be in center field for the cards.

HORNSBY WILL PLAY.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby expects to be in the St. Louis Browns' opening day lineup and hopes he may be able to play half the season's schedule.

"I don't kid myself," he said, "I can't cover enough ground for that shortstop job. But I can play second, third, or even subsitute at first base."

OWEN IS AILING.

Lakeland, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Marvin Owen, third baseman for the Detroit Tigers, may be the season's first casualty for the defending champions of the American league. Owen Wired Mickey Cochrane today he would not reach training camp until Thursday because he was recuperating from a sinus operation at Hot Springs, Ark.

"Owen says he feels all right, but that he lost weight," said Cochrane. Owen was one of the big cogs of the Tiger infield in 1934 and played every game.

PHILLIES BEAT YANS.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The regulars defeated the yannigans, 9 to 1, today in the first battle of the Phillies in their spring training camp. The first string men touched Collins and Jorgens for eight hits, including a home run by Lou Chiozza. The yannigans were helpless against the hurling of Johnson, E. Moore and Bivin.

ROOKIE STOPS SENATORS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 10.—(AP)—Manager Bucky Harris isn't worried about his Washington Senators' pitching staf, but he marveled today as he watched Rookie Reese Digges tame the sluggers during batting practice.

Harris predicted Digges would be a regular member of the hurling corps before the season ended. "He has a kind of sneak motion like Schoolboy Rowe's," said Harris, as his sluggers kept popping up easy flies.

INDIANS, 7; PELICANS, 5.

New Orleans, La., March 10.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians defeated the New Orleans Pelicans, 7 to 5, today in the opening game of the spring exhibition season.

The tribe's lineup included only two of last year's regulars. Bruce Campbell, the only seasoned major leaguer among the new Redskins, led the attack with three singles in three times at bat.

Score:

Cleveland	205	000	00*	7	11	2
New Orleans	011	010	002	5	8	2

Batteries—Galehouse, Milnar, Hundra, and George, Garbark; Suche, Davis, Walle, and Helf, Fernandes.

PIRATES TRIUMPH, 3-1.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Engaging in their first exhibition on their new training grounds, the Pittsburgh Pirates today beat the Acme Brews, a local sand lot team, 3 to 1.

J. Salveson, Osborne, Bush, and Johnson took turns on the Pirates' pitching mound, while Lester White, formerly of the Texas league, worked out for the Brews. Bill Brubaker drove out a homer in the fifth inning.

Score:

Acme Brews	100	000	000	1	5	4
Pirates	100	010	10*	3	11	2

Batteries—White and M. Deweese; J. Salveson, Osborne, Bush, Johnson and Epps.

WARREN BEATS HOUSEHOLDER IN 25 LAP BATTLE

Pat Warren, Los Angeles champion pilot, beat Ronnie Householder in a spectacular midget auto race before a record crowd of 9,000 last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

A field of twelve cars started in this main event of 25 laps. Tudy Marchese broke in front, Warren was in second place and Johnny Sawyer was pacing third. After going two laps Warren pulled up on even terms with Marchese.

On the tenth lap Warren took the lead by a slight margin, Marchese was second, and Householder was moving up fast and gaining on the leaders. They held these positions until the 20th lap. Marchese hit a hole on the south turn, causing him to lose considerable ground. Warren went on to win by two lengths over Householder, who just got up in the last yard to beat the unlucky Marchese. A new track record of 5:47 minutes was hung up for the distance.

Warren also won the main event of fifteen laps on the children's matinee card.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.

Boston, 2; Detroit, 1.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—(AP)—Eddie Shore's overtime goal tonight gave the Boston Bruins a 2 to 1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings in a National Hocky league match before a crowd of 8,000. The victory gave Boston a record of five victories and one tie in six games with the Wings this year.

In the first period Clapper gave the Bruins a lead when his backhand shot struck the leg of Buswell, Wing defenseman, and rolled into the Detroit net.

From that point until the final minute of the third period, the Bruins' defense was too tight for the Wing four and five man attack. Then Sorrell, aided by Weiland and Lewis, flipped one past Thompson to send the game into overtime. Shore's goal came at the overtime halfway mark on a pass from Beattie.

In the third period Nels Stewart, Bruin center, drew a $25 fine and a 10 minute misconduct penalty for language offensive to Referee Cleghorn.

Sparta Beats Hungarians in Soccer, 4 to 0

Sparta opened the spring soccer season yesterday with a 4 to 0 triumph over the Hungarians at Sparta stadium. Despite the presence of several reinforcements in the lineup, the Hungarians were no match for the winners. Goalie Catlin, however, made several remarkable stops and was the star of the contest.

Vleck's goal gave Sparta a 1 to 0 lead at the end of the first period. When play was resumed, Sparta drove hard and within ten minutes Vleck scored again. Wolf also kicked one home to add to the margin. The Hungarians then worked the ball down field, but Magarey, with only Baer to beat, missed an easy chance. Wolf connected for his second goal a few moments before the end of the game. Lineups:

Neilson booted in 4 goals, Cuthbert scored twice, while Munroe, Hill, Thomson and Watson each added a point.

Maccabee held first place in the Professional league, winning from the Lawndale Rangers, 2 to 1, in another game yesterday.

AWARD CHICAGO NATIONAL MATCH BOWLING TRIALS

Chicago has been awarded the national match game bowling eliminations and Schueneman's Lake View alleys, 3239 N. Clark street, chosen as the site by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

The finals will be held from April 22 to 28 and will determine the man and woman who will bowl Otto Stein Jr. of St. Louis and Mrs. Marie Warmbier of Chicago, holders of the match game titles.

Marmion High Five Beats Rockford in Final, 32-22

Marmion High school last night won its third consecutive championship in the annual Rockford diocese basketball tournament, defeating St. Thomas of Rockford, 32 to 22, at Aurora to obtain permanent possession of the Bishop Hoban award. St. Mary's of Woodstock defeated Aquin of Freeport, 25 to 21, for third place.

Tilden's Net Troupe Plays at N.U. Tonight

The four musketeers of professional tennis, headed by the veteran campaigner of them all, Bill Tilden, will engage in another combat on the courts at Patten gymnasium in Evanston tonight.

For the first time in his long career, Tilden will find himself in a secondary rôle tonight, since the feature of the evening will be the singles match between Ellsworth Vines and Hans Nusslein, Vines, holder of the world professional title, will renew his feud with the German, who wrested the United States professional championship from him at the South Shore Country club last summer.

Big Bill Faces George Lott.

But Tilden, still the favorite of the tennis galleries, will focus attention upon himself when he clashes with George Lott, Chicago veteran, in the other singles match of the evening. This pair has participated in a series of matches since Lott joined the pro ranks last month.

Although Tilden holds a wide margin of victories over Lott, the latter is narrowing the gap as he becomes more accustomed to indoor playing conditions. One of the most spectacular matches promises to be the doubles between Lott and Nusselein and Tilden and Vines.

Nusslein has replaced Lester Stoefen, Lott's former partner, but the change is not expected to weaken the strength of the team. The stocky little German is an experienced doubles player, possessing a powerful overhand drive.

They Do Well Together.

Tilden and Vines have been teaming together for two seasons, and now rank as one of the most formidable doubles teams in the game. They demonstrated their mastery by defeating Lott and Stoefen, last year's world amateur doubles champions, upon the occasion of the latter's entry into pro ranks.

Playing a close defensive game in the last half, Leo stepped out in front to score eleven points in the third quarter. De Paul failed to score in the first period, and Leo led, 8 to 5, at the half.

COAST COLLEGES TAKE STEPS TO END PROSELYTING

3 Major Universities Open Fight on Problem.

San Francisco, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Presidents of three California universities warned today that collegiate athletic proselyting will not be tolerated in their schools and pleaded for the coöperation of the faculties, students and alumni "if this difficult problem is to be handled."

A conference between Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid of Southern California, Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford, and Robert G. Sproul of the University of California, resulted in the issuance of a joint statement containing such significant paragraphs as:

"We are conscious of the increasing complaints regarding the methods used in the solicitation of athletes for Pacific coast institutions, including those we represent. If this difficult problem is to be handled, it must come through the coöperative action of the faculties, students, and alumni of all of the institutions.

No Soliciting of Athletes.

"As a practical matter we will have no one connected with the paid staf of the university whose business it is to solicit athletes, or who thinks that is his business. Under no circumstances shall funds of the unversity, derived from athletics or otherwise, be used for paying expenses of high school or junior college students in association with athletic contests.

"There is no fundamental objection to assisting students who engage in athletics through scholarships, provided other students are given the same opportunities and those athletes obtaining scholarships are dealt with exactly as are other students. Whatever is done in conection with the support of students entering athletics should be done in the open and become a part of the public records of the institution which they attend."

Note Tendencies Developing.

Recognizing that "interested alumni and friends of the university will endeavor to persuade prospective athletes to attend the institution of their choice," the statement expressed the hope of the co-signers "that whatever is done in this connection will be done frankly and openly and along lines agreed upon by representative alumni of the different institutions."

EXPLORER GRANT DIES; PRAYED FOR DEATH ONE YEAR

Gave a "Swan Dance" to Celebrate End.

HILLERSDON, Devon, England, March 10.—(AP)—Death ended the sufferings today of the 84 year old explorer and big game hunter, W. J. A. Grant, who a year ago—having bought his coffin and instructed mourners what to wear—entertained at a "swan dance" to celebrate the end he expected momentarily.

W. J. A. GRANT.

Almost daily since then Grant had prayed that he might die. He had asked doctors in vain to put him painlessly to sleep. He suffered from heart trouble and ailments brought on by age.

In a tiny barn behind the cottage stands a red granite tombstone carved with the words "O, death! where is they sting? O, grave! where is thy victory?"

Urges Practice of Euthanasia.

Grant publicly advocated the practice of euthanasia by physicians, saying:

"Take my own case. Here I am, over 83 and no use to anybody. I should be only too happy to be given a double dose of sleeping draught, being always in pain and unable to read."

Months ago Grant instructed his mourners to "wear your gayest clothes—don't come in the miserable garb of woe."

In a last message he said:

"I have offered money to be killed painlessly and no one has come forward. I have offered my living body for experimental purposes if it would produce death, but my offer has not been accepted.

Fought for Good Health.

"Good health is the most important thing in the world and is a greater goal than the north pole. I tried to reach both and failed, although my grip missed by only a few inches each time."

Cape Grant in Franz Josef land is reputed to be named for Grant.

He invited 500 friends throughout England to his champagne supper and all-night party in January, 1934, to celebrate his expected death and they all came, including a bevy of beautiful dancing girls. But after two hours of sleep Grant arose to say he felt fine. Elinor Glyn, the novelist, was among those at the party.

A bill which will be submitted to the cabinet Tuesday provides eighteen months' service for the class to be called next month, two years for the others until 1940, and authorizes an earlier calling of the classes by lowering the average age of conscripts from 21 to 20 years.

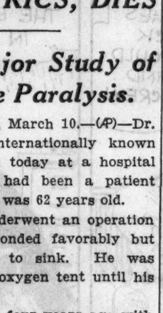
ROADHOUSE RAID WITNESSES WILL ATTEND INQUEST

State highway police announced last night they had obtained three witnesses who will appear this morning at the county morgue to view the body of Rocco Derrico, 25 years old, 112 21st avenue, Melrose Park, and determine if he was one of the five gunmen who was wounded in a raid on the Purple Crackle roadhouse, three and one-half miles east of Elgin, Saturday night.



ROCCO DERRICO.

An hour after the attempted robbery Derrico's body was dumped on the doorstep of his brother-in-law, Rocco Stacci, at 1514 South 20th avenue, Melrose Park. From his description, police believe he was the gunman wounded.

Two of the witnesses are Russell Heckman, 25 years old, amateur boxer, and doorman at the roadhouse, which is now an elaborate gambling house, and Fred Stone, known as "John the Greek," who was in charge at the Purple Grackle. The other witness is a woman, whose name was withheld. They are expected to testify at the inquest today.

Police said they are convinced that the wounded robber was shot accidentally by one of his pals as they hammered their pistol butts on the door attempting to break in. Several shots were also fired to frighten fifty men and women patrons. The bandits fled toward Chicago after one of them was wounded.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A national radio census just completed indicates that there are 25,551,000 radio sets in 21,455,799 homes in the nation. The number of American families is estimated at 30,919,000. Thus approximately 70 per cent of the population is placed in the category of potential radio listeners through the poll conducted by the statistical staf of Dr. Daniel Starch, research expert; the McGraw Hill Publishing compnay, and the CBS chain.

The survey required a year of investigation by a field staf which made 125,000 house to house interviews in all types of communities in every state. The survey indicated that 2,295,000 homes have more than one radio and there are about 1,800,000 auto sets in operation, 800,000 of which have been sold in the last year. Cities of more than 250,000 average 93 radios to every 100 homes.

New York state alone has 2,928,870 homes with radios and its rate of 90 per cent is higher than any other state. Illinois is second with 1,647,283 radio owning families. That represents 81 per cent of all homes. The percentage of the New England and seaboard states is higher, but Illinois ranks the highest of all midwestern states. Only 23 per cent of all families in Mississippi are dial twisters. Arkansas, with 27 per cent, and Alabama with 36 per cent, are next to the cellar positions.

To sound the opening of Paul Whiteman week on the air leading men of modern music will gather for a complimentary banquet Thursday evening in Jack Dempsey's restaurant, the proceedings to be broadcast at 11 p. m. Richard Himber, Rudy Vallee, Abe Lyman, Goodman Ace, Lou Holtz, and Sam Hearn will speak.

Ferde Grofe, band leader and composer, has been spending the last few days at the American Rolling Mill plant getting atmosphere for his new "Rhapsody in Steel" which Frank Simon's band will present for the first time in their broadcast on Sunday, March 24. Grofe is best known for his "Grand Canyon" and "Mississippi" suites.

Almost 100 New York orchestras are off the air as a result of the new $3 union tax per man per broadcast. . . . Col. Stoopnagle and Budd have CBS's permission to kid other radio programs as much as they like on their new Friday night radio series. There's no local outlet for this program to date. . . . U. S. STEEL DOES MORE BUSINESS, BUT SHOWS LOSS

Pay Rolls and Taxes Rise During 1934.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The yearly report of the United States Steel corporation, made yesterday to stockholders, is the story of the experience of the heavy industries in 1934. The corporation hired more workers, boosted its pay rolls, paid more taxes, and lost money on its operations. It was the fourth consecutive year in which the company operated at a deficit.

The gross business done by the company in 1934 was greater than in either of the two preceding years. It fell short, however, of 1931, the first depression year in which business dropped below the billion dollar mark. However, the net results in 1934 represented an improvement over 1933 and 1932 in that the deficit incurred was smaller. The number of workers employed by the company last year was 16 per cent above the preceding year. At the same time disbursements for wages increased almost one-third as compared with 1933.

All Divisions More Active.

Production in all seven of the principal departments of the business was larger than in 1933. It was in the production of iron, manganese, and zinc, the chief division, that the percentage gain was the widest. An expansion of 20 per cent was reported in this line. The increases in other departments ranged from 4.4 per cent in cement production to 14.6 per cent in coal.

Expressed in dollar volume of sales the total business in 1934 was $31,936,000 ahead of 1933. The net results improved by $14,933,000 as represented by the reduction in the net deficit as compared with 1933. The following table shows gross earnings and net results for the last three years:

	1934.	1933.	1932
Gross sales—	$561,609,000	$524,969,000	$327,202,000
Net [deficits]—	21,668,000	36,501,000	71,176,000

The deficits listed do not include dividends paid on the preferred stock out of surplus. The total disbursed in 1934 was $7,206,000, at the rate of 2 per cent, the same as was paid in 1933.

Dividends Increase Deficit.

After dividends the 1934 deficit was $28,873,000. At the end of 1934 unpaid back dividends on the preferred stock stood at $40,532,000, or 11¼ per cent. In the company's peak production year, 1929, gross sales aggregated $1,494,000,000 and the net profit amounted to $197,592,000, or $21.19 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends.

At the close of 1934 the company was employing 189,881 persons, or 10 per cent more than at the end of 1933. Total wage payments last year were $210,504,000, as compared with $163,150,000, an expansion of nearly one-third.

The peak employment was touched in the June quarter when the company paid out $65,094,141 to 202,144 employés. From this peak employment and wage payments declined during the next two quarters. In the last quarter of the year the pay roll was $46,578,000 and employés numbered 176,171, the lowest for any of the four quarters.

Will Modernize Plant Equipment.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman, told stockholders that the corporation faces the necessity of modernizing its plant equipment to meet changing conditions and competition. The $47,000,000 appropriated in February, 1935, will be used for this purpose and will be followed by other expenditures, he stated.

"Changed conditions in the iron and steel industry during the last few years, both in respect of quality and character of steel demanded by customers, including the broadening uses of alloy and special steels, together with revisions in type of mechanical mills evolved for treatment and rolling of steel, which effect large reduction in current production costs but requiring greater capital investment, make it necessary for subsidiaries to expend during the next few years large amounts for capital purposes through installing the latest, most modern, and highly efficient and economical equipment and facilities for steel making," Mr. Taylor said.

Further Expenditures Required.

After mentioning the appropriation already made, he said: "Further amounts will undoubtedly be required in order to establish the plants in a position where they can supply requirements on a competitive basis with other interests in the industry."

Mr. Taylor was mildly optimistic in his comments on future prospects.

"While considerable greater improvement is necessary before profitable results can be attained, the outlook is considered to be encouraging," he said. "As a basis for this comment, it may be stated that January and February, 1935, operations are substantially in excess of those which prevailed in the corresponding months of 1934."

He then hastened to add a warning that despite the improvement now evident, the problems confronting the industry demand "careful planning and united effort."

Reviews Effect of Code.

The effect of the industry's NRA code was generally beneficial in the steel industry, Mr. Taylor said. It eliminated a number of "unfair trade practices" which had grown up in the industry and tended to stabilize the business, he said. As a result of the wage increases effected by the code, however, a material increase in production costs was brought about.

The total tax bill paid by the corporation and its subsidiaries last year was $35,780,000, an increase of $4,070,000 over the amount paid to federal, state, and local governments in the preceding year.

First Profit by Bethlehem Steel Since '31

The Bethlehem Steel corporation last night reported net income of $550,571 for 1934. This was the first time a loss had not occurred since 1931, when net was $115,745. The 1932 loss was $19,404,431, while the 1933 loss was $8,735,728.

A dividend of $1.75 was paid on the preferred stock last Oct. 1, amounting to $1,684,802. This left arrears at $15.75 last Jan. 1 and resulted in a deficit of $1,088,731. Adjustments in the surplus account reduced this item to $76,370,540, compared with $81,145,825 at the end of 1933. No dividends were paid during the year on the common stock.

Net billed value of the company's business during the year was $168,207,394 compared with $120,944,984 in 1933.

Operating Income Rises.

After deducting operating charges of $149,034,549, provision of $471,270 for doubtful notes, and adding other operating income of $922,557, net operating income was $18,701,575 compared with $8,858,583 in the preceding year. Included in operating charges is $133,420,596 for manufacturing costs, etc., compared with $95,411,862 in 1933.

Other income, including that from investments, declined from $1,900,491 to $1,509,900. Interest and other charges amounted to $6,803,822 against $6,702,051 in 1933—funded debt requirements accounting for most of these. This left income before depreciaton and depletion at $14,330,210 in contrast with $4,770,533 in 1933. These charges aggregated $13,779,639, or almost the same as the 1933 deductions of $13,506,256.

Funded debt was reduced $5,222,144 during the year, compared with a $4,955,781 reduction in 1933. It was listed on the balance sheet at $110,496,124.

Plants Are Improved.

Cash expenditures of $2,673,594 were made for additions and improvements.

Current assets totaled $120,765,979 compared with $114,599,514 at the end of 1933. These included cash of $25,973,745 and $19,143,000, respectively. Current liabilities were $20,575,062 [including $6,538,371 in funded debt due in 1935] compared with $18,927,485 at the end of 1933.

Operations of steel plants averaged 34.9 per cent, compared with 28 per cent the previous year, while the daily average number of employés rose from 32,504 to 44,430. A wage raise went into effect April 1 and average hourly wages, except administrative and selling, were 67.4 cent, compared with 55.4 cent average in 1933.

Despite these factors the rate of operations was so low that it contributed to various relief funds. No bonus payments were made to officers and department heads during the year under the company's bonus system.

STEEL RATE RISES

Steel mill operations last week not only halted the downward trend of the last three weeks but even showed improvement, with the operating rate rising 2 points to 50 per cent of productive capacity, according to the magazine Steel. In the Chicago area there was a gain to 55 per cent.

The reversal of the downward trend was attributed to sustained shipments and consumption of flat rolled steel and to a moderately broadening demand for structural steel and pipe. Sheet and strip mills, operating at 75 per cent, have accumulated sufficient backlogs to continue at the level for five to six weeks, the journal says.

Farmers Buying Implements.

"Higher prices for farm products are stimulating demand for agricultural implements, manufacturers experiencing their best operations in five years, some of them already encountering a shortage of skilled machine operators," the magazine says.

"The two leading can manufacturers have consumed more tin plate so far this year than in any similar period in their history, and tin plate mill operations are scheduled for an advance from the current rate of 80 per cent."

Centers other than Chicago reporting operating gains during the week included Pittsburgh with a rise of 1 point to 38 per cent; Wheeling, 14 to 92, and Youngstown, 5 to 55. Birmingham held at 55½ per cent and Cleveland at 74, while New England was off 2 points at 61 per cent; eastern Pennsylvania, 1 at 28½; Buffalo, 2 at 38, and Detroit, 6 at 94.

PENNSY BOOSTS EXPENDITURES ON ADDITIONS

Philadelphia, March 10. — (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad company announced today a net increase of $27,672,536 in its 1934 road and equipment investment for "improvements and betterments," with retirements and depreciation deducted.

The company said its net railway operating income last year was $62,331,530, representing a 2.34 per cent return on its investment in physical property, lower than in any previous years except 1932, 1931, 1921 and the wartime federal control period.

Investments by the railroad in tangible and intangible property totaled $3,108,394,962 at the end of 1934, the company said.

McGraw Electric Reports 1934 Best Year Since 1929

A sharp upturn in net income to the best level since 1929 is shown in the annual report just released by McGraw Electric company, Chicago. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, net income amounted to $502,950 or $2.12 a share on the 236,396 shares outstanding, compared with $105,550 or 44 cents a share in 1933. Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, amounted to $1,632,268, including cash of $736,877, against current liabilities of $315,301, compared with current assets of $1,227,158, cash of $425,761 and current liabilities of $155,815 at the end of the preceding year.

THREAT OF 'NRA' PLAN IN CANADA SEEMS FADING

Reforms Moderate; Vote Angling Seen.

BY STANLEY JACKSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 10.—With the NRA finding persistent opposition in the United States adoption in Canada of a similar plan to regiment industry has become less real in the last few weeks.

During January Prime Minister Bennett, leader of the Federal Conservative party, now in power, startled the dominion with a series of radio talks in which he declared the capitalist system is tottering and radical changes in it must be made if it is to survive. He pledged his party to a crusade of reform by the adoption of which, he maintained, the system could be continued with advantage to the country.

Disturbed by Statements.

Business circles generally were projected into a sea of uncertainty by the prime minister's statements, because up to that time Canada had steered clear of experiments along NRA lines, preferring to trust to time honored Canadian methods in the conducting of the nation's business. Canada ranks eighth in external trade among the countries of the world.

Developments in the intervening weeks, however, have served to calm the fears of business. Parliament has assembled and opposing parties have offered no opposition to the preliminary reform plans. They are anxious to have the substance of main reforms submitted so they can judge better what the government has in store for the country.

So far the proposed reforms have been of an exceedingly mild type. An unemployment insurance act has been introduced in the house, but it is along conservative lines. Reduction in working hours was forecast in the radio talks, but proposed legislation has asked an eight hour day only, and this is by no means radical.

Expect Moderate Program.

Indications are that other legislation will be equally moderate, and it is becoming more and more apparent that Prime Minister Bennett was speaking more with an eye to political expediency than to any deep-seated desire radically to change the prevailing business and financial structure.

Federal elections must take place in Canada this year, the time limit for any one government in power being five years. The Conservatives were elected in 1930. In that year, when Bennett was campaigning for the leadership of the government, he promised that he would end unemployment. He quoted figures showing that Canada imported, for instance, many millions of dollars worth of goods from the United States and, by shutting out a considerable part of this trade, he said, Canada's unemployed gets jobs. But today unemployment is greater than it was then and trade with the United States has been lessened without any corresponding gain in jobs.

May Be Angling for Votes.

As he was unable to keep his promises then, it is now believed that he is promising changes in what he calls the capitalist system that he will not carry out and that he is merely angling for votes in the next election.

Announcement has been made in parliament that a grain board will be set up. This was not unexpected, as the dominion government, through artificial support given the wheat market in the last four years, now owns most of the visible wheat supply. The grain board proposal is just another way of continuing government operations in the wheat market by holding up the prices to satisfy the western farmer, but it retards the sale of wheat.

Unemployment in Canada is indicated by the official figures for January, showing the number on relief. The list includes 249,577 heads of families, with 890,835 dependents. Canada's population is a little over 10,500,000, so it is obvious that the unemployment is the country's chief problem. The persons on relief are cared for on the basis of one-third by the federal coffers, one-third by the municipality, and one-third by the province.

People Are Highly Taxed.

Canadians are among the highly taxed people of the world because of the need for money to care for those on the dole. The city of Montreal has at present a bill in the provincial legislature to increase taxes by $8,000,000 during the present fiscal year. Provincial governments are reaching for new fields to tax in order to swell their revenues. Meanwhile no government is taking drastic action to cut out unnecessary services.

Mining has been one of the bright spots of the last few years, but last week the provincial government announced an increased tax on output from the mines in 1935. Provincial leaders are formulating plans whereby the price of newsprint can be increased.

While the constant threat of government interference has a retarding effect, business is improving in Canada. Any further improvement will reduce the prospect of changes in the economic structure of the country, it is believed.

Steps are under way to negotiate a trade treaty with the United States and, while farm and other interests in the United States doubtless will oppose tarif concessions on commodities Canada desires mostly to export over the border, a more favorable basis of trading may be achieved.

Twin Zephyrs of Burlington Due in April

Four hundred and thirty-one miles in 390 minutes! Better than a mile a minute.

That's the challenge the Burlington railroad, pioneer in streamlined trains, will give its rail, air, and highway competitors in travel between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Ralph Budd, president of the railroad, announced yesterday that twin Zephyrs, replicas of the "veteran" streamline trains which went into operation on the Missouri run last Armistice day, are nearing completion in the Philadelphia plant of the Budd Manufacturing company. The Twins will start their Minnesota schedule some time in April, the announcement stated.

100 Miles an Hour.

The six and one-half hour schedule, which means a cruising speed at times of 100 miles an hour to absorb station stops and slow down orders, is possible, Mr. Budd declared, because the water level route is perfectly ballasted, has a minimum of grade crossings, and at no point has a grade greater than one-quarter of one per cent.

Except for incidentals, the Twins differ from their big brother in only one respect—passenger capacity. They supply seats for 84 as against 72 of the original Zephyr. However, the latter will soon become a four car train with 40 additional seats.

While half of the Zephyr is taken up with "front end business"—mail express, and baggage—the Twins will require less such space. With this arrangement, there is more floor space available for passenger accommodation. Like the Zephyr, they will be driven by 600 horse power Diesel engines. These are expected to duplicate the performance of the Zephyr which reduced the operating cost per mile to 32 cents.

Seek Day Travel.

Day travel, where the railroads have been hit the hardest by air and bus lines, will be the prize for which the Twins and their elder brother will compete. Because the run is nearly twice as far as the pioneer Lincoln, Omaha, Kansas City route of the Zephyr, Mr. Budd stated it was necessary to have Twins, one leaving Chicago shortly after noon, and the other leaving Minneapolis at the same time.

"Daily interviews with passengers on the Zephyr demonstrate that 32 per cent of the increase in travel are those persons who would otherwise have gone by automobile, bus, or plane, a sweet morsel to railroad statisticians who have seen 70 per cent of their patronage flit away since 1920," declared the railroad president.

"The passenger miles on the Burlington as a whole during November, December, and January, increased 26 per cent over the corresponding three months a year ago. The total mileage made by travelers using the Zephyr during these three months, however, was 193 per cent more than during the same period a year ago on the steam trains which the Zephyr replaces, while the two remaining steam trains between Omaha and Kansas City enjoyed about the same percentage increase as the system as a whole."

$189,562 NET INCOME FOR 1934 REPORTED BY WESTINGHOUSE

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—The annual report of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company for 1934 shows net income of $189,562, compared with a loss of $8,636,841 in the preceding year. The figures are after depreciation and reserves.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, reported sales billed during the year totaled $92,158,893, compared with $66,431,591 in the preceding year, an increase of 39 per cent.

Orders received amounted to $106,473,226 against $72,473,117. Unfilled orders at the end of the year amounted to $34,085,921.

Current assets, as of Dec. 31 amounted to $80,328,712 and current liabilities $6,122,180, a ratio of 13 to 1.

Robertson said: "Unless there is a marked change for the worse, operations of the company in 1935 will show a substantial profit."

Production of Autos for Week 86,973 Units

Automobile and truck production in the United States and Canada for the week ended March 9 amounted to 86,973 units, compared with 83,899 in the preceding week and 73,645 in the corresponding week of last year, according to Crum's Reports, Inc.

SLUMP TO END IN TWO MONTHS, DAWES ASSERTS

Tucson, Ariz., March 10.—(AP)—Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President, believes the depression will end in another two months and that the nation will realize it not later than July. Dawes said the depressions beginning in 1873 and 1893 lasted five and one-half years as measured by the stock market, and that the one began in 1929 should wind up in about the same length of time.

"Due to an accumulation of five years of postponed demands, June or July of this year should see the beginning of a great sustained demand for durable goods," he said.

Asked whether the administration's spending program would affect government credit or permanent recovery, Dawes said:

"Of course it will, if continued. The budget must be balanced. And if this borrowing continues after recovery there'll be serious consequences—probably another big smash."

Dawes is visiting his old friend and former fellow army officer, Gen. John J. Pershing, who is wintering here.

World Bank Leaders Eye British Pound

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Tim es.]

BASLE, Switzerland, March 10.—The pound's position in the future unquestionably was the main topic of private talks among governors of the Banks of England, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Switzerland, and among other bankers from the United States, Japan, and elsewhere who gathered here for the monthly meeting tomorrow of the Bank of International Settlements.

They want to know whether or not its fall has been deliberate, whether it has really been stopped, and its probable effects on the continent, particularly on Belgium.

According to two reliable independent continental sources the stiffening of the pound on Friday and Saturday, whether or not permanently, was due to the British government's intervening. This, of course, involves the anomaly of a public announcement by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, that he would do nothing and then secretly using the equalization fund to counteract his own words. One source explained this by saying that the depressing effect of Mr. Chamberlain's words was greater than anticipated.

Belgium Seeks Aid.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 10.—The visit which Georges Theunis, Belgian premier, is going to pay to Paris March 18 has again served to call attention to the dangerous situation in which the gold bloc finds itself, thanks to the fall of the pound. His coming has already aroused much speculation on measures which these countries may take to defend their currencies.

All discussion which is now going on, however, simply emphasizes the apparent hopelessness of the gold bloc's position unless the pound should strengthen and the dollar maintain its present level.

Paris Is Pessimistic.

In other words, Paris is most pessimistic about the possibility of taking common action to counteract the deflationary effect on prices of the sterling's decline. In recent months the gold bloc has demonstrated that it cannot and will not work together as a unit.

The countries involved held a conference at Brussels last October and agreed upon a program of economic coöperation, but nothing has come of it. The authorities fully agree nothing will now.

Moreover, there have been other more serious evidences of the disintegration of the gold bloc, notably the action of Switzerland in permitting the hotels to offer a special rate on pounds and that of Italy in allowing the lira to depreciate far below the theoretical gold export point and in shutting out all imports, including those from the gold bloc.

BOND EXCHANGE OFFER PLANNED BY PACIFIC GAS

Airplane Dash Aids $45,000,000 Deal.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Announcement today that the Pacific Gas and Electric company had registered with the securities and exchange commission an exchange of $45,009,000 4 per cent bonds to retire $44,636,000 5½ per cent due in 1952 was heralded by commission officials as evidence of a thaw in the frozen security market. It is said the interest saving would be $675,000 annually.

This new issue, following so closely after Swift & Co. decided to float $43,000,000 3¾ per cent bonds to redeem outstanding issues of 5 per cent, was cited by Commissioner James M. Landis as evidence of an increasing confidence among investors and, perhaps, as indicative of the flotation of many new bond issues.

Others May Follow.

In discussing the break in the deadlock Landis said that this action on the part of the western utility corporation was encouraging to the capital world. Two other large corporations, he added, are preparing to register new bond issues that amount to $50,000,000 each, while many small corporations are considering similar financing if it is shown that the larger companies can sell their securities at reduced rates.

Announcement of the Pacific Gas registration was made today following a dramatic airplane flight from the Pacific coast to get the application filed late Friday night, so as to give the brokers three days in which to offer the new bonds before the company must issue the sixty day refunding notice.

Arrives by Plane.

Officers of the company left San Francisco late Thursday night in two planes. One plane went down in Sacramento. The other, carrying Robert H. Gerdes, fourth vice president, grounded at Cheyenne, but he chartered another ship, arriving in Washington at 11:30 o'clock Friday night. The offices of the commission were kept open so that the filing date was recorded as of that day.

The securities which the Pacific Gas and Electric company proposes to redem June 1, with the proceeds of the new issue, are $44,636,000 of 5½ per cent first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, series C, due Dec. 1, 1952. These bonds are to be redeemed at par and accrued interest, plus a premium of 5 per cent on the principal.

POLITICAL FOGS CAUSE MARKETS TO MOVE WARILY

Prices Continue to Drop; Trading Is Dull.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Foggy weather emanating from Washington keeps the stock market scene as dismal looking as ever. Sentiment ebbed a little further as the politicians volleyed and thundered last week, the averages dropping about two points on the five and one-half trading sessions. Activity, however, remained about on a par with its pace of the last few months, professionals accounting for the bulk of the nominal daily output of give-and-take transactions.

The feature of the week, from the market viewpoint, was what the financial community refers to as President Roosevelt's little "joke" on the dollar. The President's announcement at the morning press conference last Wednesday that he did not consider the dollar to be cheap enough in relation to debts gave traders the impression that further devaluation of the dollar was in contemplation and the result was a rush of "inflationary" buying orders of sufficient volume to boost stock prices all the way from $1 to $4 a share.

Boomlet Blows Up.

In the early afternoon, however, came a White House statement saying that there was no immediate intention of taking any more gold out of the dollar, and the market boomlet blew up as spectacularly as it had developed. The averages, which had surged ahead about $2.25, receded to within a fraction of their previous close and activity subsided to its wonted slow pace.

A total of 1,285,000 shares were turned over during the confused day, however, making it the busiest session since the day of the gold case decision back in January and one of the biggest days since back last fall. The last half of the week found turnover down to around a half million shares on the average.

Judged by its net results the week produced of no great significance, brokers agreed, but it served to emphasize on the public mind the demoralizing nature of the various unknown factors worrying business and the markets alike.

Railroads Launch Attack.

Further crystallization of opposition in congress to the New Deal continued to give concern not only because of its deterrent effects on important legislation now on the fire, but because of its possible bearing on the 1936 election results.

Still another development of the week to effect speculative sentiment was the attack by the railroads, through their spokesman, John J. Pelley, president of the Railroads' association, on Federal Coördinator of Transportation Eastman. The roads are demanding that Eastman's job be abolished and this source of annoyance be eliminated from their many troubles.

Great Lakes Dredge.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me information concerning the common stock of Great Lakes Dredge? —B. A. M.

Answer: Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company improves rivers and harbors; it also constructs foundations, piers, breakwaters, lighthouses, tunnels, bridges, pneumatic and submarine works. The bulk of its operations is on the Great Lakes, although considerable business is done in the New York harbor region.

The company has given a good account of itself during the last ten years. Much of its business is from the federal government.

In 1934 the company earned $938,000, or $1.72 a share, against loss of $46,000 for 1933, the only loss during the last decade. Net income in 1932 was $249,000, or 46 cents a share, against net of $1,326,000, or $2.40 a share, for 1931.

Current position at the close of 1934 was strong. Cash and United States government securities alone totaled $2,326,000, against current liabilities of $345,000. Total current assets were $4,900,000. In addition the company carried $610,000 municipal investments as noncurrent assets.

Capitalization is simple, consisting solely of 546,070 outstanding shares. The stock pays regular dividends of 25 cents a quarter. It deserves a fairly good rating.

Worthless.

Investors' Guide: Re: Amador Consolidated Mining and Development company [Ariz.]: Please send me information in regard to same.—G. J. C.

Answer: Amador Consolidated Mining and Development company was incorporated in Arizona in March, 1903, with capitalization of $10,000,000 of $5 par shares. It was reported to be a promotion of D. E. McKinnon, and was a holding company, owning Amador Railway company, Amador Smelting company, and Amador Copper and Gold Mining and Milling company, Ltd.

At last reports the company was in possession of P. F. Smith, receiver, and was reported to be hopelessly bankrupt.

Apparently the stock is worthless.

"I Can Make You Money"

Do you really want to make $40.00 per week or better? Are you the kind of a man who is capable of getting out of a rut in order to make real money? Can you follow direction even though the plan involves amazing new ideas? Will you give honest effort?

If you are that kind of a man, I will show you how to get "in the money" at once. This is not a swivel chair job, nor a place where you can sit around and talk about the "good old days." My men are too busy making money to pay attention to anything but business.

Your percentage, if I accept you, should soon be way over the figure mentioned above. This is not a trick proposition nor a shoe-string organization, but a well established nationally known company with electrical and health unit of startling character. It offers unusual novelty and interest. I have been in the game a long time, and I know a winner when I see one. Just let me give you a tip: The opportunity is now. Take advantage of it by coming up and making your application to me personally. No investment is required.

MR. JONES,
6TH FLOOR. 203 N. WABASH-AV.

Our most active season has begun. Business is good.

We have an opening for a few neat appearing men, 25 years of age or over, to represent the largest retail Home Furnishing House in the middle west. Previous experience an advantage but not essential. We are laying a foundation for future purchasing among our numerous customers and are paying our representatives advanced commission weekly in full on a basis of average sales expectancy. Also allowing a daily drawing account privilege, if necessary, while getting started. An interesting, dignified and dignified program for those capable of conducting enthusiastic conversation. Can earn $50 per week and upward consistently. No night calls. Apply from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a. m. only. Can also use a few saleswomen.

It will be impossible to interview men at any other time.
ROOM 111.
HOTEL SHERMAN

WE ARE READY FOR A GOOD MAN WHO IS READY FOR US!

I want a high-grade man who lives on the north or N. W. side and who has had 5 years' business experience, or has been a printer mechanic, or in some trade for at least 5 years—of good character, willing to work, able to meet people courteously. I want no money from him, but will put him in position, if we get together, to soon be drawing down big comm. checks from this strong, progressive, successful electric unit company.

If you are in earnest, call at 3:15 p. m. only, Monday, March 11, second floor, at 3703 Irving Park-blvd.

I AM READY TO TRAIN A MAN WHO can measure up to the success of the manager of this office, who came into this business in Jan., 1934, with no past electric unit experience, and in the first 10 months made average commissions of $200 a month—and who has had several $400 months recently. No investment needed, but the North or N. W. suburban resident selected must be under 46 years, should own a car, and must have two or three real character references.

I am ready to confer with you and if we agree, to hire and train you. I will see you promptly at 3:15 this [Monday] afternoon, March 11, Room 6, State Bank Bldg., Park Ridge.

IF YOU WILL GO TO THE DESK OF the Hotel Guyon, 4000 W. Washington-blvd. at 10 a. m., today, Monday, March 11, and ask for Lester Larsen, and measure up as a man who is really looking for permanency with a big company, you will be given an interview. Past knowledge of electric machines and units not required—we don't want your money, but must have your full time and all your energy in exchange for the big commissions you will receive. You must be prepared to spend time enough to go into details. The hit-and-run advancher is not desired and will not be interviewed.

ONE OR TWO WEST SUBURBAN MEN: You are invited to call at 1 p. m., today, Monday, March 11, to 400-411 Madison St., Maywood [Proviso State Bank Bldg.] and see Mr. Brumbaugh about a business proposition in this vicinity. Our success in the installation of our electric units has been so pronounced, we are ready to finance larger operations. No money required, but man must be over 45 years, live in Maywood or some other western suburb and be responsible and high-type. This business will pay the right man a commission income of at least $3,000 a year and more as he masters this business. Make a note of the time and place and do not expect an early repetition of this interesting invitation.
